BERLIN GIVES HITLER HONORS OF A CONQUEROR

All Germany Stops Work as He Speaks.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Nov. 10.—Germany treated its chancellor-dictator, Adolf Hitler, like a conquering hero today.

First of all every German in the land stopped in his tracks and ceased all activity for one minute to pay homage to the little, dynamic Nazi leader. Then the nation sat in reverent attention for 50 minutes while he brought his preëlection campaign to a dramatic close by hurling his defiance at the world.

Fight for Peace, He Urges.

The chancellor was in fine fettle as he told the nation it must fight for peace and must answer the world's "accusation that the German people are bloodthirsty beasts" in Sunday's plebiscite on the reich's move for international equality.

"I will not have this nation treated as a bootblack," Hitler shouted through the radio.

The chancellor chose Germany's largest electrical factory as the setting for his masterpiece. He spoke from an improvised platform on a dynamo in the Siemens works, near Berlin. Workers in the shop climbed on iron beams in order to get a better view of their idol.

His speech was heralded by sirens in every city, village and hamlet. It was heard through loud speakers on every street corner, in every shop, and in every office.

Ships at Sea Blow Whistles.

Workers were compelled to listen to the chancellor on their own time and had to make up this hour by working overtime.

Employers had been requested to escort their workers to the nearest radio. Even German ships at sea were instructed to blow their whistles when Hitler began to speak.

The chancellor, whose every movement is theatrical, strode into the electrical factory, flanked by his bodyguards, clad in black and silver uniforms, and leather jacketed airplane pilots, who brought him to the capital from Munich.

Shop Workers Enthusiastic.

The 9,000 shop workers in overalls and smocks lined the machinery clustered floor and roared their enthusiasm as "the leader" began to preach his gospel of national unity.

As the speech ended Germans rose everywhere and cheered. Berlin welcomed him as if he were a Cæsar as he rode to the chancellery. The four mile stretch between the shop and the chancellery was lined with thousands of cheering civilians and storm troopers. A storm trooper stood at every ten yards along the entire route.

Hitler sat in an open car. The automobile stopped now and then to receive bouquets of flowers from school children.

"In the nine months of my government I have reduced unemployment from 6,200,000 to 3,710,000," Hitler said, as he began his address. "That is an achievement. I know you will tell me your standard of existence has not improved in these months. I know. But first let me get workers back to work, then automatically the power of consumption will rise and we can systematically raise the level of the standard of living. I asked for four years to accomplish this.

"I Do Not Want War."

"An international clique of enemies is agitating against us. They say we want war. I do not know how many statesmen of other countries went through the war. I was in it almost four and a half years. I know its agonies. I would be insane to want another war.

"We have our own work to do in our own country. Other statesmen would do well to attend to the solution of problems of their own countries. Foreign countries should let us alone. If there is talk of threats and danger, we are the ones who are threatened by the big armies around us. Yet we stretch out our hands to our former enemies. What in the world can I do to make them believe I mean it sincerely?

"In times like these one must grow hard. I shall remain hard when it comes to the question of Germany's right to equal security. I will not relinquish an inch of Germany's

LITVINOV HAPPY AFTER 3D TALK WITH ROOSEVELT

In Long Conference with President.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 10.—(AP)—In a three hour conference at the White House tonight President Roosevelt and Maxim Litvinov, soviet foreign minister, reached an understanding which is expected in official quarters to lead to an early announcement on Russian recognition. It was the third conference of the day.

Litvinov, however, parried questions on leaving the White House almost at midnight. Asked if the conversation with the President was "pleasant," the chubby soviet diplomat smiled and said: "Conversations with Mr. Roosevelt are always pleasant."

William C. Bullitt, special assistant to Secretary Hull and an authority on Russian affairs, participated in the discussions. Bullitt said that the time for further parleys on recognition had not been set, but he added: "Obviously there will be further conferences."

Says "Progress" Is Made.

Bullitt said, however, that "progress" was made at the three hour parley tonight.

Bullitt left the White House with Litvinov and the latter went to the home of Boris Skvirsky, head of the soviet union information bureau, where Litvinov is a guest.

The meeting tonight was described as a "friendly chat," but it was known that a thorough review of subjects relating to recognition was made.

The complex problems which have accumulated in 16 years would be gone over thoroughly in the first two conferences.

Brief Communique Issued.

An hour's talk was followed by a brief joint communique. It said:

"The President and Mr. Litvinov reviewed the questions between the two countries which had previously been discussed between the secretary of state and Mr. Litvinov.

"These conversations with the President and with the state department will continue in normal course."

Further conferences between state department officials and the visitor are in prospect despite the impression by some who have participated in these meetings that the basic issues had been thrashed out.

Time Not Yet Fixed.

The time for these further conversations, however, has not been fixed. Secretary Hull leaves tomorrow for the Pan-American conference, but Undersecretary Phillips and other assistants are thoroughly familiar with all phases of Russian affairs.

It was disclosed today that details of each question involved in the recognition discussions were being gone over at the state department gatherings.

The President is informed of the result and then he and Litvinov will take up the subject in their personal meetings.

Before his arrival Litvinov said that as far as he was concerned he thought recognition could be made a matter of thirty minutes. There has been no indication, however, that the soviet commissar was disappointed with the results thus far attained. In official circles today it was said also that no obstacle had arisen which threatened to make Litvinov's mission fruitless.

Discusses All Subjects.

The soviet foreign minister in the past has pushed debt claims against his country into the background in negotiations for recognition. He has, however, indicated a willingness here to go over all matters which the administration feels should be reviewed.

Before the conferences today between Litvinov and the President the former consulted members of his party. Among them were Peter Bogdanov, chairman of the Amtorg Trading corporation; Boris Skvirsky, head of the soviet information bureau; Konstantin Umansky and Ivan Divilkovsky of Moscow's commissariat of foreign affairs. They did not, however, accompany him to the White House.

MOSCOW IS HAPPY

MOSCOW, Nov. 10.—(AP)—The soviet capital's press devoted columns of their front pages today to the arrival of Maxim Litvinov, commissar for foreign affairs, in the United States and his subsequent reception in Washington.

Four boys, the youngest 9 years old, ganged a 200 pound man last night, robbed him of $8, and were later captured by police. They are Donald Vuletic, 9, 10618 Torrence avenue; his brother, Eli, 13; Robert Stageman, 13, of 10634 Hoxie avenue, and Donald Hoffman, 13, of 10617 Hoxie avenue. Their victim was John Price, 40, of 10215 Bensley avenue.

The four accosted him at 106th street and Hoxie avenue and told them their family was starving. Price, desiring to be a Good Samaritan, decided to visit the home. In the rear of 10617 Hoxie avenue the youngsters leaped upon him like cats, went through his pockets, and fled.

Price reported to East Side police and Sergt. James Daily and his squad soon had the juvenile thieves under arrest. All confessed. Stageman boasted of being the leader. He said he had read that bands of boys could execute robberies better than grownups. For his share of the loot he took $5 and to each of the others gave $1.

Fahrney Girl Adds Thrill to Life of Thrills

An automobile tragedy brought to light early yesterday the elopement of Mrs. Merry Fahrney Parker-Pickering, young Oak Park heiress, and Frank V. Eiszner. But last night, after a day of denial that they had been married, neither of them could be found and both were believed to be in seclusion. Both, it was known, were upset over the motor mishap in which Eiszner's brother Donald was killed. Justice of the Peace E. M. Enderson of Aurora said at night that he had married the young couple.

The bride is a part heiress to the $6,000,000 patent medicine fortune of her grandfather, the late Peter Fahrney.

All was dark last night at the bride's home at 400 North Euclid avenue, Oak Park, where only a few days ago she had announced her intention to marry Count George di Georgio. The count sailed from New York for Chile a week ago today at the request of immigration authorities. At the Eiszner residence at 836 Lathrop avenue, River Forest, no information was forthcoming as to the newlyweds' whereabouts.

Eiszner's Fiancee Complains.

Only one new development was reported—the complaint of Miss Day Porter, 25 years old, of 320 Wisconsin avenue, Oak Park, that she and Eiszner had been engaged for three years, and that his elopement ended it all.

Eiszner, 28 years old, is the son of John F. Eiszner, owner of a cooperage company at 1050 West Kinzie street, and recently has been interested in the Mail Service corporation, 521 West Monroe street. His bride, 22 years old, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Fahrney. The young people have been friends for years.

Reports concerning their elopement and the subsequent automobile accident conflicted during the day, but were cleared up last night. The two with friends and relatives started out for Aurora shortly after midnight yesterday morning. Earlier Eiszner had called for the Fahrney heiress at her home.

Others in the Party.

In their car were Donald Eiszner, 25 years old, brokerage employé and former athlete at Williams college; Noel Seeburg, uncle of the Eiszners and son of the founder of the Seeberg

60 RESTAURANTS IN INDIANA TAKE DOWN BLUE EAGLE

Noblesville, Ind., Nov. 10.—[Special.]—Sixty restaurant and lunchroom owners from ten northern Indiana counties gathered in Noblesville today and voted unanimously to take down the NRA Blue Eagle on the ground that further compliance with the required wage and hour regulations would mean their financial ruin.

Mrs. Jessie Wright, proprietor of a Noblesville cafeteria and vice president of the district organization of restaurant owners, said that the membership was not opposed in principle to the NRA and that all would be glad to continue under the eagle if a "workable" plan could be presented to them.

She will go tomorrow to Indianapolis to present the action of the local group to the state NRA headquarters and to explain the plight of the restaurants.

The owners declared that they could not pay the scale of $14 a week minimum and shorten hours as required and still operate. There also were a number of complaints that the price agreements signed were being violated.

It also was pointed out that the provision in the restaurant code for charging restaurant employés for their meals was a source of annoyance and of conflict between workers and owners.

There was not a dissenting voice, according to Mrs. Wright, among the representatives of sixty restaurant owners present when the proposal was made to leave the NRA until a more practicable code could be formulated.

CHICAGO BRIDE'S BOAT STRANDED IN PANAMA JUNGLE

[Copyright, 1933, By the New York Times.]

BALBOA, C. Z., Nov. 10.—The Svaap, 32 foot ketch in which W. A. Robinson sailed around the world, as described in his book, "Ten Thousand Leagues Over the Sea," is aground in the jungle on the Upper Sambu river, in southeastern Panama near the Colombian border.

On the trip back from a visit to primitive Indians last week the Svaap was caught in a sudden flood and was stranded when the water subsided.

Mr. Robinson and his wife, the former Florence Crane of Chicago, reached here after sailing four days and nights in a native dugout. They flew back over the Svaap yesterday and photographed it from the air to lay plans for salvaging the ketch. They wish to continue their honeymoon cruise in it to the Galapagos.

Jury Refuses State Demand That Pair Die

A jury in the court of Judge Charles P. Molthrop last night returned a verdict finding two young gunmen guilty of the murder of Policeman William D. Lundy and fixing the punishment of each at 99 years in the penitentiary. The jury had deliberated for 2 hours and 40 minutes.

Assistant State's Attorney John Leonard Murphy, who had asked a death penalty for the killers, Joseph Majczek, 24 years old, and Theodore Marcinkiewicz, 26 years old, said that he was disappointed at the punishment.

Attorneys James M. Burke and W. W. O'Brien, representing the defendants, made a motion for a new trial and arguments on this were set for next Thursday.

Enter Store to Rob Owner.

The killing of Lundy, a veteran of 27 years on the police force, who would have retired on a pension in a few weeks, occurred on Dec. 9, 1932, when Majczek and Marcinkiewicz entered the delicatessen store of Mrs. Vera Walush at 4312 South Ashland avenue with the intention of holding her up.

Lundy, assigned to traffic duty at a nearby corner, had stopped in the store to get warm and was playing with Mrs. Walush's 4 year old daughter when the command "Hands up!" was given. He was shot by the pair before he could draw his own pistol.

Mrs. Walush testified at the trial and identified the two men as the murderers. Her statements were substantiated by other testimony to the effect that Marcinkiewicz had boasted that he was going to rob Mrs. Walush and get a large amount of money she kept on hand to cash pay checks for her customers.

Attempt to Prove Alibi.

The defendants, through their witnesses, attempted to show that they wer not in the vicinity at the time of the shooting. In his closing arguments Attorney Burke asked for leniency because, he said, the identification was not positive and the alibi had been established.

Prosecutor Murphy demanded a death penalty, he asserted, because the murder was accomplished ruthlessly and "no lesser punishment would fit the crime."

The two men took the verdict with no outward emotion, but their wives, who had been in court since the trial started, screamed at the announcement of their fate. The widow and two sons and two daughters of the slain policeman, who were also present, expressed themselves as content. They had been trying for months to force the case to trial.

Clears Docket of Police Killings.

It was the last murder charge on the dockets of the Criminal court in which the defendants were charged with killing policemen.

Majczek and Marcinkiewicz were the 28th and 29th killers convicted in the Criminal court since the war on crime started in August. Seven were given life sentences; five, of whom two have been executed, were sentenced to death; six to 199 years' imprisonment; three to 100 years; one to 30 years; three to 20 years, and two to 14 years.

Three sentences yesterday brought to 558 the number of criminals sentenced since the opening of the crime war. Those sentenced are: Bernard Le Doux, one year to life for robbery; Sam Terzo, one to ten years for embezzlement, and Norman Nelson, one to fourteen years for manslaughter. Nelson beat his wife to death.

MAYOR DEMANDS HOME RULE ON LIQUOR CONTROL

For Open Drinking, State Board Told.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

Mayor Kelly told the state commission that is seeking information on new liquor legislation, at a session held in the county building yesterday, that Chicago wants to handle this problem for itself, and in an open, orderly manner that will make the new liquor régime successful.

He would use the licensing power, the mayor said, to regulate the regional sale of liquor according to the wishes of the people. He would not put people in jail over this. He would do away with the old saloon and the bar for men. He would make drinking establishments respectable, in the continental style.

Wants Home Rule for City.

"What would you consider a violation of home rule?" asked Representative David Shanahan.

"State licensing and a state commission to handle the liquor sales," the mayor said.

"What would you have included in the state liquor statute?

"The question of what is a saloon might go in," said the mayor. "The method of limiting the number of saloons might be included, also the requirement of good record for the licensees."

Some Sentiment for Bars.

Some sentiment for the old fashioned bar was evident in the commission; also there is a division of opinion over separate beer and liquor licenses, or one license for all.

"Seventy-five per cent of the people are against the return of the old saloon," said the mayor in the course of a round table discussion of this many-sided problem.

"What is your objection to a state commission?" he was asked.

"The state is too much here now," he said. "We have a friendly administration now, but it is time Chicago asserted itself. The state has no business trying to enforce city ordinances. We sell drugs and groceries without state aid."

Limit on Licenses.

"Would you limit the licenses?" asked Mr. Shanahan.

"In the event of no state legislation, what is the power of the city?"

"I take it that liquor comes under control of the city."

Attorney Ralph M. Shaw, a member of the commission, said that his law firm had recently given an opinion to this effect.

Legislation by the city council, the mayor said, is imminent, but the aldermen are of many minds.

"What do you think of local option?" asked Mr. Shanahan.

Mayor for Local Option.

"I am for local option," said the mayor. "The old lines, however, may not be good now. Districts have changed. Hyde Park had local option. Now, west of Cottage Grove avenue and north of 47th street they probably would like a few taverns. The southern part of Hyde Park has not changed. That would be handled under the power to license, which should be with the mayor and the chief of police. In this manner residential districts would be protected and property values taken into consideration."

Senator Harold C. Ward, chairman of the commission, brought up the question of whether a city commission or the aldermen should handle the problem.

"A commission would only be a camouflage," replied the mayor. "I don't think the aldermen want this hot potato. It should be in the lap of the man who is responsible to the people."

The Status of Beer Taverns.

John P. Harding brought up the question of beer taverns where beer only is sold. This, he thought, would encourage this form of drinking as against hard liquor. It conflicted, however, with the mayor's idea of one license for all sellers of liquor, and let them take their choice as to what they sell.

"It does not seem to me that we should force whisky into beer bars," said Mr. Harding.

"No government was able to enforce whisky sales in the past," said the mayor. "With the human element that we deal with it is very difficult to enforce an ordinance against whisky."

"Let them pay a year's license in advance and issue monthly permits," suggested Mr. Harding.

"We are all starting new in a different age," said the mayor. "What worked before may not work now. The main thing for Chicago is home rule and revenue."

State Senator Adelbert Roberts suggested that in some parts of the state a commission control might be necessary. He cited a supposedly lawless community in Michigan as an example.

The mayor said this Michigan community was all right and added:

"There is no place in Illinois that cannot take care of itself as well as the state can. We cannot acknowledge that there is any town that cannot take care of itself."

Saloon Is of the Past.

To the reiterated question of bars, which even now are in operation in thousands of beer taverns, the mayor said:

"If you attempt to pass a saloon law, in my opinion, you will violate the national platform of both parties. General opinion is that the saloon is a thing of the past. We think differently than we did twenty years ago. I think we can sell the idea of a tavern with tables, with a back service bar, and no two story hidden dining rooms. I doubt if we can get by with the other thing, where men stand at a bar and use vile language. If we start in with places where there are brawls and disorderly houses, we will have an uprising of the public. The legislature will not have any saloon. We want to make the liquor law successful. I think the people would like to see orderly places, and not too many of them, so that they can be properly policed, a place respected as other business places, a place with an open front.

Council for Home Rule.

"The feeling of the city council is for home rule. It will be up to the administration to handle the taverns. It all depends on the enforcement and the mayor and the council will be blamed in the final analysis.

"Separate licenses are almost impossible to enforce. It we want revenue let them sell all in one place. The drug stores can sell at tables if they want and pay the same price."

The commission, which has a tentative bill under consideration, adjourned to meet next Wednesday or Thursday, when this bill will be presented for consideration. A resolution was passed yesterday instructing those who are preparing the bill to bear in mind the home rule idea advanced by the mayor.

Postpone Beer Cost Hearing.

The legislative committee on the costs of manufacture and distribution of beer, headed by Representative William J. Connors [Dem., Chicago], yesterday postponed until next week a meeting at which Illinois brewers were to tell the committee their production costs.

Representatives of the brewers won a point in the postponement when it was agreed that hearing on costs will be an executive session. The brewers protested that if a public hearing were held, representatives of brewers in other states would be present and would get valuable trade information.

At the session next week the brewers also will give the committee their suggestions on license fees.

SEEK $1,500,000 CIVIL WORKS CASH FOR PARK JOBS

Funds from the $400,000,000 new federal civil works program, which is intended to take 4,000,000 men from the public relief rolls in the country and place them on a self-sustaining basis for the winter, will permit the employment of 2,000 heads of families in the Lincoln and west park systems, it was declared yesterday by the board heads after they surveyed the possibilities of work relief. The financial needs for the labor and materials were estimated at $1,000,000 for the west parks by President Harry Joseph and $500,000 for Lincoln park by President A. D. Plamandon.

The money and the men would be used in the cleaning, painting, and general rehabilitation of buildings and recreational facilities, and in the completion of two major projects which are being held up for lack of money, they said. One is filling in with black dirt of 1,000 acres of made land extending from Irving Park boulevard to Foster avenue, east of the outer drive, in the Lincoln park system. The other would be the construction of a subway on Augusta boulevard underneath the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad tracks in the west park system.

It is estimated that there is enough work in Chicago and Cook county to employ 72,000 men, all heads of families, on the county relief rolls, in various activities. In the forest preserves alone 10,000 men could be employed in building pedestrian trails, shelters, comfort stations, and planting and reforestation.

START WRECKING DRUGGAN-LAKE BREWERY TODAY

The Goldman Wrecking company will start this morning demolishing the old Druggan-Lake brewery at the southwest corner of Campbell avenue and Roosevelt road. Instead of paying to have the buildings removed the internal revenue department decided to sell the structures at public auction. The result was bidding which started at $1 and ended at $11—the amount the wrecking company will pay Uncle Sam for the privilege of tearing down the brewery. The $11 going to the federal government includes the pay for the machinery in the brewery as well as that for the building materials.

220 MILLION IN NUISANCE TAXES DIE WITH DRY LAW

To Be Promptly Dropped by President.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 10.—[Special.]—When Old Man Prohibition moves out to the end of the yardarm on Dec. 5 and steps off into what is generally hoped will be a sea of temperance, the taxpayers of the country will benefit by his passing to the extent of an immediate 220 million dollars a year.

President Roosevelt announced today that nuisance taxes in that sum will be dropped immediately upon the formal repeal of the eighteenth amendment, and he scouted suggestions that he might stall off the proclamation of the end of prohibition in order to continue those taxes another year.

If the President wanted to throw a bit of sand into the machinery of repeal he could hold off his proclamation until after Jan. 1 and thus, in the opinion of legal experts, continue the nuisance taxes in force for another full year.

Keeps Faith with Voters.

But this, Mr. Roosevelt said today, would not be "good faith," and he asserted his intention of having done with prohibition at the earliest possible date.

On top of this assurance came a curbstone opinion by Attorney General Cummings, delivered in the White House offices, to the effect that the taxes would die automatically anyway.

Mr. Cummings declared that prohibition will be dead and buried for all official purposes on the minute that the thirty-sixth state ratifies the repealer or the twenty-first amendment.

Thus, on Dec. 5, when the last of the three states has held its repeal convention and its convention chairman announces the result of the vote, the law will be dead. Federal prosecutions will cease. The state laws will govern. Beer and booze will flow in whatever manner and degree the state laws allow.

End Automatically on Jan. 1.

And at the same time, in Mr. Cummings' view, the nuisance taxes will be doomed to die on Jan. 1, whether it takes a day, a week, or a month for the formalities of getting a proclamation from the President. The secretaries of the states must certify the result of the conventions to the federal secretary of state, who must certify the fact of the vote of the thirty-sixth state to the President, who then formally proclaims that prohibition is dead, having already been buried on Dec. 5.

The nuisance taxes to be discontinued include an additional half cent tax on gasoline; a five per cent dividend tax, and a five per cent capital stock tax.

Navy to Stay Dry.

The President was asked at this meeting with newspaper men today if he would state his attitude on liquor sales in federal territories. He replied, with a smile, that nothing had been decided on that except that the United States navy would continue to be dry, which was no surprise, inasmuch as the navy has been dry since long before prohibition laws were passed.

Smuggling of foreign liquors will be prevented by the dry navy of the coast guard, the President said, although he denied that any special orders had been issued, and said no new plans for enlarging the guard were contemplated.

Mr. Roosevelt verified that the importations of foreign liquors during the present month will be stepped up to 250,000 gallons, and that later permanent quotas and tariffs would be established which will protect American distillers and the producers of the articles which go into whiskies, wines and beer.

Avoids Liquor Tax Question.

Efforts to inveigle the President into committing himself on what he thought the new federal tax on hard liquor ought to be were wholly in vain. He said that for the period immediately after prohibition dies, the old excise rate of $1.10 a gallon will be applied, but beyond that he would not say. He did say that he thought it ought to be low enough to discourage the bootlegging, and he smiled amiably at a reporter's suggestion that it should not be more than $3 a gallon at the very top.

As for a permanent program, Mr. Roosevelt indicated this was in the lap of the proconsuls at the department of agriculture, who are presently engaged in the drafting of a code for distillers.

This code, it is planned by the President and his agricultural advisers, will be aimed at protecting the public against the evils of the bootleg traffic; at benefiting the farmers who raise American grains used in distilling spirits, and at setting up a temporary control of the liquor industry.

Use State Codes.

The agricultural adjustment administration announced yesterday that control would be attempted through state code committees by setting up regulations for the manufacture and sale of liquor during the interim while states are enacting their own control laws.

This announcement led to an immediate charge that the federal government, through the new type of special laws under which the NRA and the AAA seeks to enforce rules and regulations upon citizens, might be essaying to continue liquor control over the states, even though prohibition has been repealed.

An effort to obtain a ruling on this point, as to whether any such attempt would be made, was parried with a statement that "no decision has been reached." It was pointed out that some states may desire no regulation whatever, either federal or state, and may wish to depend upon local county or township option.

AAA to Aid States.

The AAA announcement disclaimed any intent "to encroach on state's rights through the proposed codes," and declared a purpose "to assist the states in their task of regulating the liquor traffic."

"When a code differs from an existing state law," the announcement stated, "provision can be made for modifying operation of the code to conform with the state statute."

The AAA also showed a disposition to attempt a federal restraint over the return or to permanently banish the saloon.

Harris E. Willingham of Atlanta, Ga., will supervise the drafting of beverage codes, it was announced.

Carrell, Republican, when tabulation ended until Monday. Miller overcame a lead of more than 1,000 votes during the night tabulation. STENCH BOMB AND EGG BARRAGE HURLED AT LONG

Senator Charges Foes Try to Put Ants on Him.

Alexandria, La., Nov. 10.—(AP)—An odorous bomb tonight was dropped from an upper story of a building and a barrage of eggs was tossed in the direction of Senator Huey P. Long as he mounted the city hall steps here to deliver his speech on redistribution of wealth and new tax program. The eggs missed the senator but some broke on the steps.

Senator Long came here in a semi-windup address after warning his audiences at Natchitoches and Leesville not to attempt to heckle him.

Denies Any Disturbances.

"We are not going to stand for anybody tearing up our meetings," the senator declared up state. "They have been sending in hoodlums and criminals but we have had no disturbances."

The senator charged that his enemies "are trying to put ants on me and keep me from going to the senate when congress meets in January."

"Well, I am putting pants on them," he countered, "and they will not keep me busy in Louisiana in January. I'll be in the senate when the bell rings at noon on Jan. 3 and we are going to keep up the fight for redistribution of wealth in this country."

Kingfish Takes Blame.

"I have read that they are trying to blame me for the NRA not working," Long continued. "They blame me for an amendment I put on the national recovery act. I did amend it. I didn't think it should apply to farmers or laboring men who had anything to sell.

"Why, if they had let it stand the way it was, a farm woman couldn't make a sausage without getting a permit as a manufacturer and a farm woman couldn't swap a pail of milk for something she wanted from a neighbor."

Senator Long today claimed credit for putting President Roosevelt in the White House.

The Roosevelt reference was interpolated into a speech advocating redistribution of wealth and seven new taxes for the state of Louisiana. Earlier in the tour Long drew boos when he made critical remarks about the Roosevelt program and the NRA. He since has amended that portion of his speech with a declaration that "I am not against the NRA. I would love to see it work, but I don't think it can."

California Couple Robbed, Kidnaped, Left on Desert

Independence, Cal., Nov. 10.—(AP)—Authorities were searching tonight for two highwaymen who held up Mr. and Mrs. George Glexner of Trona, Cal., robbed them of $250 cash and a $250 ring, and later, when the Glexners gave chase in their own machine, slugged Glexner and took him and his wife to the Mojave desert, where they were abandoned.

Kick Out Curry, Tammany Is Warned by Farley Leader

New York, Nov. 10.—[Special.]—The new Farley-Roosevelt-Flynn recovery party, which went down to defeat in the recent election with Joseph V. McKee as leader, enlisted today for the duration of whatever conflict is necessary to rid the New York county democracy of the leadership of John F. Curry.

Pledging support to James A. Farley, state chairman, and charging that Curry is trying to cover his "arrogant, blundering leadership" in a desperate attempt to keep his place, Thomas I. Sheridan, recovery party manager in Manhattan, announced that the new party organization would be set up in every assembly district on a permanent basis.

Tammany Can't Hope to Win.

Headquarters will be established in each of the 23 districts, leader for the faction recognized and the voters who cast their ballots for Mr. McKee will form the rank and file, enrolling as Democrats to participate in the next Democratic primary. Tammany cannot hope ever to win an election in New York with the party thus split, it is contended, as it was at the polls last Tuesday, and the only solution former Senator Sheridan said was that Curry must go.

At the same time announcement was made that the Knickerbocker Democrats will remain intact, holding together their organization which proved effective in the election to unite in a determined and relentless warfare against the power of Curry's Tammany Hall. Tammany is beaten but not destroyed and the work is only half finished, the directors of the Knickerbocker Democrats stated.

"Battle Only Started."

Mr. Sheridan, after conferring for two days with other leaders of the recovery party, made a statement which said in part:

"As chairman of the recovery party in Manhattan my answer is that our splendid organization will be continued. This battle is only started. It is inspired by the decent men and women who will not tolerate the leadership of Curry.

"The statement emanating from the leader of Tammany Hall blaming State Chairman Farley for O'Brien's defeat has all the earmarks of an alibi. Every one knows that throughout the state great gains were made by the Democratic party because the county leaders advised with the state chairman and went before the voters on the platform of good government that he advocated.

"Tuesday's election accomplished the dethronement of Curry wholly through Curry's own fault. The democracy of the city will be stronger with the elimination of the stupidity and arrogance that have marked his career as leader of Tammany Hall."

BRITISH HIGHWAY BANDITS SEIZE REGISTERED MAIL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 10.—A highway robbery early today netted nine bags of registered mail for four automobile bandits who waylaid a truck on a lonely Kent roadside, slugged the driver, rifled the pouches, and escaped while the victim lay unconscious, bound and gagged in a nearby ditch.

The value of the loot cannot be determined until the registered mail records are gone over and the senders of missing letters and parcels are interviewed.

Circumstances point to the conclusion that the desperadoes were fully supplied with information enabling them to carry out the coup without a hitch.

OUTLAW TEAMING CHIEFS AGREE TO JOIN RIVAL GROUP

Mayor Kelly Brings End to Gangster Domination.

The healing of a breach which has existed for twenty-six years between the federated and independent teamster unions of Chicago was seen yesterday as the result of mediation by Mayor Kelly.

In the presence of the mayor and State's Attorney Courtney leaders of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, representing the federated group, met with business agents of independent locals now affiliated with the outlaw unions headed by Mike Galvin and John Sheridan, and signed a peace pact at the Criminal Court building.

By terms of the pact agents of the independent locals will urge their 21,000 members to sign up with the international, as the mayor has been asking them to do since last summer. They agree to submit their books to an audit by the international, the charge having been made that their treasuries have been badly depleted by gangster affiliations of the old Galvin-Sheridan leadership.

Most Officers to Be Retained.

For their part the international leaders are pledged to receive the independent locals into membership without imposing initiation fees, increasing the present dues, or removing any officers excepting those whom Mr. Courtney deems undesirable.

Representing the international at the meeting were Daniel J. Tobin of Indianapolis, international president; John M. Gillespie of Indianapolis, general organizer; Thomas L. Hughes of Indianapolis, general secretary, and Leslie G. Goudie of Chicago, president of the teamsters' joint council and chairman of the regional labor advisory board of the NRA.

All to Be in Same Union.

With the renunciation by these locals of former affiliations with Sheridan's Chicago Teamsters' union and Galvin's General Teamsters' union, all union teamsters in the city and vicinity will be under one responsible authority, the mayor said. Some of the Sheridan-Galvin locals, notably those in the city employ, had previously taken the same step.

The feud between the two organizations began in 1907 when the international leaders of that day called a national strike, which Sheridan, Galvin and other Chicago leaders refused to follow because of their charge that the international leaders had "sold them out."

Acclaimed for their courage at the time, Galvin and Sheridan kept their men at work, and within two years organized their respective unions, which had close affiliations and wielded great influence ever since. Of late years, however, both organizations have been beset by gangsters, among them George [Red] Barker, William [Klondike] O'Donnell, Three-fingered Jack White, and Marcus [Studdy] Looney.

Upon taking office, both the mayor and state's attorney pledged their efforts to drive the gangsters out. The present action is a redemption of that pledge, the mayor declared.

BIDS TO BE ASKED FOR HALF MILLION WORTH OF SEIZED LIQUORS

New York, Nov. 10.—[Special.]—Federal authorities here expect to ask for sealed bids within the next ten days on 20,000 cases of confiscated liquor stored at the army base in Brooklyn, it was learned today.

The lot to be sold soon, which is valued at $500,000, is only part of the seizures stored at the army base. In all there are about 111,000 cases of assorted liquors with an estimated value of $3,000,000.

Only holders of medicinal permits will be allowed to submit bids for the liquor and the entire lot must be bid for.

600 CHICKENS ARE PERILED BY FIRE ON LASKER FARM

More than 600 white Leghorn chickens were endangered last night by fire which attacked a large, model chicken house on the Mill road farm of Albert D. Lasker in Lake Forest. Mr. Lasker is the former head of the United States Shipping board.

The fire, the result of an overheated stove, started in the center of the house. However, it swept away from the section where most of the chickens were roosting, and as a result only 12 chickens were killed. A valuable German Police dog was found unconscious on the floor of the hen house and saved by Fire Chief George Larson of Lake Forest.

Chief Larson estimated the damage at $700. He and his firemen feared for a while that the stables, 150 feet north of the chicken house, and a house 50 feet to the east would be endangered.

Emil J. Wentzlaff Gets 1 to 10 Years in Prison

Emil J. Wentzlaff, once secretary to a former Republican mayor, was sentenced yesterday by Chief Justice Philip L. Wentzlaff, a former receiver for the Boulevard State Savings bank, pleaded guilty Thursday to taking $9,029 of the bank funds. Judge Sullivan rejected Wentzlaff's plea for probation.

DUKE AWARDED $2,000,000 SHARE IN OLD TREASURE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Nov. 10.—A 65 year old litigation was ended today when the Leipzig Supreme court ordered the Prussian state to pay $2,000,000 [at par] to the duke of Brunswick as his share of the "Guelph treasure" confiscated by Prussia when he was dethroned as king of Hanover.

The Guelph treasure consisted of 82 pieces of medieval ecclesiastical objects. The first pieces were collected in the twelfth century by Duke Henry, Lion of Brunswick, who was the great Guelph prince adversary of the Ghibelline emperor, Frederick Barbarossa. They were reliquaries and holy vessels wrought by German craftsmen to encase Christian relics brought back from the crusades. One held a tooth of St. John and another a bone of St. Christina. The Ghibellines were opponents of the papacy, the Guelphs defenders. The last piece added to the collection was in 1483.

Three art dealers of Germany purchased the collection for $3,000,000 and offered it for sale in the United States in 1930. It was exhibited at the Chicago Art institute in April, 1931. The sale broke up the collection as a unit. The dukes of Brunswick had held it together in Hanover for more than 500 years. The present duke is a son-in-law of the ex-kaiser, having married his only daughter, Victoria Louise.

BILLY SKIDMORE BUYS PISTAKEE BAY HOME AND M'HENRY FARM

William R. [Billy] Skidmore, who has sometimes been suspected of doing the political fixing for gambling houses or even gambling syndicates, but who asserts that he is just a dealer in old metals, is one of the latest Chicagoans to become a country squire.

On Sept. 18 Mr. Skidmore purchased for $14,600 a summer home at Pistakee bay. On Oct. 31 he added to his holdings a 260 acre farm three miles northeast of McHenry. The consideration was not stated, but revenue stamps on the trustee deed indicated a cash payment of $21,500. It was reported by one of his friends that the farm, as a matter of fact, was valued around $75,000.

Investigation yesterday disclosed that Mr. Skidmore is taking his squiring seriously. Twenty men are working on improvements to his McHenry estate, on which there are 72 head of live stock, mostly Holstein and brown Swiss cows. Some of the Swisses were purchased from the farm formerly owned by Samuel Insull in Lake county. Mr. Skidmore also owns a noted bull that was in the Insull herd.

Henry M. Smith, superintendent for Mr. Skidmore, said that when the improvements are completed the farm will specialize in the production of certified milk for the Chicago market.

ARREST CHICAGO WALLINGFORD ON FRAUD CHARGES

$500,000 Loss Through Fake Bonds Alleged.

Frederick Van Ness Person, 48 years old, described by the state's attorney's office as a high-pressure stock salesman of the "Get-Rich-Quick-Wallingford" type, was arrested yesterday in a loop hotel. He is alleged to have realized more than $500,000 through sales of spurious securities.

Assistant State's Attorneys James Cherry, Eugene J. O'Connor, and William J. Lynch called at the hotel and sent word to his room that they were prospective purchasers of some of his stocks. When Person met them in the lobby, they arrested him on a warrant issued Thursday by Municipal Judge Matthew D. Hartigan, charging violation of the Illinois securities [blue sky] act.

Judge Hartigan had fixed a bond of $5,000 for Person, and his attorney, Joseph Lawlor, went before the judge on a motion to reduce the bond, which was refused.

Police Lock Him Up.

Person was locked up in the First district police station. He is the president of the Terrill Bond and Mortgage company, which occupied the entire 8th floor at 40 North La Salle street. His operations, according to Mr. O'Connor, consisted principally of the sale of first class bonds, followed by later solicitations, which were usually successful, to exchange those bonds for worthless debentures of his own company.

According to the three prosecutors, Person made a specialty of victimizing Catholic priests, to whom he sold his securities for various parish endowment funds. In West Virginia, Mr. Cherry said, complaints have been filed that he obtained a total of $400,000 from priests in various cities.

Person, they said, habitually drove about in a 16 cylinder automobile, with a liveried chauffeur. He attempted to put his deals through by high pressure methods within a few days, and then moved swiftly and secretly to new pastures.

Judge Issues Injunction.

Circuit Judge Joseph Burke issued an injunction in January, on the petition of the attorney general of Illinois, restraining the Terrill Bond & Mortgage Co. from operating, on the grounds that it was selling unqualified securities. These securities, Mr. Cherry said, included $48,000 worth of common stock in the company itself, which was sold locally. This stock has no assets behind it, Mr. Cherry charged.

After the injunction was issued, he said, the name of the concern was changed to the Chicago Real Estate Bond exchange. The secretary of state refused it a license as a security dealer under the Illinois act, and Person now has mandamus proceedings in a Springfield court seeking to compel the issuance of the license. A receivership petition against the Terrill company, charging fraudulent stock sales, is pending in the Circuit court.

Sells Airplane Stock.

Person first came to the attention of Chicago police in 1916, when he was arrested on the complaint of San Francisco business men who charged that he misrepresented the value of airplane company stock which he sold to them, and asserted that the company had government contracts which it did not possess.

Claire Windsor Is Granted Retrial of $75,000 Love Suit

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 10.—(AP)—Deciding the $75,000 judgment awarded Mrs. Marian T. Read, Oakland matron, against Claire Windsor, film actress, for the alienation of Mrs. Read's former husband was "excessive and unreasonable," Superior Judge J. P. Sproul granted the actress a new trial today.

The judgment was awarded Mrs. Read several weeks ago by a Superior court jury following a sensational trial during which the actress' associations with Alfred C. Read, handsome Oakland broker, were aired.

Mrs. Read had sued for $100,000, charging the blonde Miss Windsor with stealing Read's love.

Judge at First Trial.

Miss Windsor's attorney immediately petitioned for a new trial, and it was on this petition Judge Sproul, who heard the first trial, acted in granting her a second hearing. Accompanying his decision was a lengthy statement explaining on what he based his action.

"Under all the circumstances disclosed by the record in this case," his statement said, "I am constrained to hold that the verdict in the sum of $75,000 was so excessive and unreasonable as to raise the presumption of passion and prejudice.

"The courts have often expressed a reluctance to reduce even excessive verdicts in actions for alienation of affections because of the lack of rational basis upon which to fix the proper amount.

New Evidence Discovered.

"But the same reason does not apply to the granting of a new trial where the verdict is palpably unreasonable. And, particularly in this case where new evidence has been discovered as shown by the affidavits on file herein, among which one relates that Read obtained nearly $10,000 from Miss Windsor to invest in a business project, and it further appears from said affidavits that plaintiff's former husband knew he could obtain more money from Defendant Windsor if needed.

"In view of the newly discovered evidence, and after carefully considering all circumstances and evidence in this case, the court has reached the conclusion that the ends of justice would be best served by granting a new trial."

State Expects to Prevent Gangsters' Release.

Frank Souder, one of the gang classed as "gentlemanly" kidnapers for ransom, but who were not averse to torturing their victims, was ready yesterday to furnish $100,000 bail for his release.

The authorities who are carrying on the war against the kidnapers on all fronts were confident, however, that neither Souder nor Gale Swolley nor Julian [Babe] Jones, other prisoners, would be released on bail, as the crime of kidnaping for ransom carries the death penalty as the maximum punishment in Illinois. State's Attorney Courtney and his assistant, Mal Coghlan, said they were proceeding slowly and carefully in building a case to present to a jury.

Hunt Other Gang Members.

They hoped soon to have in custody the others wanted as members of the gang which for a time terrified Chicago. "Handsome Jack" Klutes, leader of the gang which vied with the Touhy gang for victims who could pay big money for their release; Edward La Rue, and a man named Gallagher of Joliet are the men hunted.

The success in solving the kidnaping of John [Jake the Barber] Factor and obtaining the indictment of members of the Touhy gang for that crime spurred the state's attorney, police, and government operatives toward a cleanup of the other outstanding kidnapings—those of James Hackett, Blue Island gambler, and John J. Lynch, racing news publisher.

Pat Roche, private detective who was chief investigator for former State's Attorney Swanson, was aiding the authorities and his activities took him to Joliet yesterday, while Capt. Dan Gilbert, chief investigator for State's Attorney Courtney, was seeking evidence and aid in Aurora.

Ready to Give $100,000 Bail.

In the Blue Island police station, Souder, the one prisoner to be formally charged with the kidnaping of Hackett, conferred with Attorney George Crane and said he would be able to furnish $100,000 bail within one or two days. Blue Island policemen recognized him as a former booze runner between Chicago and Detroit, and he admitted it.

"But, really, I can't discuss my case with any one," the kidnaping suspect told police and newspaper men. "Of course, I am not guilty.

"Souder, Jones, and Swolley are not of the gangster type," explained Prosecutor Coghlan. "All are well educated and speak properly and politely. When I questioned Souder he answered me:

"'You'll pardon me if I refrain from making further statements. Of course you realize the danger of my position. If our positions were reversed you would unhesitatingly take the position I now have and I am sure you will not hold it against me.'

Deserts His Companions.

"No gangster jargon from them. They call themselves business men. La Rue, one of the companions of the men arrested, quit them after the first few kidnapings.

"'Kidnaping is too low for a self-respecting bank robber,' he told them."

Souder is to be arraigned today before Police Magistrate Carl J. Carlson in Blue Island and the state will ask a continuance of a week. A writ was threatened in behalf of Jones, but the prosecutor's office refused to hurry the case. Mr. Courtney said the prosecution would take the ordinary routine—preliminary hearing in police court, then grand jury action.

A University Graduate.

Government agents, who last July had held Jones and Souder for investigation in certain kidnapings, gave a brief history of Klutes and La Rue. Klutes, they said, is a graduate of the University of Illinois.

He is wanted on a charge of murder in Washington, Ia. On June 20, 1920, he was caught with a load of whisky and a revolver was taken from him. He had another up his sleeve and with it he killed a deputy sheriff, the agents said. He is wanted for kidnaping in Des Moines, Ia., for two automobile thefts in Peoria, and also as a bootlegger.

La Rue, known as "The Doll," is from St. Louis and is wanted by the government for transporting stolen autos. He forfeited a bond at Peoria.

A picture of Souder was identified by Sheriff John Ehrler at Galena as a man arrested a year ago for kidnaping Clem Maguire of Dubuque, brother-in-law of United States Senator Louis Murphy of Iowa. He had in his pocket a safety deposit box key taken from Maguire but Maguire refused to identify him, Sheriff Ehrler said.

Factor Faces U. S. Tax Action.

While the authorities are awaiting the prosecution of Factor's kidnapers, four of whom are now on trial in St. Paul, Minn., for the kidnaping of William Hamm Jr., wealthy St. Paul brewer, the government yesterday took steps to collect income tax from Factor. It is alleged that Factor owes the government more than $500,000 incomes taxes for three years, but Factor's lawyer, G. Gale Gilbert Jr., said Factor was in England those three years and his income was on investments there.

The British government is trying to extradite Factor to stand trial in London on charges of obtaining $7,000,000 from British investors in fraudulent stock sales. One report from Washington yesterday was that the government had ordered a lien placed against Factor's property in Chicago.

This was denied here, but it was admitted that negotiations for the collection of a tax were under way. A decision is expected soon from the United States Supreme court on whether Factor must go to England for trial.

"The contention of the United States government that I owe any income tax is amusing," Factor said. "The money on which they contend I owe taxes was money earned in England. My lawyers inform me that a payment of taxes on that money would be illegal. Relying on the advice of attorneys I have paid all taxes due on money I have earned in this country."

Factor Gets Threat Letter.

Factor yesterday received a threatening letter, crudely written in pencil on a cheap ruled paper, warning him that his head "would be blown off" if he persisted in his identification of the Touhy gangsters as the men who held him for ransom. The letter was turned over to Melvin Purvis, agent in charge of the United States bureau of investigation. The letter was unsigned and bore a Chicago postmark. Despite the receipt of the letter Factor told Purvis he intended to testify at the trial and would identify the men.

Factor was held captive by the Touhy gang in a house at Elm and Fir streets in the western portion of Glenview. Yesterday it was learned that Chief of Police J. V. Miller of Glenview lives only a few hundred feet away from the place of Factor's captivity. Chief Miller said he had no occasion to be suspicious of the people who rented the house shortly before the Factor kidnaping.

Kidnapers Demand $40,000 for Missing California Man

San Jose, Cal., Nov. 10.—(AP)—Ransom of $40,000 is demanded of Alexander J. Hart, wealthy merchant, for the return of his 22 year old son, Brooke Hart, the object of a statewide hunt as a kidnaping victim.

An anonymous telephone caller said the money must be paid "if you want to see your boy alive again," but gave no instructions as to the manner of payment.

One of the most formidable kidnap hunting organizations ever called into action in northern California, was pursuing clews in the case tonight.

Department of justice agents, the police of San Francisco and San Jose and peace officers of the entire bay district united in the hunt a few hours after the disappearance of young Hart after he left the department store in which he recently had been made a partner with his father.

Questioned and Freed.

San José police picked up Tony Barcelona, 25, asserted underworld character, for questioning, but released him after several hours of apparently fruitless examination.

San Francisco police said they had no clews, but Captain of Detectives Charles Dullea stated he had been informed that the abductors would get in touch with the Hart family some time today and that his force was awaiting such a development.

Search of the Calaveras dam area, 25 miles northeast of here, was made in the hope of picking up the trail of the young merchant. His motor car, its lights still burning, was found early today on a road leading to that district, in which many deserted cottages are located.

Seek to Trace Call.

The elder Hart remained silent as to the ransom demand and what his course would be. He received a telephone call from San Francisco four hours after young Hart's disappearance, demanding the ransom. The call was traced to a public booth in a large San Francisco hotel, but no one could be found who had seen its originator.

Young Hart, who recently left his studies at Santa Clara university to become junior partner of the father, was last seen departing from the store shortly before 6 p. m. yesterday. His failure to return home caused a search to be started. Later the elder Hart received the telephone call.

Associates said young Hart was of regular habits and not particularly fond of the company of girls, although occasionally he had attended college functions with Miss Jane Hammond of Sacramento, a student of San Jose State college.

The missing youth has a brother, Alexander Hart Jr., and two sisters, Elyse and Miriam, all younger than himself.

VIRGIL KIRKLAND MUST REMAIN IN PRISON, IS RULING

Judge Charles Jensen in the Porter county court at Valparaiso, Ind., yesterday overruled a petition to free Virgil Kirkland from the penitentiary where he is serving a sentence of one to ten years for his part in the murder of Arlene Draves, a Gary schoolgirl. The petition asserted that Kirkland's conviction was illegal since, although he was indicted for murder, a jury found him guilty of assault with intent to kill.

Attorney O. D. Thiel, counsel for Kirkland argued before Judge Jensen that his client should have been indicted on the charge upon which he was convicted. John Underwood, Lake county deputy prosecutor who was one of the staff of state's attorneys who tried Kirkland three years ago, stated that in accepting the jury's verdict Kirkland's attorney waived his right to present such a petition. Judge Jensen upheld this view.

Mary McElroy, Kidnap Victim, Enters Hospital

Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 10.—(AP)—Miss Mary McElroy, daughter of City Manager Henry F. McElroy, has been admitted to a hospital as a result, physicians said, of strain of the recent trial of George McGee, convicted as one of her kidnapers.

WM. H. MALONE'S THEATER SOUGHT BY BONDHOLDERS

The Chicago Title and Trust company, as trustee for owners of a $350,000 bond issue, yesterday filed suit in the Circuit court to foreclose on the Pickwick theater building in Park Ridge, owned by William H. Malone.

Malone, former chairman of the state tax commission, was recently indicted by a federal grand jury on charges of income tax evasion. He and his wife were abroad when the indictment was returned, and are now said to be staying in Germany. The foreclosure bill charges that the couple, both of whom signed the bonds, are insolvent, and that the building itself "is scant and meager security for the amount secured by the trust deed."

July interest payments on the bonds were defaulted. The foreclosure bill charges that rentals of the building, which contains a number of offices in addition to the theater, were diverted from payment of the bonds, and that taxes for 1930 and 1931 have not been paid. County Judge Jarecki recently appointed a receiver to collect delinquent taxes under the Kerner-Skarda act for another of Malone's buildings in Park Ridge.

CANADA REJECTS U. S. CURRENCY IN POSTOFFICES

OTTAWA, Nov. 10.—(AP)—Because the American dollar has fallen below par in relation to Canadian money, Canadian postmasters were instructed today not to accept United States currency. The order applies to the 13,000 postoffices throughout the country.

The Canadian dollar today fluctuated at a premium of one-sixteenth to three-sixteenths over the American dollar.

Under statutory regulations, Canadian postoffices have been limited to accepting "legal tender of Canada" in the past, but when the American dollar was at a premium this law was observed only in spirit and United States currency was accepted and the premium added to the postoffice receipts.

When the American dollar went below par yesterday, postmasters were reminded of the "legal tender" provision of the law which resulted in United States currency being refused. The refusal order will affect postoffices at border points such as Windsor, Ontario.

HAMM IDENTIFIES McFADDEN AS ONE OF HIS KIDNAPERS

Woman Member of Gang, Brewer Testifies.

St. Paul, Minn., Nov. 10.—(AP)—An unidentified woman was injected into the Hamm abduction trial today as the St. Paul millionaire "put the finger" on a suspected kidnaper and identified three ransom notes in a jammed, heavily guarded federal courtroom.

William Hamm Jr., who paid $100,000 for his freedom last June, testified a woman was at the house where he was held prisoner almost four days. She met his captors as they brought him there late at night, he said.

Earlier the star witness for the government, surveying four Chicago gangsters charged with his abduction, walked from the witness box to Eddie "Father" McFadden, and, in a slow drawl, said:

"This man resembled the older man." Hamm's long finger pointed to within six inches of McFadden's chest while the bald defendant squinted through steel rimmed spectacles at his accuser.

"That Is the Man."

Later Hamm said, "That is the man" when asked if McFadden was one of two men who accosted him a block away from his brewery offices shortly after noon June 15 last and forced him into an automobile.

It was a dramatic moment in the trial of McFadden, Roger Touhy, Willie Sharkey, and Gustav "Gloomy Gus" Schaefer, charged with kidnaping him for ransom, and followed the wealthy brewer's story of the four days he was held prisoner.

Three ransom notes, entered as exhibits by George Sullivan, United States district attorney, were shown Hamm later. He identified the signatures as his own, penned on the missives the day he was snatched near the Theo. Hamm Brewing company, of which he was president, and while his captors stopped their automobile about 30 miles outside the city limits.

Hamm said he rode about twelve hours. The seven passenger sedan in which he rode stopped a second time "in a field somewhere" and arrived about midnight at a house.

Sees Wisconsin Signs.

During the night ride he said he espied a sign bearing the names "Beloit and Janesville and, I think, the numerals 20-30."

He also saw another sign, he said, which he believed read "Chicago 12."

He identified a picture of the location of the sign, but failed to identify a picture of two signs, observing, "I thought there was only one sign when I saw it before."

After leaving the main paved highway the driver, Hamm said, made three turns and drew up to the back stairs of a house about an hour and a half later. There was a light in the window, he testified, and he was led up the stairs into a bedroom on the second floor.

One of his captors cautioned the driver to "slow down" as they approached the house, Hamm continued. Asked if any one met them there, the brewer replied:

"Yes, a woman was in the house."

Court adjourned at this point until 10 a. m. Monday.

Hamm said he believed one of the men left the party the first time they stopped and that another one took his place. Three men were in the car during his ride out of town.

A hood was over his head during the first part of the ride and it was raised sufficiently for him to sign the notes during the first five minute stop. Later his eyes were covered with goggles lined with cotton, he testified.

District Attorney Sullivan, in his opening statement, told the story of the kidnaping and then outlined further evidence he proposes to present.

"The evidence will show that Roger Touhy was in the Thomas drug store on the outskirts of the city June 15 and placed a note in one of the booths in which people eat ice cream. And the evidence also will show that later Roger Touhy telephoned the drug store representing himself as W. W. Dunn, sales manager of the Theodore Hamm Brewing company, and told the proprietor that he dropped a note in one of the booths. He asked the proprietor to take it out to his home, which the proprietor did.

"Evidence also will be introduced to show that on Saturday night, June 17, $100,000 was placed in a leather briefcase, tied with a string and handed to Mr. Dunn. He drove up highway No. 1 and acting under instructions, pushed the money out of the car onto the highway."

Sullivan named Sharkey as the driver of the kidnapers' automobile.

M. F. Kinkead, local county attorney, was added to the prosecutors' staff today.

Five farmers, one of whom milks 20 cows a day; two housewives, and five other men, were chosen jurors. Two alternates were picked also.

DR. NATHANSON IS ACQUITTED OF ABORTION KILLING

Dr. Frank L. Nathanson was acquitted of a charge of murder by abortion by a jury before Judge Walter B. Steffen of the Criminal court last night. The verdict came after a little more than three hours of deliberation. The death penalty had been sought.

A few minutes before the verdict was read Dr. Nathanson walked up to Assistant State's Attorneys Earl Hurley and Philip Treacy and shook their hands. Only a short time before both had demanded that the jury send him to the electric chair. Dr. Nathanson and his attorney, Cameron Latter, also thanked the jurors for their verdict.

Dr. Nathanson was accused of causing the death of Mrs. Ruth Baccus of Stockton, Ill., who died on Jan. 16 in his office at 3846 West Madison street. Former office employes testified that Dr. Nathanson had ordered them to "get rid" of the Stockton woman's body and to hide the surgical instruments. Dr. Nathanson denied he had performed an operation. Mrs. Baccus' husband, Joe, aided him by testifying his wife had admitted to him that she had operated upon herself.

KERNER TO TAKE SMALL CASE TO SUPREME COURT

Attorney General Kerner's attempt to obtain a complete accounting from Len Small for interest collected on state funds while Small was state treasurer will be carried to the Illinois Supreme court. Judge Hugo M. Friend recently announced his decision to dismiss for lack of jurisdiction the petition seeking to reopen the old case.

"As this is a case of the people of Illinois," said the attorney general yesterday, "I shall take it directly to the Supreme court after Judge Friend enters his order. But first I shall seek a decision in the similar case pending against Fred E. Sterling, so that if it becomes necessary, the two may be taken up together.

"The Sterling case is before Judge Philip J. Finnegan, but as he is now sitting in the Criminal court I shall go before some judge sitting in chancery next Tuesday and ask that the case be assigned to a chancellor so that it may be considered immediately."

CHICAGO'S OWN HOLIDAY BENEFIT TO INCORPORATE

Articles of incorporation for Chicago's Own Christmas Benefit, created by Mayor Kelly to dispense charity at Christmas time to the needy families in Chicago, have been submitted to the secretary of state, according to an announcement yesterday by Col. A. A. Sprague, secretary of the organization.

The benefit is to be held at the Chicago Stadium on Dec. 20. Stars of the screen, stage and radio will provide entertainment. From the sales of seats for the show, its sponsors hope to raise more than $100,000 for Chicago's destitute families. The charter members of the organization are Mayor Kelly, Col. Sprague, Barnet Hodes, state tax commissioner, and D. F. Kelly.

"The benefit already has enlisted the sympathy of a large number of Chicago business men," said Commissioner Hodes. "We have received hundreds of letters offering assistance, and because of this cooperation it has been decided to perpetuate the benefit regardless of personnel."

CITY JOINS PIPE LINE CASE; MINES HIT LOW GAS RATE

The city council utilities committee headed by Ald. B. A. The pipe line company receives gas from the natural gas fields of the southwest and wholesales it to People's Gas and allied gas companies in this area. The company has been ordered by the state commerce commission to lower its rates and the company is seeking a federal injunction against the lower rate.

JEWELERS FIGHT BARNETT'S MOVE TO WIN PAROLE

Join with Crime Board in Protest to Horner.

The Chicago Jewelers' association and the Chicago crime commission joined yesterday in protesting to Gov. Horner and the state parole board against freeing Maurice A. Barnett, former downtown jeweler, who is now seeking parole from a one to five year prison sentence without having spent a day in jail.

Convicted 32 months ago in a plot to defraud an insurance company by staging a fake jewel holdup, Barnett had since evaded prison by appeals to various courts until his last resource was exhausted last Tuesday by the refusal of the state Supreme court to reopen the case on the grounds of newly discovered evidence. In the interval his co-defendants, Mrs. Laura B. Price, former wife of a wealthy woodenware manufacturer, and Max Krakow, former loop jeweler, have served sentences of six months each and have been released.

Calls Barnett a Fence.

The protest of the Jewelers' association, addressed to Gov. Horner by its president, Louis G. Buss, branded Barnett as an "insurance defrauder and jewel thieves' fence," and declared that Barnett's friends of the underworld were working for his parole. The association asserted that Sheriff Meyering's force had been delinquent in failing to arrest him since his conviction was affirmed.

The parole hearing itself, which Assistant State's Attorney Charles J. Mueller termed "most unusual," is scheduled for next Tuesday. Mr. Mueller, who directed the prosecution of Barnett, declared that in every other parole case within his knowledge the petitioner had been required to serve at least his minimum sentence before seeking parol.

"Maurice A. Barnett, a comparatively obscure marauder, the vicious leader of a conspiracy to defraud insurance companies, and contact man for jewelry fences who make it possible for jewel thieves to thrive, is still at liberty and defies the arms of justice to punish him," Mr. Buss wrote the governor. "This in spite of a conviction and sentence sustained by the Supreme court in two separate appeals.

Jubilant Over Conviction.

"The jewelry trade, which has repeatedly been victimized, followed the Barnett case with profound interest. It was jubilant over the signal victory that seemed to have been won, a victory which meant that henceforth jewelry fences and jewelry bandits had better beware lest a similar fate befall them.

"But the underworld influences are apparently at work again to frustrate the consequences of that conviction. We have been advised, quite by accident, that Barnett's 'friends' have now invoked the Illinois board of pardons and paroles, and that a hearing has been set for next Tuesday.

"Barnett's accomplices were previously convicted, and have served their terms. Barnett, the leader and brains of the organization, is still at large, although the Supreme court has twice sustained his conviction and ordered him to jail. Why has he not been apprehended and sent to jail? Although Barnett is available, the sheriff's office has made no serious effort to seize him.

"We are calling this matter to your attention because we feel sure that you would not knowingly or willingly permit such an audacious assault upon the dignity of this state as is contemplated by the defiant attitude of Barnett in seeking a pardon or parole. We trust that your intervention, if that be possible, will prevent this travesty on justice."

Tells History of Case.

The crime commission sent the parole board a history of the case. It stated that, according to the evidence at the trial, Barnett conceived the plot for faking the robbery and loaned Mrs. Price jewels from his own stock to increase the premium the insurance company would have to pay. The commission recalled that after his conviction and appeal to the Appellate and Supreme court, Barnett applied for a writ of coram nobis before Judge Harry M. Fisher, who considered the case for seven months before ruling against Barnett.

WIDOW BEATEN AND ROBBED OF $2,026 IN HOME

Mrs. Ida Greenberg, 48 years old, a widow, was beaten into unconsciousness and robbed of $2,026 yesterday by three men who invaded the apartment where she lives at 1320 South Kedvale avenue.

The money, Mrs. Greenberg told police, represented her savings for the last ten years. She lives with a son and his wife on the third floor of the building where the robbery took place.

The men rang the bell on the rear door and forced their way in with revolvers when she answered it. She was alone at the time. One of them struck her down with the butt of his gun, rendering her unconscious. When she recovered the men were gone and had taken with them the money, which she had hidden in a china closet. They knew where it was, she believes.

WIFE KILLED AS AUTOIST SWERVES TO AVERT CRASH

Mrs. Ellen Swanson, 65 years old, 7505 Stony Island avenue, was fatally injured last night when her husband, Henry, lost control of his automobile at 75th and Stony Island avenue, and the machine crashed into a lamp post at the corner. Mrs. Swanson was flung from the machine and died in Jackson Park hospital shortly afterward.

Swanson, who owns a restaurant, was not injured. He told Grand Crossing police that a motorist traveling east on 75th street turned in front of him at the intersection and forced him to swerve sharply and lose control. The police are searching for the other motorist, who drove rapidly away.

The death of Mrs. Swanson increased the Cook county motor toll to 938 since Jan. 1.

Mrs. Laura Wendt, 31 years old, of Algonquin, McHenry county, was killed yesterday in a collision between her car and a motor truck in Route 22, Algonquin. Henry Werrback, 22, of Woodstock, driver of the truck, said that as he was driving downhill, she approached uphill on the wrong side of the road and hit him. He was later arrested, and released, on a warrant charging him with manslaughter which was obtained by Mrs. Wendt's husband, Will.

Bad Weather Delays Lindbergh.

GENEVA, Nov. 10.—(AP)—Bad weather kept Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and his wife in Geneva today. They had planned to take off on the next flight of their European tour, but it is understood that they now will leave tomorrow or Sunday.

MINNEAPOLIS CHICAGO ST. PAUL

ARMISTICE DAY CEREMONIES TO CENTER AT FAIR

Parade, Sham Battle and Speeches on Program.

BY EARL MULLIN.

Armistice day will be celebrated at the Fair today, the last formal ceremony preceding the closing at midnight tomorrow. For the first time since the Fair opened all activity will come to a halt at 11 a. m. today, when visitors, employés and showmen face the east in commemoration of the end of hostilities fifteen years ago.

Included in the Armistice day ceremonies are a military parade and review, including not only the military units at the Fair, but also a majority of the American Legion units in Chicago, a gigantic fireworks display in the evening and a formal program at 10 a. m. in the Court of States.

193 Legion Groups to Parade.

Troops from Camp Whistler and marchers representing 193 American Legion posts in Cook county will form near the 14th street gate at 9 o'clock to await Harry H. Woodring, assistant secretary of war, who will arrive on a Baltimore and Ohio train at 8:05 o'clock this morning to be the principal speaker at the exercises. The assistant secretary will receive a salute of 17 guns. After he has inspected the units the parade will proceed to the Court of States.

Some 20,000 persons are expected to attend the formal program at the Court of States. In addition to Woodring speakers will include Gov. Horner, Mayor Kelly and Emmett Whealan, president of the county board. The invocation will be given by Bishop George Craig Stewart of the Episcopal diocese of Chicago and the benediction by the Rev. H. A. Darsch of Bradley, Ill., a former national chaplain of the American Legion. The program will be concluded with the blowing of taps.

Troops from Camp Whistler will engage in a sham battle along the board walk beside the north lagoon from 4 to 4:30 o'clock this afternoon.

Little Ceremony at Closing.

Closing ceremonies tomorrow will be of the simplest. There will be none of the pomp and ceremony that characterized the closing days of the Columbian Exposition.

The first building to close its doors will be the Federal building. A reception to invited guests by Harry S. New, United States commissioner, will precede the closing ceremonies. At 5:45 p. m. troops from Camp Whistler will form for retreat, a salute will be fired and the flag hauled down. At 6 p. m. all the doors of the building will be locked and the official closing of the Exposition will be under way. Most of the other exhibits will remain open until 10 p. m. as usual.

Probably the two most impressive ceremonies of the day will be the final Arcturus lighting ceremony at 5 p. m. and the fireworks program at midnight. Fair, city and state officials will attend both ceremonies and a short program of speeches will be broadcast at midnight. Visitors will be permitted to visit the general exhibitions until 10 p. m. and the concessions and cafes will operate as late as the crowds warrant.

No Sightseers in Winter.

As soon as the gates are closed tomorrow night the Exposition will officially be at an end. During the winter all activity will cease and, contrary to last year's precedent, the grounds will be closed to sightseeing visitors. Early in the spring activity will be resumed, building up the Fair for next year, which opens on June 1.

The army units at Camp Whistler, detailed for military receptions during the Exposition, will break camp and return to their home bases early next week, commanding officers announced last night.

The military detachments, including cavalry, infantry, and artillery units, are from Fort Sheridan and Jefferson Barracks, Mo. President Dawes of the Fair last night commended the officers for the manner in which the units have coöperated with the Fair.

More Visitors Arrive Today.

Despite the cold weather and late date, visitors continue to come into Chicago from distant states. The Pennsylvania railroad this morning will bring in more than a thousand visitors from the southern states, using one special train and several special coaches and regular runs. Attendance yesterday set the record low mark of the year with 19,83 admissions at 11:30 p. m.

The only formal ceremony on yesterday's program was the military reception and salute accorded to Edward Prochnick, Austrian minister to the United States. He was given a 15 gun salute and was honor guest at a luncheon in the Administration building.

VOICE DIVERGENT OPINIONS OF SIDE SHOWS AT FAIR

Divergent views regarding concessions at the World's Fair were expressed by speakers at a luncheon meeting of the Woman's City club yesterday devoted to the subject of recreation.

"I'm not so prudish, being a woman, or so outraged as most of the men seem to be against the side shows in the World's Fair," said the chairman, Mrs. Jennie F. Purvis, for the last 20 years active in recreational and beach work. "I enjoyed some of the shows in the Streets of Paris from an artistic standpoint. Others, of course, should be eliminated next year."

Philip L. Seman, chairman of the recreation committee of the City club, declared: "I've made it my business to go to a large number of the side shows at the World's Fair, and they should be eliminated next year. I was tremendously discouraged and disgusted by them."

"Mr. Seman took in more than I did," said George T. Donoghue, superintendent of the south parks, the next speaker. "I confess I have not seen any of the shows in question. Our good mayor went down one night and saw them, and asked that I begin a system of supervision, which we did. A Century of Progress was equipped with police and could have stopped the shows, but feared damage suits."

GREECE DEFENDS ACTION OF COURT IN FREEING INSULL

ATHENS, Greece, Nov. 10.—(AP)—The action of a Greek court in refusing to permit the extradition of Samuel Insull to Chicago to stand trial on charges of fraudulent bankruptcy was defended, it was learned today, in a note from the Greek government replying to the United States protest against the verdict.

The note pointed out that Greek justice, according to the country's constitution, is entirely separate from the government.

The communication maintained that law courts have the right to go into the substance of accusations and try cases, and also stated that Greece was not to blame for the terms of the extradition treaty. It said the United States, when the treaty was being drafted, insisted on the same conditions as those of the treaty with Great Britain.

WILD DUCKS GET DRUNK ON ALCOHOL; HUNTERS CATCH THEM BY HAND

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 10.—[Special.]—Hunters who use alcohol instead of guns to bag wild ducks along the Ohio river were caught today by Edwin Aleon, deputy federal game warden.

"A barrel of corn mash, liberally charged with alcohol," Aleon said, "is left overnight near a sandbar or a sluice where wild ducks are known to feed. Early the next morning the hunters return.

"There are the ducks, either sleeping off a hangover or staggering around making silly quacking sounds. The alcohol leaves the poor ducks incapable of flying or swimming and they are caught easily by hand. Some die of acute alcoholism.

GOVERNOR SIGNS SIX RELIEF BILLS FOR BOND ISSUE

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 10.—[Special.]—Gov. Horner today signed the six bills which make up the $30,000,000 relief bond program passed at the first special session of the legislature. The bills carry emergency clauses and become effective at once.

The next step is the issuance of anticipation notes for relief purposes, which will be supported by the bond issue to be voted upon by the people in November, 1934. The governor said that the notes would be issued only in the amount necessary to carry on the work of the Illinois emergency relief commission. He will confer with Chairman Robert J. Dunham of the relief commission to determine the amount needed at this time.

Gov. Horner will leave tonight for Chicago to attend a meeting of A Century of Progress state commission and take part in Armistice day ceremonies tomorrow.

CHICAGO PAUSES TODAY IN TRIBUTE TO DEAD OF WAR

To the solemn notes of taps at 11 o'clock this morning Chicago will bow its head to the east for a moment of silent tribute to the men who gave their lives in the great war. The bugles will mark the hour of the armistice on that day fifteen years ago when the last shot was fired in wartorn Europe.

Military pomp and panoply of the celebration of the anniversary will center at A Century of Progress.

At 11 o'clock all street cars, elevated trains, motorists, and pedestrians will halt in silent reverence. Taps will be sounded by members of the Elevated post of the Legion from the overhead transfer bridges of the elevated structures at Adams and Wabash, State and Van Buren, Clark and Lake, and Quincy and Wells stations.

Neighborhood Memorial Services.

Outlying neighborhoods will also observe the "zero hour." Services will be conducted at the cenotaph erected by the Harold A. Taylor post No. 47 at the water tower, Chicago and Michigan avenues. The Thirty-third division post will hold ceremonies at Madison street and Western avenue.

A wreath is to be placed on the Doughboy monument in Garfield park by the Forges post. The Roseland post will parade in Palmer park. Gun salutes will be fired by the Raymond J. Hagamann post at 59th street and Wentworth avenue, the Lake Park post at 53d street and Lake Park avenue and the Stanley F. Sullivan post at Western avenue and 63d street.

Banks and Public Offices to Close.

All banks, stock and commodity exchanges excepting the live stock markets, will be closed. City, county, state, and federal offices, with the exception of a few which must necessarily retain skeleton forces, will be closed. Flags will fly from government buildings, business houses, and homes.

Short services are to be held in public buildings. The principal of these is to be in the United States courthouse, where Postmaster Ernest J. Kruetgen, Federal Judge John P. Barnes, Collector of Customs Anthony Czarnecki, and Chief Internal Revenue Agent C. W. Herrick will speak.

Jane Addams to Read Messages.

At a meeting of the Forum of the League of Women Voters in the Palmer house at 2 o'clock Miss Jane Addams will read Armistice day messages from prominent women in 12 foreign countries. Arnold J. Toynbee is to speak on fifteen years of peace.

In the evening various dances and parties are scheduled.

Observance of the day began yesterday with exercises in all schools throughout the city and county. The observance is to be carried through Sunday in church services from every pulpit in the city.

FIND ARMY OFFICER ENDED LIFE FOR SAKE OF FRIEND'S WIFE

Miami, Ariz., Nov. 10.—(AP)—Lieut. George R. Sutherland, 28, of the 8th United States cavalry, El Paso, killed himself, a military court has decided, because he felt himself "honor bound" to make his insurance available "to save the wife of a friend from disgrace."

The findings of the court were dispatched today to the commanding officer at Fort Bliss, Tex.

Lieut. Sutherland died yesterday an hour after he had shot himself with a borrowed pistol.

His body will be sent to Chicago tomorrow, at the request of his sister, Alice Sutherland.

The young army officer had served here for five weeks as construction officer for the Globe area, civilian conservation corps.

Elkins Solomon, assistant manager of a Globe wholesale firm, who said he had been a close friend of the dead man, related to the military court that Sutherland had told him a friend's wife in the east was in financial difficulties, and that he, Sutherland, was honor bound to take his own life so that his insurance could be used "to save the wife of a friend from disgrace."

Maj. Roy D. Soper, medical officer of the area, told the court he recently had examined Sutherland, and found him "nervous and distraught."

REVOLT LEADERS IN HAVANA FACE DEATH PENALTY

Diplomats Ask Mercy for 1,500 Captives.

BY GUSTAVO RENO.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Cuba, Nov. 10.—The fate of 1,500 rebels captured yesterday in Atares fortress after 48 hours of revolutionary warfare was the chief concern of this war torn island today. Most of the prisoners are subject to court martial. Col. Fulgencio Batista, army chief of staff, announced several days ago that all rebels would be executed by firing squads.

The diplomatic corps, including United States Ambassador Sumner Welles, met today and decided to intercede with President Ramon Grau San Martin "for humanity's sake" to cancel the intended summary court martials which are scheduled to start tomorrow.

Grau Promises Justice.

Grau promised the Spanish ambassador and the Uruguayan minister that he would ask Col. Batista for justice and as much leniency as the state of civil war allowed. The president said he believed only the leaders of the revolt would be shot.

Havana appeared quiet today and business activities were resumed. In officials circles the feeling was strong that the counter-revolutionary movement had been definitely crushed. The total dead could not be learned, but Secretary Guiteras estimated 150 killed for the two days and more than 200 wounded.

It was officially announced that Col. Juan Blas Hernandez, Maj. Ciro Leonard, Jose Salazar, Jose Camacho Beltrin, and other rebel leaders were dead. Hernandez, the colorful rebel who made a two year stand in Camaguey province against former President Machado's troops, ended his eventful career as he had lived it—amid the whine of bullets and the cheers of fighting men. With his passing disappeared the last of the skilled exponents of the type of warfare which made the Cuban revolutionary forces famous in the wars with Spain.

Menocal Aid Seized.

Col. Rosendo Collazo, a stanch supporter of former President Mario G. Menocal, was among the prisoners taken at Atares. Col. Rafael Iturralde, who was secretary of war and navy under former Presidents Zayas and Machado, was reported killed, but was found today among the prisoners at Camp Columbia.

Gustavo Moreno, secretary of public works, narrowly escaped death when five assassins fired 16 shots at him as he left his offices this afternoon. The assailants were employés he had dismissed a week ago.

Havana's police, numbering 2,300 men, were disarmed and dismissed today by the new chief, Mario Libbourdette. President Grau ordered the immediate reorganization of the personnel of all government departments and the city administration and the arrest of those suspected of participating in the revolt.

INSURANCE PLOT SUSPECT CHARGED WITH MURDER

A formal charge of murder was placed against Daniel Oana, 35 years old, 5219 West Lake street, for the death of Theodore Gabor, 65 years old, in an alleged insurance plot. Oana, who is being held at the Du Page county jail at Wheaton, is accused of having killed the elderly man in order to collect $10,000 insurance on which the premiums were paid by Oana. The two lived together, Oana posing as a nephew of Gabor. The Du Page county grand jury does not convene until Nov. 21, when an indictment will be sought by State's Attorney Chauncey W. Reed.

"ALLMAN STAYS AS LONG AS I DO," KELLY ASSERTS

Mayor Kelly yesterday demonstrated his disgust at the repeated rumors that he is going to replace Commissioner of Police Allman. Upon being approached with a fresh report he called the commissioner into his office.

"Do you intend to resign?" he asked the commissioner.

"No, sir," replied the commissioner.

"Well, then, you'll be commissioner as long as I am mayor unless you voluntarily resign," said the mayor. And then, turning to others present, he added: "I am getting mighty tired of these rumors and I want to deny them once and for all time."

U. S. WILL BUILD 237 BUILDINGS TO COST 16 MILLION

Plans Are Announced by Roosevelt.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 10.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt today announced plans to build 237 federal buildings in towns of 5,000 to 20,000 population throughout the country, spending more than 16½ million dollars from the ebbing easy money fund.

Fourteen of the proposed new projects are in Illinois, and 20 in the other Chicagoland states.

Illinois and her sister states, however, were again the step-child of the easy money fund. The list of the projects which the President announced included 44 buildings in his home state of New York, more than those for all of Chicagoland.

Sewage System for Pekin.

In addition to the federal building allotments, Illinois received one out of 37 regular non-federal allotments announced today by Public Works Administrator Harold L. Ickes. It went to Pekin for a sewage system. Seven other routine allocations were made in Chicagoland.

Announcing his new plan for spreading easy money pork throughout the land, the President stressed a new design for postoffices which he has had worked up by the government architect. Scoffing at the "elaborately ornamented, conspicuous structures" built by the preceding Republican administrations, the President announced in a statement he read to newspapermen that his new federal buildings will cut 51 per cent off the usual costs of being "utilitarian."

President Roosevelt explained that the 237 projects he had selected for construction with easy money were from a list previously approved by congress.

Trace Amebic Deaths

Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the Chicago board of health, yesterday reported results of a survey on the outbreak of amebic dysentery. Sixteen deaths and fifty-two cases of illness among residents and visitors to Chicago have been traced as having possible origin here, although it is impossible to speak with certainty, Dr. Bundesen said.

Among the deaths listed is that of Texas Guinan, night club queen, who died of intestinal ulcers in Vancouver, B. C., last Sunday. Her physician, Dr. A. J. MacLachlan, wired Dr. Bundesen that the ulcers may have been caused by amebæ.

The wire was received as her body passed through Chicago en route to New York for burial. Miss Guinan appeared in Chicago at A Century of Progress some months ago, before embarking on her tour of the west coast and Canada. The body was accompanied by Miss Guinan's brother, Thomas, and by the members of her troupe. A detail of 50 New York police was assigned to handle the crowd when the body arrives on Broadway today. Funeral services will be held in St. Malachi's church next Monday.

Other deaths, now held to be due to eating infected food here, had been attributed to appendicitis and colitis. The original diagnoses may be correct, Dr. Bundesen said, even though amebæ were found, because they are present in the alimentary tracts of 10 per cent of all persons. It is said that there are always some cases of amebic dysentery present in the city.

Mrs. F. D. Roosevelt Visits Correspondent in Hospital

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 10.—[Special.]—Coming here from Washington yesterday Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt went to Johns Hopkins hospital, where she paid a short visit to Edward L. Mrs. Roosevelt returned to Washington immediately after her visit to the hospital.

WASHINGTON CITY SCHOOLS TEACH NRA PRINCIPLES

Washington, D. C., Nov. 10.—(AP)—The schools of the District of Columbia are teaching the principles of the NRA to their pupils as a part of the school system's contribution to the current national education week.

Textbooks are not used. The instructors in the junior high schools, the high schools, and the teachers' college have been given pamphlets, the contents of which were gleaned by history department heads from a sifting of the wordy, complicated, and constantly changing story of the NRA as presented in newspapers and periodicals.

To each principal the education department chief, Dr. Frank W. Ballou, addressed a letter, containing the following instruction:

"It is expected that you will arrange for each teacher to plan one program during education week, based upon these articles [contained in the pamphlet] and upon such other information as the teacher may by reading and research find desirable."

JOHNSON TELLS HOME STATE OLD IDEAS WON'T DO

Oklahoma Plan of Success "Gone Forever."

Tulsa, Okla., Nov. 10.—(AP)—Gen. Hugh S. Johnson tonight called the NRA successor of "the great American frontier" as a safety valve against depressions.

"It is far ahead of its schedule on accomplishment," the administrator told the "state of his boyhood, itself born of a depression."

"The people who first came here were derelicts of the great depression of the early nineties, but that day is gone forever," he said. "There are no more Oklahomas—there is no more frontier. And even if there were, the old plan wouldn't work any more. If you took a few million unemployed and dumped them into a virgin short grass country in the tangy air of mid-September, they would starve to death before April.

"All Has Changed."

"For this reason we have to take another look at the whole system. With the frontier and the rounded individualistic American gone with the painted Indian and buffalo and replaced by a machine age and a nation of industrial specialists, we must find a way to insure that all these specialists can be kept employed.

"Something like that is at the bottom of NRA. It will take a long time to work it out, and there will be many mistakes. At least we have a long start. NRA has succeeded. The Federation of Labor shows a reëmployment of 4,000,000 people, which exceeds by 1,000,000 our estimates. . . . It has put the textile industry back on its feet, rescued the tottering bituminous coal industry, saved from the chiseler and the racketeer scores of smaller industries, and abolished sly and cheating practices by the thousands. You here can judge better than I what it is doing and will do for the petroleum industry."

"Worse Than Chiselers."

Johnson said: "Anybody who patronizes a chiseler is opposing the great national cooperation as much as the chiseler is opposing it. I am not sure that the person who patronizes a chiseler is not a little worse than the chiseler himself."

Johnson flew here from Kansas City. His mother, Mrs. S. L. Johnson of Okmulgee, was one of the first to welcome him. A civic parade was part of the program.

Johnson will fly to Fort Worth, Tex., tomorrow.

ESCAPED RAPIST SEIZED AFTER 10 YEARS' ABSENCE

George Brown, 38 years old, who escaped from Chicago in 1923, after he had been sentenced to five years in Joliet penitentiary on a conviction for rape, was arrested Wednesday and was turned over to the sheriff yesterday for transportation to prison.

Brown was one of a trio of young men who seized Miss Sadie Thompson, then 17 years old, near her home at 165 West Superior street in September, 1920. Later he was arrested, was identified by the girl, and confessed. Following his conviction he was released on bonds of $10,000, which he forfeited and fled to California.

The police had no word of him until Wednesday. He and two other men were arrested that evening for disorderly conduct in a restaurant at 1811 Irving Park boulevard. Although he gave the name George Phillips, his finger prints at the bureau of identification showed that he was the rapist.

Kiwanians Honor Pupils Who Spare Window Panes

The Lincoln Park Kiwanis club yesterday presented a cup to the pupils of the Arnold elementary school, 73 Center street, for setting the best record in their district for preventing window breaking in the school and adjacent buildings. There were only two windows broken in the school through the summer vacation period. Dr. B. E. Albright, president of the club, presented the cup to Miss Marie Mattocks, principal.

DIETERICH BACKS SUPERHIGHWAY LOAN PROPOSAL

Eight More Illinois House Members Pledge Aid.

BY HAL FOUST.

United States Senator William H. Dieterich yesterday pledged his support to the move to obtain a federal loan to begin construction of an elevated highway system in Chicago. Eight additional Illinois congressmen, responding to a questionnaire telegraphed by THE TRIBUNE on Thursday, also promisced their aid.

"I will most cheerfully and earnestly coöperate with civic and political leaders in urging the construction of elevated highway system for Chicago," wrote the senator. "This is a most necessary improvement and falls within every purpose of the policy of the administration in furthering national recovery.

"Chicago and Illinois are justly entitled to this consideration in view of the enormous contributions they have made and are making in revenues which have been and are being expended in other states for projects with public necessity not as urgent and public benefit not as great as this proposed improvement.

"Its necessity is urgent and the benefit is general to the citizenship of the north central states. The hastening of this improvement will be an important factor in unemployment relief."

Backed by Brennan and Nesbit.

The congressional pledges came from downstate as well as from Cook county representatives.

"I shall be most happy to assist in securing a federal loan for an elevated highway system for Chicago," wrote Congressman at Large Martin A. Brennan from Bloomington. "Leaders in support of this much needed project may depend upon my full and hearty coöperation."

Walter Nesbit of Belleville, Illinois' other congressman at large, sent the following message:

"Will be glad to coöperate with civic and political leaders of Illinois in the furtherance of this project, which, I believe, means much to Chicago and will go a long way toward relieving the unemployment situation. Traffic congestion in our large cities is becoming a serious problem, and jobs and good wages are necessary to bring about consumption and thereby speed up industry and business in general."

Ought to Be Grant, Kelly Says.

Representative Edward A. Kelly of Cook county declared that Chicago might rightfully hope for an outright federal grant, rather than a loan, to build the elevated highways. The present financial proposal, as suggested by Charles M. Hayes of the Chicago Motor club and by Lester J. Norris of the Fox Valley federation, is that 30 per cent of the "easy money" would be a grant while 70 per cent would be repaid over thirty years with revenue from the state gasoline tax.

Representative Kelly estimated that as much as a billion dollars now tentatively allocated for various public works projects may revert to the government due to the inability of local governmental units to post adequate securities for the loans or through the reluctance of local officials to incur the indebtedness.

"This money," said the congressman, "will revert to the government and may be used as federal grants to states that never pay any money in the form of revenue into the federal treasury but are always 'knocking at the door' and draining the federal treasury for help that their own states should finance.

For Aiding Industrial Areas.

"I will be one man who will coöperate to the full extent of my power to see that this money that may revert to the government may be used in Illinois and particularly in Chicago and various other industrial sections of this country that pay the bulk of the taxes to the federal government, but never receive their fair proportion when it comes to projects of this kind.

"If we members of the industrial sections do not make this fight, then the surplus money may be used directly as a federal grant for irrigation projects and the building of various other federal projects throughout the west, southwest, and south of this country.

"I will welcome any opportunity to exert all the influence I possess in behalf of an effort to obtain federal assistance for the construction of an elevated highway system in Chicago, and will coöperate to the full extent of my ability."

Pledges from Four Others.

Brief but definite pledges were telegraphed to THE TRIBUNE by Congressmen Harry P. Beam, Leo Kocialkowski, Patrick H. Moynihan, and Leonard W. Schuetz, all of Cook county.

"Permit me to advise that I favor any project of a public works order which will put men to work and will not be too burdensome for the taxpayers to bear," said Representative Beam. "I will support this project as I have supported all others of a public character which in my judgment are beneficial to Chicago and Illinois.

"I am heartily in favor of this or any other movement which will tend to relieve prevailing unemployment and improve existing conditions," said Representative Kocialkowski. "It will be my pleasure to coöperate with my Democratic colleagues in an effort to convince Washington that this project merits full consideration."

"Will gladly coöperate in securing funds for a practical elevated highway system for Chicago, thus giving work to the unemployed, relieving congestion costly in economic losses and in human lives," said Representative Moynihan.

"I am very much in favor of the construction of an elevated highway system to be started this winter," said Representative Schuetz, "and will demand of the administrtion to grant a federal loan for this improvement. I am in favor of any means of putting men to work."

Called "Major Relief Measure."

"I shall be glad to use my efforts to convince Washington that the elevated highway system for Chicago should be started this winter as major unemployment relief measure," said Representative Frank R. Reid of Aurora. "If federal money is to be allotted on the basis of revenue derived from the several states Illinois is away behind in its quota. Common sense dictates that now is the time to start this work, not only on account of the direct unemployment relief the project will provide, but on account of the many other beneficial activities that will grow out of it. What helps Chicago will help Illinois and the convenience to outsiders both on pleasure as well as business makes them glad to join in getting this much needed project started."

Yesterday's TRIBUNE published similar messages from Representatives A. J. Sabath and Fred A. Britten of Chicago; Chester Thompson, Rock Island; D. C. Dobbins, Champaign, and Edwin M. Schaefer, Belleville. Representative James Simpson Jr., whose district embraces Lake county, the north shore suburbs, and part of Chicago, favored the petition for a federal loan, but suggested that changes should be made in the construction program from the plans that have received wide indorsement. These plans are the recommendations based on a two year survey conducted by Dr. Miller McClintock of the Harvard university traffic research bureau in behalf of the council traffic committee headed by Ald. John Massen [48th].

Russia Stages Military Show Along Frontier of Manchukuo

MOSCOW, Nov. 10.—(AP)—How a celebration of the 16th anniversary of the October revolution Tuesday near Khabarovsk, Siberia, took on the form of a militant demonstration against any would-be aggressors was told tonight in a Tass [Russian] news agency dispatch.

The account was taken as a reflection of the increased tension in the soviet far east because of uncertainty over Japanese intentions toward Russia.

25,000 Cheer Military Parade.

Under the heading, "A Demonstration of Readiness to Defend the Far Eastern Frontiers," the dispatch said:

"From different parts of the region reports were received of mass demonstrations in honor of the 16th anniversary of the October revolution, reflecting the strength of the far eastern detachments of the Red army and the growth of industrialization in the region, which is an outpost of the soviet union in the Pacific.

"In a demonstration, 25,000 laboring people at Vladivostok expressed the great love the masses hold for the Red army and their readiness at any moment to defend the far eastern borders. A military parade and its technical achievements were received enthusiastically by the demonstrators."

Threaten Japs with Civil War.

A threat to plunge Japan into civil war if it should attack the soviet union was made by M. Okano, member of the executive committee of the communist internationale, speaking yesterday at the funeral of Sen Katayama in Red square.

Okano represented the Japanese communist party, formerly headed by Katayama, who died on Nov. 6. He was one of the orators in the rites, which were attended by Stalin, Molotov, Kalinin and other leaders of the soviet government.

"We vow," said Okano, "if Japanese imperialism raises its bloody hand over the soviet union, to turn that war into a civil war, into a war for liberation of the working masses of Japan from the disgraceful yoke of Japanese capitalists and landlords, into a war for throwing down an absolute military monarchy."

Japan Makes Peace Move.

TOKIO, Nov. 10.—(AP)—The suggestion that Russia and Japan should get together and agree to cease all military activity along the entire extent of the Siberian-Manchukuan border was made today by the Japanese foreign minister, Koki Hirota.

"It would be a good idea to extend the provisions of the Portsmouth treaty whereby Russia and Japan agree to abstain from military measures along their mutual frontiers to the entire extent of the Siberian-Manchukuan border," Hirota said.

He was referring to the treaty of 1905 terminating the Russo-Japanese war, in which articles 2 and 9 provide for demilitarization along short stretches of the Corean and Saghalien boundaries, the only points in Russo-Japanese territory that are actually contiguous.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 10.—The curt advice to "shut up" was given to Baroness Strabolgi, 70 year old American born peeress, said a prosecution witness today, while she and Robert Muller, 62 year old co-defendant, were trying to conclude a deal which the prosecution says was an attempt to obtain $30,000 through false pretenses.

They were sitting in the home of Francis de Moleyns, younger son of Lord Ventry, the witness said. Detective Sergeant Powell and another officer were concealed behind a curtain while the accused tried to induce De Moleyns to invest in a Honduran timber concession.

Sergt. Powell testified that Muller said his concession contained some of the finest pines in the world, promising a rich profit from turpentine and rosin. Muller mentioned the salubrious climate, and Lady Strabolgi interjected, "It is gorgeous, just like California."

Muller said, "Shut up. We want to get on with the matter in hand."

WIFE ACCUSED OF TICKLING IN ROLE OF COMPLAINANT

Mrs. Pauline Klima, 5559 South Mozart street, who recently was restrained from riding on the front platforms of street cars driven by her husband, Joseph, who is suing her for divorce on the charge that she tickled him in the hope of causing an accident, appeared yesterday before Municipal Judge Leon Edelman in the rôle of a complainant. The defendants were Arthur and Ervin Fiala, half brothers of Klima. She charged that they struck her when she attempted to get into her husband's automobile to seek a reconciliation. Judge Edelman dismissed them. They testified that they barred her from the car at the request of Klima, who feared that his wife would try to tickle him again.

YOUTH HELD AS ROBBER.

James Bennett, 19 years old, 6736 Clyde avenue, was held to the grand jury by Judge Gutknecht yesterday on several charges of robbery. Bonds were fixed at $40,000.

SURVIVORS TELL HEROISM AFTER 4 DIE IN PLANE

Girl, Pilot Risk Lives to Save Other Injured.

Portland, Ore., Nov. 10.—(AP)—The bodies of four men, one of them an internationally famous surgeon, were removed today from the twisted flame-swept wreckage of a transport plane which crashed on a hillside in a heavy fog near here last night.

Dr. Robert C. Coffey, 64, noted for his original contributions to surgery; Herman Cohn of Portland, and Arthur A. Trostler of Chicago, passengers, and Pilot A. W. Davis were killed. Their bodies were burned beyond recognition.

Four were injured and two slightly hurt.

The plane had left the city airport only five minutes before it hit against a tree on the fog shrouded hill and crashed sideways to the ground. All the occupants of one side of the ship were fatally injured. The plane broke in two and burst into flames.

Girl Proves Heroine.

Miss Libby Wurgaft, 22, of San Diego, stewardess on the air liner, was praised today as a heroine. The tiny girl several times pushed her way into the burning ship to assist in the rescue of others from the cabin.

She suffered only from shock. Robert E. Pelouze, Portland investment broker, received a fractured kneecap; Dr. John Straumfjord of Portland, assistant to Dr. Coffey, suffered bruises and shock; Floyd Hart of Medford, Ore., escaped with a burned hand; E. J. Powers of Glendale, Cal., an electrical contractor, received bruises, and J. B. Woodworth of Oakland, co-pilot, suffered burns and a rib injury.

The crash occurred as the pilot circled through the unusually dense fog to gain altitude.

Dr. Coffey and Dr. Straumfjord were flying to Medford to perform an emergency operation upon Dr. L. A. Salade of Medford.

Hart, an American flyer in the world war, and Woodworth, co-pilot of the ship, made their way two miles through tangled underbrush to a telephone to call physicians and police.

TROSTLER RADIO EXECUTIVE.

Arthur A. Trostler was assistant general sales manager of the Grigsby-Grunow company, which has its plants and main offices here, and lived at the Medinah Michigan Avenue club.

Trostler had been in the radio business since 1920. At various times he was associated with the Freed-Eisemann company, with the Brunswick Radio company as sales manager when that firm was owned by Warner Brothers, and in the same capacity with the Columbia Phonograph company.

He is survived by the widow and a daughter, Lois Adele, 7 years old, who reside in White Plains, N. Y., and by his mother, sister, and a brother, M. M. Trostler of New York City.

RECEIVERS GIVE TAX REPORTS ON 125 PROPERTIES

TAX COLLECTIONS.

Real estate tax collections yesterday were $296,966, making a total of $86,104,654 collected since enforcement of the Kerner-Skarda act began on April 28. The day's collections of real estate taxes and the uncollected taxes for the last four years follow:

	1928	1929
Nov. 10	$ 43,433	$ 62,191
Uncollected	16,532,720	44,330,297
	1930	1931
Nov. 10	$ 66,633	$ 130,673

The day's collections of 1931 personal property taxes totaled $95.

Reports on the tax status of 125 properties which are in receivership in the Superior court have been filed with William Thomas, secretary to Chief Justice Denis E. Sullivan. Mr. Thomas announced yesterday that the reports show that 20 of the receivers have paid taxes in full on the buildings they control. The other properties owe an aggregate tax bill of $75,000.

The reports are based on questionnaires submitted to the 3,000 receivers appointed by Judges Sullivan, William J. Lindsay, John P. McGoorty, and Robert E. Gentzel, who are the chancellors of the Superior court. All the reports are expected to be filed within a month. Judge Sullivan has announced that in instances where the receiver shows a large balance and has not paid taxes, he will be summoned before the chancellor who appointed him. Receivers will be removed and in extreme cases cited for contempt of court if they cannot explain satisfactorily their failure to apply 75 per cent of the net income from their buildings on back taxes.

Thirty receivers filed reports in the Circuit court in a similar campaign conducted by Chief Justice Dennis J. Normoyle. Twenty-five of the properties involved in these receiverships owe $191,152 in back taxes. The other five properties have paid in full.

County Judge Jarecki yesterday ordered 32 properties into receivership under the Kerner-Skarda act. He appointed County Treasurer McDonough receiver to collect overdue taxes totaling $106,000.

Their Romance Reported Near End

AIMEE HUTTON'S SON-IN-LAW SAYS THERE'S NO RIFT

Seattle, Wash., Nov. 10.—William B. Smythe, husband of Roberta Semple Smythe, daughter of Aimee Semple McPherson, the evangelist, scoffed here today at reports from Los Angeles hinting a rift between him and his wife.

While preaching in Angelus temple last night Mrs. Smythe was quoted as saying: "I would be very happy if my husband could see things as I do. But—we just don't think alike. He has read so much philosophy that his head is fairly buzzing with ideas. My creed is simple. If he objects to my work—well—I'm afraid that's just too bad."

Miss Semple and Smythe were married in Singapore March 4, 1931, while the evangelist and her daughter were on a world tour. Smythe was purser on the liner on which they sailed.

DORIS KENYON SUES ARTHUR HOPKINS FOR DIVORCE; WED IN JUNE

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 10.—(AP)—Doris Kenyon, formerly prominent in the movies and on the concert stage, sued Arthur Hopkins, Syracuse, N. Y., broker, for divorce today in a brief complaint, which said they separated one month and twenty-four days after their wedding last June 14.

Miss Kenyon, the widow of Milton Sills, prominent movie actor, who died in 1930, charged that Hopkins complained about her conduct and criticized her pursuit of a career.

She said he harassed her about her stage and film work until she became "sick and hysterical." She pictured him as the possessor of a violent temper, and said he would be abusive and annoy her without provocation, making her highly nervous.

Announcing her plans for divorce recently Miss Kenyon said Hopkins' interests lay mainly in the east and hers in the movie colony.

ROOSEVELT AND LITVINOV SEEN NEAR AGREEMENT

Soviet Envoy Smiling After Third Conference.

for the newspapers since Nov. 7, as none was issued during the two day celebration of the October revolution anniversary.

Stress Cordial Welcome.

All incoming dispatches stress the cordial welcome to Litvinov and the fact that he was accorded a reception usually given to visiting foreign ministers despite the absence of official relationship between the two nations.

The reaction of the American press to his visit also was featured. One dispatch declaring the last two weeks have been a real "Soviet fortnight" in America.

The larger newspapers published thousands of words regarding their commissar's visit to the United States, notwithstanding the importance of current domestic issues.

A CREDIT BUSINESS

BY DONALD DAY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, Nov. 10.—Providing the soviet government is properly financed and credited by the United States billions of dollars worth of American goods will be absorbed by the Russian market, according to Anne Louise Strong, American bolshevik sympathizer. She also believes that hidden behind President Roosevelt's decision to open negotiations with Foreign Commissar Maxim Litvinov is the hope that the United States will be able to dispose of surpluses to the soviets.

Miss Strong has been a resident of Moscow for many years. She founded and edited the Moscow Daily News, a subsidized organ of the soviet government.

The Moscow Izvestia publishes the following letter from Miss Strong:

"Of course, Americans are not so naive as to think they will be able to sell such quantities of goods to the soviets for cash. A few years ago they thought this, but their views are changed. In the past few months Americans have experienced the NRA which is paying them to destroy pigs and cotton.

Says Americans Were Hypnotized.

"Many say, 'Would it not be better to sell the surpluses to Russia, giving five or ten year's credit?' Suppose they did not pay at all. Would this be worse than destroying pigs and cotton at a time when the world is naked and hungry?"

Miss Strong claims this "common sense opinion" is widely spread in the United States. She reports that Litvinov's declaration about the desires of Russians to place big orders hypnotized Americans.

"American citizens no longer think about doing careful business," she continues. "Instead they say, 'Here we have the largest industry and the largest financial center in the world, and here Litvinov brings us the largest orders in the world. If our bankers and industrialists will not accept this order we will force them to or find others who will.'"

Miss Strong believes Americans have been blinded by Litvinov's statement that he has orders for hundreds of millions of dollars in his pockets.

SLAYER TRAPPED BY FINGERPRINTS ON MILK GLASS

Charles [Three Gun] Stein, the blond youth of 25 who was captured early Monday morning after he had committed several holdups in wild west fashion, was yesterday connected with a restaurant murder through fingerprints which he left while eating in the place. He confessed the killing.

The murder, that of Robert Broomell, cook in a restaurant at 414 South State street, took place early on the morning of Nov. 3, the day after Stein had held up two Decatur, Ill., detectives and forced them to drive him to Chicago.

After eating a steak and drinking a glass of milk in the restaurant, he tried to hold up Jacob Weinstein, the proprietor. Weinstein produced a gun and in the ensuing fight one of Stein's bullets struck Broomell, wounding him fatally. Stein then fled.

Capt. Robert Evans, chief identification inspector, found the prints of the killer's right thumb and index finger on the milk glass, and of his left little finger on a catsup bottle. He found that those prints coincided with those of Stein, and when Stein appeared before Judge Jay A. Schiller yesterday in the felony court, he was turned back to the custody of Chief of Detective Schoemaker. Taken to the detective bureau and identified by employés of the restaurant, he confessed the killing.

INDIANA COURT TO TRY SAMMONS WITHIN 10 DAYS

James [Fur] Sammons, killer and rapist, will be tried by the state of Indiana within the next ten days, State's Attorney Robert G. Estill of Lake county, Indiana, announced yesterday. An effort will be made to put Sammons behind bars for the rest of his life under the habitual criminal act. Sammons will first be tried for attempted bribery of an Indiana deputy sheriff and if convicted will be liable to prosecution under the habitual criminal act, because he has two previous felony convictions on his record. Sammons was arrested in a Cedar Lake, Ind., roadhouse last Monday.

FAHRNEY HEIRESS HIDES; TRAGEDY MARS MARRIAGE

corporation, and Norman Peterson, 632 Irving Park boulevard, agent for an automobile company. Mr. Seeburg, who lives at 1220 North State street, and Peterson were injured, the former seriously.

Peterson, it appeared, acted as the marriage maker. He telephoned a friend, D. M. Currier, 1120 Browning street, Aurora, and asked him if a marriage license could be procured and a ceremony performed during the night. Currier suggested that the license be obtained from Miss Ruth Chamberlin, a deputy clerk of Kane county. This was done. The party then proceeded to Currier's home, and Justice of the Peace Enderson was invited to officiate.

According to Currier, Mrs. Parker-Pickering and Elszner were married in his home at 1:30 a. m. No one had been drinking, and no drinks were served, he added. The entire party, he said, was sober. There was the usual gayety, of course, he said, and then the party left.

The accident occurred a short time later. The car, traveling at a high rate of speed, reached a sharp turn in the Lincoln highway, one-half mile west of Plainfield. Unable to make the turn, the machine plunged through a large road sign, and rolled over. Donald Elszner was killed instantly. Frank Elszner, the new Mrs. Elszner and Peterson received cuts and bruises. Mr. Seeburg suffered a skull fracture.

All were taken to the Franklin Boulevard hospital in Chicago. Mr. Seeburg remained there in a serious condition after the others had left. At first Dr. John A. Evans told investigators that the victims of the accident were not in the hospital. Later police found the Oak Park heiress resting on a cot. Police said she greeted them with giggles and told them "to mow down with machine guns any reporters who show up." Later she was taken home as were Peterson and Frank Elszner.

Mother Denies Marriage.

At first denying there had been a wedding, the bride's mother later told reporters to return after "Merry had awakened," when she possibly might have a statement to make.

"Frank Elszner has known Merry for years," Mrs. Fahrney explained, "but he seamed to be just one of her friends. He came to the house last night and they left together after Frank told me that he had to go to Joliet.

"When I had not heard from them by midnight I was worried. At 3 o'clock I received a telephone message from Frank, who said they'd had an accident."

Evidence at Inquest.

A perfunctory inquest was held at Plainfield into the death of Donald Elszner, and a routine "accidental" verdict was returned. Frank Elszner testified briefly and remarked pointedly, in response to a question, that "there was no one's wife in the car." This was taken to mean at the time that there had been no elopement. Another witness, Dr. John P. Finkle, who was called after the accident, said that members of the party had told him they "were going too fast to make the turn."

Since Sunday Merry had been before the public eye because of her romance with Count di Georgio. She bade him goodby when he sailed, and promised to meeet him again and marry him. In the succeeding days she reiterated that intention. Friends said that it was on her return from New York that Elszner renewed his friendship with her.

A previous romance had cooled in 1930, it was said, over his disapproval of her method of getting publicity. In that instance she was saved in a faulty parachute jump at the cost of the life of Bruno Shustek, German war flyer.

SELL MAE MURRAY'S HOME DEC. 4 TO PAY $60,000 JUDGMENT

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 10.—(AP)—The palatial Playa Del Rey home of Mae Murray and four other pieces of real estate owned by the actress will be sold Dec. 4 to the highest bidder to satisfy a $60,000 judgment. A court order for the sale was signed yesterday by a Superior court judge.

The judgment against Miss Murray was returned in favor of Mrs. Elizabeth M. Stack. Miss Murray had placed the five parcels of real estate as security for a loan of $53,500 from Mrs. Stack. Interest increased the judgment amount to $60,000.

GET 200 MILES MORE THIS WINTER

At No Extra Cost

Ordinary Gasolines Lose More Than 1 Mile per Gallon in Winter Months

IMPROVED SUPER SHELL
First Gasoline to give Full Summer Mileage plus Quicker Winter Starting

Last April, when the former premium was dropped, millions of you motorists changed to Super Shell—the gasoline you said gave you quicker starting, higher anti-knock, greater power and, above all, extra mileage.

Now, Super Shell gives you all the extra mileage you obtained last summer, plus quicker starting for winter driving.

Some ordinary gasolines are overloaded, for quick starting in cold weather, with light gassy parts, which you lose after your engine warms up, thereby reducing your mileage. Other ordinary gasolines are hard to start, and waste your fuel in starting, and, therefore, they, too, reduce your mileage.

The improved Super Shell, by Shell's new and exclusive reforming process, gives you quicker starting on the coldest day in winter, and saves, for extra mileage, the gasoline you formerly wasted in starting.

The average motorist will get one more mile per gallon this winter—over 200 extra miles, at no extra cost.

In JUNE, Extra Mileage — In NOVEMBER, getting Extra Mileage, too . . . What Mr. Conde, St. Louis, says above is typical of remarks we hear from Super Shell customers everywhere. All last summer we received thousands of letters from enthusiastic car owners, claiming increases of 1, 2, even 3 miles per gallon from Super Shell. "Super Shell has everything!" they told us — "but most of all — it's got mileage!" Now, in November, these Super Shell users tell us they are still getting the same extra summer mileage — plus quicker starting! Change to Super Shell today.

"I start my car 25 times a day!..." and I can't afford to waste a lot of time or gasoline just to get my motor started. Super Shell is sure-fire starting, and my expense records prove it gives me a lot of extra miles," says W. D. Galpin, of Evansville, Indiana.

It takes power to climb the Rockies . . . In Climax, Colorado, altitude 12,460 feet, where Super Shell is sold in highest service station in U. S., truck drivers buy Super Shell because "It starts quicker, has lots of power, cuts down on mileage costs."

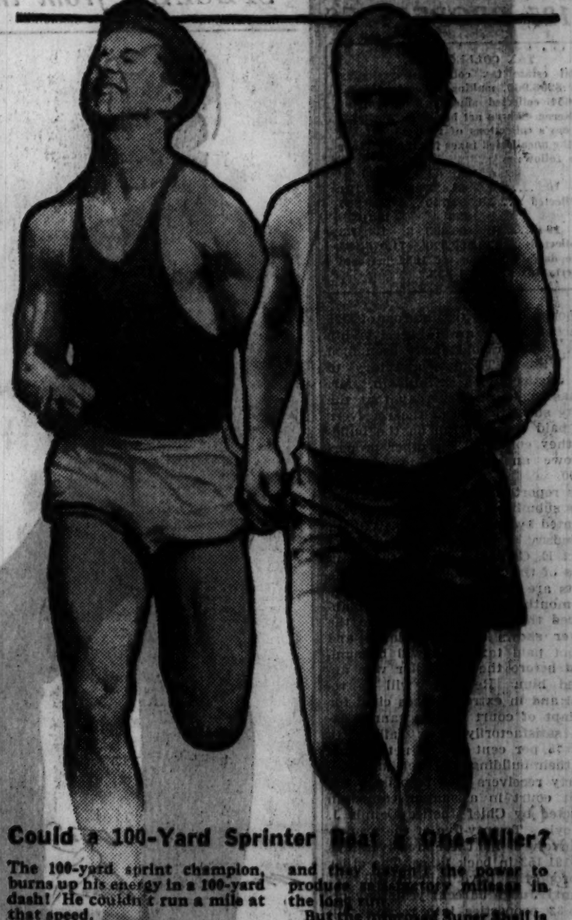
SUPER SHELL

"Saves my Disposition...," says Joyce Whitney, New York. "Because Super Shell starts so quickly, even in bad weather, it makes driving so much easier, and so much safer, for a woman driver."



Could a 100-Yard Sprinter Beat a One-Miler?

The 100-yard sprint champion, burns up his energy in a 100-yard dash! He couldn't run a mile at that speed.

Many ordinary gasolines that claim to start quickly in cold weather are like 100-yard sprinters! They sacrifice everything for that one burst of quick starting—and they [illegible] the power to produce satisfactory mileage in the long run.

But the improved Super Shell is a 100-yard sprinter that continues to sprint for mile after mile.

by using the improved Super Shell, because you get quicker starting with less gasoline, and that leaves you more gasoline, in every gallon, for extra mileage.

Ordinary gasolines give you less mileage in winter. Some are overloaded, for quick-starting in winter, with light, gassy parts, which you lose after your engine warms up; others are hard to start, and thus waste your gasoline by excessive "choking." Both types of ordinary gasolines waste your miles and your dollars.

COOKING SCHOOL THRONGS PACK HALL TO DOORS

South Side Classes End; West Side Next.

BY KATHLEEN McLAUGHLIN.

The south side sessions of THE TRIBUNE'S third annual cookery carnival closed last night on a holiday note. There was so much of giving and receiving that Santa Claus seemed to have dropped in for a preliminary visit. The west side program will open next week and the north side community will have its turn during the third and final week.

Extra chairs had been placed all over the Trianon ballroom at 62d street and Cottage Grove avenue in an effort to accommodate the crowd yesterday, but the 6,000 or more who sought entrance upset even these calculations. Eventually all except a few score of the overflow crowd found seats, while the rest, too interested to desert their posts, remained at the doorways throughout the entire afternoon, despite cold weather and snow flurries. They were still there as the crowd inside turned homeward.

W-G-N Baritone Is Singer.

One of the outstanding performances of the entire four days brought Lawrence Salerno, W-G-N baritone, into the spotlight on the stage and kept him there for two songs and two encores. Robert Lindt was at the piano for this artist, sang "Quiereme Mucho," "Nichano!," by Mana-Zucca, "Marianna," and the ever popular, "O Sole Mio!" He was introduced by John Harrington, staff announcer.

As the fourth of a series of concert and opera singers whose selections on each succeeding day evoked storms of applause, Miss Leola Alkman, coloratura soprano, admirably sustained the record set by Margery Maxwell, Frida Savini and Olga Kargau. With Helen Rauh as accompanist, she sang "Ah, fors e lui" from "Traviata," and "Love Went A-Riding," by Frank Bridge, and was generously acclaimed.

Miss Rauh was at the piano also for the community singing with which D. A. Clippinger, choral director formerly in charge of both the Swift male chorus and Madrigal club, opened the afternoon's entertainment.

Lectures on Foods.

Mrs. Anna J. Peterson, director of the home service department of the People's Gas company, stepped to the microphone for a brief discourse on personality in foods and their importance to the rising generation as well as the adult.

For the first time, Mary Meads, TRIBUNE cooking editor, slipped into a white uniform and demonstrated for her many readers how to concoct an "egg marguerite" for company. Miss Meads is a graduate of the Iowa State college.

On her final south side menu Mrs. Ida M. Chitwood, culinary expert and lecturer whose advice and demonstrations are followed intently by the assemblage, departed from her printed program to introduce a number of appetizing drinks and other dishes for which she had received requests. One of those repeated in response to a number of queries was the banana and bacon combination she recommended as a breakfast dainty. Half a banana is peeled and wrapped around with a strip of bacon, then fried.

A Thanksgiving Turkey.

But the Thanksgiving turkey prepared by Mrs. Chitwood attracted more attention than any of the other dishes. Many a good cook widened her eyes as the big bird was rubbed inside and out with butter before being put into a hot oven. And Mrs. Chitwood's turkey stuffing, with the stock from cooked giblets as a base and toasted bread as its chief ingredient, provided more notes for busy pencils.

There was a recipe for southern spoon bread, and for shirred eggs, one for cocoanut cake, for California prune Betty, for lobster thermidor, and for the banana-pineapple rounds that inspired much applause.

Miss Rhea Seeger, fashion editor of THE TRIBUNE, was called to the microphone to make a bow, and W. E. Donahue, TRIBUNE advertising manager, also greeted the audience.

Awards to Cooking Pupils.

An electric refrigerator was awarded at this session to Mae Arthurs of 937 West 68th street. An electric washing machine went to Mrs. F. X. Szymansk, 10139 Princeton avenue. Mrs. S. A. Begg of 1749 East 72d street received an electric vacuum cleaner; Mrs. Max Saffron of 10448 Avenue F, South Chicago, an automatic toaster; Mrs. Anna Vinicky of 5431 West 24th place, Cicero, an electric percolator, and Mrs. R. J. Mills, 5240 Greenwood avenue, an electric iron.

One hundred and ten baskets and bags of groceries were distributed to the crowd each afternoon including the final day.

NEED OF ADDED SCHOOL SPACE IS TOLD BY OFFICIAL

A need for additional high school facilities in Chicago will be in evidence for many years, Don C. Rogers, director of the school building survey, said yesterday. Mr. Rogers is preparing a report on Chicago public school buildings, compiling statistics gathered since 1856, when the first high school opened with 114 pupils.

"The completion of five high schools, aided by a proposed federal grant of $1,350,000, will be merely a stop-gap program," Mr. Rogers said. "For years to come, if the demand for a ligh school education keeps its present rate of increase, we will be faced with congestion."

"The newspaper is an institution developed by civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

FENCED OFF.

At this writing something like a hundred and fifty letters have been received by the editor of THE TRIBUNE protesting against Mr. Orr's cartoon of last Saturday. A representative selection has been published in the Voice of the People. Most of the writers assume that Mr. Orr and the editor will be surprised by the unfavorable response. The fact is that if there was any surprise in this office it was because the number of complaints was not larger and the tone of most of the letters was not more violent.

It takes no long experience in editing a newspaper to know that such a campaign as has been staged by the NRA is bound to sweep a great many thousand people off their feet. The employment by Gen. Johnson of all the arts of mass appeal, all directed at stirring the nation to a high emotional pitch, could not have failed entirely of its purpose. The newspapers have printed pages of NRA news and scores of speeches by Gen. Johnson and his associates. The radio and the movies, the former under the thumb of the government and the latter in constant fear that it will soon be in the same fix or worse, have lent themselves to the purposes of the propagandists. You cannot turn on the radio or go to the movies without hearing about NRA and what it will accomplish for the country. The same story is found in the street car advertisements and on the billboards. There are few men and women in the United States who have not been appealed to many times a day for many weeks to believe that loyalty to their country implied the duty to "uphold the Blue Eagle."

Under those circumstances it was inevitable that any suggestion that the NRA was doing more harm than good was certain to offend many readers of THE TRIBUNE. The fact that some people have found employment since the codes were adopted made it the more certain that an attack upon the NRA would be resented.

THE TRIBUNE is not without experience along this line. We encountered much the same thing in the long fight against the corrupt Republican administration of the state under Len Small and of the city under his ally. Their loyal if misguided followers were infuriated. We gave offense to prohibitionists when we told the truth about their leaders. We did not hesitate immediately after the war to express our views regarding Mr. Wilson's internationalism, though at that moment the duty to "uphold the hands of the President" had come to be regarded as the highest patriotic duty and independent judgment was held to be little better than treason.

Mr. Orr's cartoon, irritating though it may have been to many readers, said only what has been said by nine-tenths of the competent economists of the United States and foreign lands. This cartoon was a graphic presentation of the fact that the prices of finished goods have risen under NRA and AAA faster than purchasing power has risen. Accordingly, farmers and factory workers are finding it increasingly difficult to exchange their products. The farmers complain that NRA has pushed the price of the things they buy so high that they are worse off than before despite some increase in many farm prices. The wage earners are beginning to complain that the processing taxes they must pay on bread, meat and cotton have pushed prices up faster than earnings. The consequence is a growing tendency toward business stagnation. What Mr. Orr said in his picture is to be read every day in business statistics by those with the intelligence to read them.

The NRA propagandists have insisted that the alternative to NRA is chaos. In fact, the alternative to NRA is, if not recovery, then, at least, a basis upon which recovery and a rising standard of living can be erected. If Mr. Orr's cartoon has jolted that concept into men's minds, they ought to be grateful and we are confident that one day they will be.

CHICAGO.

The turmoil of the New York City elections contrasts sharply with the relative quiet and absence of violence in recent Chicago elections. The reputation of Chicago, studiously manufactured for years in the press of other cities, has been a distortion of the facts, but this highly colored product of envy is fading out. Chicago has been widely advertised as a community of unrebuked violence, whereas those who are acquainted with its character know it is essentially law-abiding. No great city under the tremendous strains imposed by the last four years could have dealt with conditions with so little serious disturbance as Chicago has had unless it were fundamentally law-abiding. One of the benefits, probably the chief benefit, of A Century of Progress is the knowledge gained by millions of visitors of the true character of our community. Chicago is grateful that the attempts to exploit the false reputation of the city failed. If we may trust the many friendly acknowledgments of our hospitality received from visitors in all parts of the country, that myth of Chicago's violence has been completely exploded. Our visitors have been made welcome whole-heartedly; they have encountered no gangsters. They have been protected from exploitation and everything practicable has been done to make them feel at home. The staff of the Exposition, the city police, the personnel of the hotels, shops, and transportation agencies, and the people generally have coöperated to care for all strangers within our gates and this has been the natural expression of our community's character. It has been a great privilege to have had our visitors with us and we hope and believe they have gained a fairer conception of what Chicago is.

THE TOUHY HAUL.

State's Attorney Courtney, with the able coöperation of Melvin Purvis, chief of the Chicago bureau of investigation, federal department of justice; Private Detective Roche, and other aids, has dealt a staggering blow at the business of kidnaping in this district. He has earned the thanks of the community. His success demonstrates what important results can be obtained from intelligent and vigorous methods and should encourage law enforcing agencies throughout the country. THE TRIBUNE has repeatedly pointed out that the crime of kidnaping can be successfully dealt with wherever the authorities are determined to get results. It is a crime that requires the coöperation of several individuals and a combination of circumstances which when examined and compared point the way to discovery. When the police seem baffled there is reason to suspect that corrupt influence is at the bottom of failure or at best indifference and rank incompetence. The roundup of the Touhy gang shows that kidnaping is a menace that can be removed by determined and competent officials, and the community will rest easier for Mr. Courtney's and his aids' demonstration of this fact. Behind the work of the state's attorney and the federal agents there is to be recognized the quiet and forceful direction and support by Mayor Kelly. Months ago Mayor Kelly, without noise, organized several squads of the best police to patrol the county roads and gather evidence. He put the selected strength of the police department at the disposal of the state's attorney. Every person who had been threatened was guarded. Kidnapings stopped. His assistance and insistence have been praiseworthy.

POLITICAL OPERATION OF UTILITIES.

On Tuesday the voters of seven cities rejected municipal power projects. Five other cities voted bond issues for the extension of existing projects or for the establishment of new municipal plants. The policy of public ownership of utilities came off second best in this election in spite of the labor of public ownership propagandists and the campaign against the private utility waged by radicals.

Among the cities voting Tuesday we especially note Cincinnati, which voted two to one against having their government go into the gas and electric business. We note this case especially because Cincinnati has one of the best municipal governments in the country and therefore might be expected to be more willing to trust it than some of the other communities that are trying or are to try the socialist experiment. But the people of Cincinnati look farther and do not propose to put the burden of utility operation on the shoulders of their government. Their municipal affairs are being well run and they intend to keep them running well. They remember their Æsop.

With the federal government extending its authority and responsibility far and wide, we must look to the practical sense of our communities to start and carry on the fight for private initiative as well as local self-government.

Editorial of the Day

[New York Herald Tribune.]

It is a slow business educating Gen. Johnson as to the freedom of the press. He goes ahead two feet and slides back three. He now admits, in his Chicago speech, that the licensing provisions of NRA would invade that freedom if applied to newspapers. Here is something gained. But in the same breath he attempts to waive that threat by giving his personal assurance that he, Gen. Johnson, will never make use of this provision so far as the press is concerned.

It would be hard to miss the point more completely. The general talks as if the question were a private quarrel between him and the newspapers and that all that was needed to calm their fears was his personal promise to "lay off." He is twice wrong. The fight of the newspapers is no private, selfish affair of theirs; and the threat, which the general now concedes to exist, is quite beyond his power to remove.

For the first point, the freedom of the press is of vastly more importance to the people of the United States—assuming that they wish to continue under a democratic form of government—than it is to any newspaper. A journal can live under the license system by obeying orders. Democracy cannot exist without a free press, as the cases of Russia, Italy, and Germany attest. The first step of every would-be dictator is to seize control of the newspapers. Until he does so they can warn, they can protest, they can organize the public in defense of its liberties. Once he has seized control he can deceive, he can conceal, he can secretly prepare for action.

There is no predicting which liberty might be first imperiled or which group might be first persecuted if freedom of the press were curtailed. The process is gradual and insidious. The result is the slow death of every precious right for which our ancestors fought and bled. Let us say it to the general in words of one syllable: No one who has not the right of free speech and a free press can be safe or free.

For the second mistake, it is good to know that Gen. Johnson does not himself intend to license the press, but utterly beside the point. He is simply the administrator of a law. He can be removed at the pleasure of the President. His promise, however sincere and well meant, cannot bind his successor. No President can bind his successor. The licensing provision may be stricken from the law or the law may be repealed. But so long as the provision stands it is a continuing threat which no administrator and no President can end.

The newspapers have sought to protect the public against this threat by expressly reiterating their constitutional rights in their code. We do not think this is altogether satisfactory. But it is certainly the least the newspapers can ask. It at least saves them from the risk of waiving their constitutional rights by signing a code. Nothing else will.

Gen. Johnson seems obsessed by the idea that he and NRA are being persecuted. He pictures himself as dodging a hail of dead cats. We hope that by the time he has swung around the circle he will calm down a little and realize the truth. What he and the administration of NRA are facing is very live criticism the country over. Most of it is sincere and helpful, a very good example of what the freedom of the press can contribute to a country.

ARMISTICE GREETING.

"God rest you happy, gentlemen";
This earth and all its lust
Makes ye a fair obeisance
Though ye be now but dust.
Think not the steel that slew you
Is peaced away to rust;
The winds of time mock-laugh you,
Though ye be now but dust.
This world you sacrificed us
Hails you, as true it must,
In brotherhood and concord
For your high pledge of trust.
Your deathday this, our birthday
That dawned a life anew . . .
We clasped your hands in promise,
Who dwell by such as you!
How have we kept that promise?
What doth that faith betide
For whose bright gleam, eternal-sworn
In youth and hope ye died!
"God rest you happy, gentlemen";
This earth and all its lust
Makes ye a fair obeisance,
Though ye be now but dust!

THE SOLICITOR.

WHAT A FUNNY WORLD? The British pound went up yesterday to $5.16, the highest price it has touched since the world war, and all the British cried "Hooray!" The American dollar at the same moment hit a new low, 62.25 cents, and we Americans are all expected to shout "Hooray!" It's a bit difficult, but we'll do our best. Here goes: Hooray!

"SAMUEL INSULL'S Name Omitted from New Social Register."—Headline. Horrible! Horrible! Name omitted from the Social Register! One might as well be dead. Sam won't care now whether they extradite him or not! Omitted from the Social Register! 'Tis the end!

DO THEY MARCH ON?

Sometimes at night I hear the tramp of feet,
And on and on they go with rhythmic beat;
I see those wartime roads of France again.
Where men went marching through the mud and rain;
The terror of the night—the ghastly fear
I know, then all is still—I strain to hear
Again, with sickening heart, that measured tread.
Do they march on, the army of the dead?

EDNA KEITH FLORENCE.

AND NOW we can have toddies. Personally I always liked a whisky toddy. But I couldn't have a toddy under prohibition because a whisky toddy takes time and under the iron rule of Volstead you didn't dare be leisurely; you were liable to have your rear tires or your hind legs shot off. For in "Eat, Drink and Be Merry in Maryland" Senator Tydings of that grand old commonwealth is quoted as follows in regard to toddies:

"This potation, to be thoroughly enjoyed, should be prepared in the following manner:

"Supply each guest with a glass containing about one-half inch of water and one-quarter teaspoonful of sugar and a spoon.

"All should sit comfortably and stir the sugar until it is completely dissolved. Then the host passes around a bottle of bourbon and each person pours into his glass, containing the dissolved sugar, such amount as suits his inclination. This, too, must be stirred for a while.

"Ice water is now passed around in a silver pitcher to dilute the drink to meet the requirements of the discriminating taste of each.

"In order to extract the nth part of enjoyment from this receipt, when stirring the sugar and water, each should sit on the very edge of the chair or sofa and rest his arms on his knees with a slightly forward posture. Unless this is done the drink will taste just a little less good."

ARMISTICE DAY—1933.

Armistice? Pause? From what?
Mothers of sons! They cry us peace, they cry
Across the thunder of the sleeping guns
In words of wind, of nothingness and wind.
Bloody and broken bodies that were flesh
Of sweeter flesh, tossed like a loser's chips
On the wide floor of earth, our brothers and our kin,
God of the male! Give ear
To these insensate passages of words
Traded across the counters of the world
By paunchy men who have forgotten youth,
Our diplomats, our financiers, the men
Who write quotations in the smoke of guns.
Down the wide ramps of hell, in agony
And sudden flinching fear, we creep and go,
Hearing the whispers, listening at the Pass.
Not Armistice, but Peace! Not War!
Throw down that dreadful angel to his hell

NANCY SHORES.

FRANKLIN DELANO and Comrade Litvinov seem to be a little slow in arranging the recognition, but probably the trouble is deciding who shall speak first, the United States or Russia. Let 'em select a starter and when he yells "On your mark! Go!" then they face each other and shout in unison, "I see you, you little rascal!" Recognition at last!

ULCERS ON LEGS.

ONE of the duties of the school nurse is to cure up the sores on the legs of the children, principally the boys, since the girls rarely have such things. Every boy knows, and most men remember, how these ulcers afflict the youth of the land. Some of them are on the shins, because that area is so readily barked. Most of them are on the ankles or not far away from there. They have a way of piling up thick, hard scabs and they will not heal.

Of course there is nothing about them that threatens life or endangers the leg, but they are unsightly, they leave large and unpigmented scars, and they cramp the style of the boys.

When school lets out the school nurse goes off the job and it is just in the summertime that these leg ulcers are most troublesome.

A scab is good for a sore up to a certain point. It is composed of dried wound secretion, including some blood and some cast-off cells. Not only is it fairly near sterile but, because of the substances that go to make it up, it has some ability to kill the bacteria that follow it. It covers and protects the repairing cells that are at work below.

But scabs supply another illustration of the well known fact that too much of a good thing is bad. Thick, heavy, hard scabs prevent leg ulcers from healing by irritating them much as a corn irritates a toe. The first step in healing leg ulcers is to get rid of big, hard scabs. To do this cover the ulcers with a lot of gauze wet with boric acid solution. Put this on at bedtime, hold it in place with a bandage, and leave it on all night. The crust should be loosened by morning. If the crust or scab again piles up a horny mass, repeat the process. A light scab, on the other hand, promotes healing. This may be all the treatment needed.

In some cases it will be wise for the boy, after soaking off the scab, to sit quietly for fifteen minutes, letting the sun shine directly into the sore.

In a few cases some support is necessary. The best way to supply this is by means of a rubber adhesive bandage. It will answer, usually, to apply this below and around the ulcer. In some cases it will be best to put a little vaselined gauze over the ulcer, cover it with a piece of rubber sponge, and then carry the rubber adhesive over the ulcer area.

In practically all cases these indolent leg ulcers in children are easily cured. That they hang on is because they are neglected. Nobody takes the time necessary to give them care. If these simple mechanical procedures fail to cure let the doctor take on the job.

There may be some reason other than neglect for the persistence of the ulcers. If medicines are to be used locally it is safer to let the medical man pass on the needs.

EPHEDRINE.

A. S. C. writes:

1. Please tell me what effect ephedrine has.
2. Is it habit forming?
3. Does it affect the heart?
4. What does iodide potassium do?

REPLY.

1. It relieves local spasm for one effect. It is used to give relief in hay fever, asthma, and hives.
2. Not in a proper sense.
3. No.
4. It supplies the body with iodine. It causes inflammatory deposits to absorb. It is used in long continued chronic conditions of various kinds.

MANY POSSIBLE CAUSES.

E. J. M. writes: I have had yellow jaundice for the last two months, and I am troubled with a very annoying itch that seems to result from it. It prevents sleeping, and although I have tried baths I do not get relief. What causes this and what is the remedy?

REPLY.

Yours is another of the itches not caused by ringworm or scabies. Bile in the skin causes your itching. Hot sweats, Turkish baths, and hot baths help by causing the skin to throw off some bile. But what causes the jaundice which causes the itch? That's what you really want cured, if possible. Among the causes of jaundice are malaria, yellow fever, certain poisons, gallstones, infected gall bladder, some infections of the bile ducts and upper intestines, cancer of the liver. Which is the cause in your case?

FORECLOSURE.

Chicago, Nov. 2.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. If a building is in foreclosure, has a tenant the right to break his lease? 2. A building on which I hold a first mortgage has a suit against it [3] brought by a party who fell on the sidewalk surrounding this building. 4. If I should foreclose on this property will I be liable for damages? S. R.

1. The mere fact that foreclosure proceedings have started is not enough, but when a receiver takes possession this would be a denial of the title through which the lease was made.
2. We doubt if you are right in saying that the suit is against the building.
3. In general a property owner is not liable for failing to remove ice from his front sidewalk.
4. Probably not.

INHERITANCE.

Chicago, Nov. 3.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. What amount of inheritance is subject to government tax? Would $300 be taxable? Also, where a will is made leaving to each child "share and share alike of all properties, etc.," would trouble arise over the fact that [2] some of the property is in the name of the mother and one of the children, that is, would the bond, as it happens to be in this case, go to the child [3] in whose name it was [4] besides the mother's, or would it go to the estate? 5. Is it necessary to appoint an administrator? 6. Would all of the heirs have to view the opening of the box or would one be allowed to open it alone? B. H. V.

1. The federal estate tax depends on the size of the estate rather than on the size of the gifts into which it is divided. The Illinois inheritance tax depends on the size of the gifts and the degree of relationship of the beneficiary to the deceased.
2. If it can be proved that the property in question actually belonged to the deceased, then the will would be effective.
3. Bonds are ordinarily payable to bearer. We do not understand what you mean by this expression.
4. We do not understand this.
5. If the beneficiaries can get possession of the assets and all parties are satisfied, then we see no necessity for probate if there is no real estate.
6. The first opening of a safety box would be in the presence of an inheritance tax examiner. Subsequent control would depend on the wording of the will.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HELSINGFORS, Finland. — Cancellation of prohibition in Finland has satisfied neither the wets nor the drys, according to Nille Liakka, Finland's leading supporter of prohibition. Liakka alleges that conditions now are more deplorable than they were under prohibition.

Liakka, who is 70, has been fighting for the prohibition cause for fifty years. He refuses to admit that the repeal of the law by an overwhelming majority in the national referendum was due to the failure of prohibition. He contends that the Finns were stampeded by wet propaganda. He believes restrictions will return with local option, but does not believe Finland will pass another prohibition law for many years to come.

While Liakka's opinions are contrary to those held by other leading Finns, on one point he agrees with the wets. He believes agitation for prohibition should cease and be replaced by temperance propaganda. Another change in the law, he says, would undermine the authority of the government. Recently retired from politics, Liakka today is managing a foundation to promote adult education. He still devotes part of his time to temperance lectures.

"The repeal of the law has failed to halt smuggling and bootlegging in Finland and conditions are now worse than they were before," he said. "Crime is increasing, more people are in jail than before and with the government engaged in the liquor business it is trying to force the sale of alcoholic drinks to increase government revenues.

"Finland in its handling of the drink problem has gone from one extreme to the other. One important point, which was forgotten by the people, is that Finns do not drink for pleasure but to get drunk. When the government began to sell alcohol drunkenness increased."

When asked if he thought it was better that drinkers should be able to purchase only smuggled alcohol or, under the new law, some should continue to patronize the smugglers and the remainder buy better beverages from the government, Liakka evaded the question. He answered that under prohibition, law abiding people did not drink at all and today the same people were permitted by the law to drink.

"When prohibition was adopted in Finland in 1917 it was popularly recognized that alcohol was an evil," Liakka said. "It was a class law designed to prevent workers and farmers from drinking. The chief reason for the collapse of prohibition was our failure to convert the educated classes to prohibition. Uneducated people are instinctively against alcohol. The educated classes wanted it and in the end it was their efforts which changed the law. Prohibition depends upon education, not so much educating the the lower classes not to drink, but to convert the educated classes to prohibition.

"Part of the profits of the government alcohol monopoly should be spent on temperance propaganda and an advertising campaign. If the government should adopt an advertising program to awake the people against the danger of drinking smuggled alcohol and arouse popular opinion against the smuggler and bootlegger, great results could be achieved. If such a campaign were cleverly handled drinking could be be made unpopular.

"It is a mistake for the government monopoly to try to compete with the smuggler. A quart of smuggled alcohol can be purchased for 10 marks [25 cents]. This will make two quarts of vodka. The cheapest government vodka is sold for is 25 marks [63 cents]. The government should concentrate its efforts to put the smuggler and bootlegger out of business. That is the chief problem now."

HE WANTS MORE CARTOONS.

Chicago, Nov. 8.—I am not one who blindly and eternally agrees with THE TRIBUNE. In fact, my opinion of some of its journalistic tactics would be unprintable. But on major matters of national import I find its position generally sound.

I have read several letters of protest against your attitude on NRA and governmental policies as expressed in cartoons and editorials.

I just want to remind you that you faced the same sort of criticism in the early days of prohibition. Yet time has more than vindicated your stand on that subject, just as I believe it will do in relation to the NRA.

It is not so much what NRA, AAA et al. may do today or tomorrow that counts as what their consequences may be after a period of years. The net result to date seems to be an enormous increase in the cost of living, higher prices to the consumer with no proportional or even appreciable increase of return to the producer, a mounting public debt and more burdensome taxes, with an extravagance in government expenditures never equaled in peace times.

The most potent way of impressing these conditions on the minds of the people is through pictures, and I hope you will keep on and give us many more cartoons of this kind. R.

A RUDE AWAKENING.

Chicago, Nov. 8.—When Messrs. Lohlauer, Dropski and other correspondents begin to get their pay in 50 cent dollars perhaps they will wake up to the fact that THE TRIBUNE was correct in opposing the goofy ideas recently put forth in Washington. Roosevelt has the cart before the horse. Good times make high prices. High prices do not make good times. GEORGE WILLIAMS.

AN END TO SELF-DECEPTION.

Chicago, Nov. 8.—I just read the criticisms in regard to your cartoon of the 4th. No doubt the cartoon was somewhat vicious, but, after all, we can't go on kidding ourselves indefinitely. Some one must point out the facts and then we should all get together and try to profit by them. This should not prevent us from giving our President every cooperation possible. F. R. COGGBURN.

ONE MAN'S TESTIMONY.

Chicago, Nov. 8.—Thank heaven there is at least one TRIBUNE reader that knows the bad side of the NRA program. In your "Voice of the People" column of Nov. 8 the person who signed his name C. B. and gave his story the title of "China as a Model" sure knows his stuff. I agree with him in every respect, for I am only a poor workingman, and I am making less money now since my employers joined the NRA and I just about make ends meet. I hope you print this in your next edition for the sake of the people who had the gall to criticize your cartoon, "Fenced Off," of Nov. 4. As the saying goes, one picture tells more than a thousand words.

BERNARD J. BAXA.

GOOD SPORTSMANSHIP.

Chicago, Nov. 7.—Your paper showed good sportsmanship in publishing a number of letters received decrying your right to express the dissatisfaction of the responsible and thinking classes of these United States. Those who criticize use old worn-out phrases that mean nothing in this day and age. It is time for the citizens of this country to stand up and let the few in Washington know how unpopular their administration of public affairs really is. Yesterday's results in New York City forecast the beginning of the end, however, and the movement will gather momentum very quickly. ROBERT HULL.

BACK TO STRAIGHT THINKING.

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 8.—The barrage of witless letters appearing in today's TRIBUNE prompts this letter of approval of the valiant fight you are making to conserve what remains of the liberties of the people of this country. It is high time that other influential newspapers and individuals follow up THE TRIBUNE'S lead in showing up the fallacies now imposed upon us and get people back to straight thinking.

J. W. SMILEY.

ACCOMPLISHMENTS.

Joliet, Ill., Nov. 8.—"No Relief Anywhere" deliberately overlooks the fact that some 400,000 persons have been directly benefited by the NRA—that it has abolished child labor (the cancer of the nation for years), that it has eliminated the sweatshop and created a minimum wage and a maximum hourly week. Apparently Mr. Orr and his TRIBUNE associates harbor the belief that this is not good for the American public and likewise are of the opinion that those helped by the NRA are so lacking in intelligence that they will accept these interpretations without question.

Instead of thoughtless mud slinging of this nature, THE TRIBUNE should attempt to be a respectable sheet—for intelligent and respectable people—by devoting its space to sound and true discussion and interpretation of current national affairs. MARIAN A. MURPHY.

BOILING OVER.

Chicago, Nov. 8.—It makes one boil to read the stupid condemnations of your political cartoons. They have been timely and we should be thankful that there are those who still think. There are too many flag waving citizens who are willing to jump into any bandwagon. Our trouble today is that our hero worshipers have lost all sense of perspective.

AUSTRALIA WINS 42 MILLION CUT IN PUBLIC TAXES

Nation Is Seen on Road to Recovery.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SYDNEY, Australia, Nov. 10.—Australian state and federal governments have announced a general tax reduction totaling £8,440,000 [$42,200,000 at par] to the commonwealth's population of less than 7,000,000 people for the remaining nine months of the fiscal year to end June 30, 1934. And all Australia is rejoicing.

The anomaly of the situation, however, is that practically every one of the six Australian states has budgeted for deficits this current year. The commonwealth government also, with a surplus to date of £4,660,000 [$24,300,000 at par], has budgeted for a fiscal deficit of £3,672,000 [$18,360,000 at par].

Situation Looks Sound.

Australia's condition, economically and industrially, looks sound and healthy after three years of imminent political chaos and economic distress. The unemployment situation has been materially relieved. Public works in the building of roads, irrigation schemes, and other activities have become an important factor in relieving the situation. Sound government in practically every state has replaced the power of radicals. The commonwealth's huge surplus export trade over the last three years has strengthened the economic situation.

General tax reductions include abolition of family endowment tax [for weekly state payments to large families], federal entertainments tax, reductions in state and federal income and land taxes, substantial reductions in freight rates, exemptions in sales tax, and further reductions in customs and excise taxes.

Tax reductions were expedited by public demands through the press, similar to the campaign being conducted in America by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

Tariff on U. S. Goods Still High.

There is little or no relief from the prohibitive duties on goods imported into Australia from America. Principal benefits accrue to Australian imports from Britain.

New South Wales, mother state of the commonwealth, which has been the heaviest taxed state in the federation, announced tax reductions totaling £3,000,000 [$15,000,000 at par] for the remainder of the fiscal year to end June 30, 1934, despite an anticipated deficit of £3,602,021 [$18,000,000 at par].

Private enterprise is therefore rejoicing over Australia's announced tax reductions and the people feel happy and more confident of the future.

POLICE NAB LOW CLASS AFGHAN AS KILLER OF KING

LONDON, Nov. 10.—(AP)—The assassin of King Nadir Shah of Afghanistan, who was slain last week in his palace in Kabul, was understood by the Afghan legation here today to oe Abdul Khalio, a low class Afghan.

The legation said he found his way into the palace and killed the king there. He was immediately arrested and is at present undergoing trial in Kabul. The legation said everything in Afghanistan was reported "absolutely all right."

Close Khyber Pass.

NEW DELHI, India, Nov. 10.—(AP)—The Indian government today ordered the famous Khyber pass closed to outward traffic, following the assassination three days ago of King Nadir Shah of Afghanistan. The Afghan frontier is quiet at present but the move was regarded as a precautionary measure.

THEATER BURNS; 2 WOMEN, BABY ESCAPE DEATH

Bloomington, Ind., Nov. 10.—[Special.]—The Indiana Theater building was destroyed by fire today with a loss of $150,000. Two women and a 6 months' old child narrowly escaped serious injury when the women jumped from the second floor, one throwing her child to the crowd below.

The fire, of undetermined origin, started shortly before the theater was scheduled to open its regular afternoon performance. More than $10,000 loss was suffered by the Paul Graves sporting goods store, $25,000 by the Cooper-Holden Jewelry company, and $10,000 by the Joe Naille Fruit company.

Chinese Reds Accused of Massacre of 20,000

KIUKIANG, China, Nov. 10.—(AP)—Chinese reports today said communists had massacred 20,000 persons in their recent seizure of Hsuiting, Hsuiduan, Wanyuan and Chenkou. An orgy of plunder and terror, the reports added, followed the communist victories. The government was said to be making desperate efforts to retake the captured cities.

HOLD I. C. C. STILL HAS RULE OVER CAR FARES HERE

The legal staff of the Illinois commerce commission has decided that the commission still has jurisdiction over fares charged by the Chicago Surface line and the Chicago Rapid Transit (elevated) lines, notwithstanding the fact that they are in federal receivership, it was learned yesterday. The attorneys will so advise Benjamin F. Lindheimer, chairman of the commission, next week.

The interpretation by the commission's lawyers, Irwin Rooks and Harry R. Booth, means that the commission may now consider the petition of the Chicago and Cook County Car Riders' association, which demands revaluation of the traction properties. A new appraisal, it was asserted in the petition, would justify fares lower than the 7 and 10 cents now being charged by the street car and elevated companies, respectively.

At a recent hearing, lawyers for the two transit systems argued that the commerce commission did not have jurisdiction. They warned that an appraisal of the properties might disrupt reorganization plans and might dispel definitely any possibility of a consolidation of the two systems.

JAKE FINDS IT IS HARD TO REASON WITH A ROOSTER

MONTREAL, Que., Nov. 10.—(AP)—A tale of a rooster that mistook a street lamp for the sun was told in court today by Jake Karpman, who appeared on a "nuisance" charge.

Karpman explained that his rooster would awake during the night and mistaking the street light for the sun, would begin crowing. Thus both the rooster and Karpman earned the title "nuisance" in the neighborhood.

"Yes, your honor," Karpman replied, "and what's worse, that rooster looked so much like a hen I couldn't find him among the rest so I killed them all."

"Very effective," commented the recorder, suspending sentence.

Train Brings 64,821 to Fair from May 27 to Oct. 31

Officials of the Michigan Central railroad announced yesterday that the Exposition flyer of the road had brought 64,821 passengers into Chicago from Boston and New York from May 27 to Oct. 31. On Sept. 10 the train arrived in nine sections, and on twelve other occasions brought seven and eight sections.

FOES OF BRITAIN BLOW UP DUBLIN SHAFT TO QUEEN

Fear Republican Riots on Armistice Day.

BY HUGH CURRAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, Nov. 10.—The blowing up today of the Queen Victoria memorial on Bray head, near Dublin, is feared to be the prelude to other anti-British demonstrations in connection with tomorrow's Armistice day celebrations. The memorial, an obelisk erected to commemorate Queen Victoria's diamond jubilee, was blown up with dynamite. A bomb was also thrown at the royal arms over a shop in Abbey street here.

War veterans will march tomorrow in Phoenix park by permission of the government. No emblems except the poppy and legion standard may be displayed under the orders of the government. However, because the legion standard includes a small union jack, the Irish Republican army announced that it will not be permitted. Police are arranging to quell disturbances. It is feared all poppy wearers will be in danger of molestation.

Republican Army Truculent.

The republican army is displaying a truculent attitude. One republican newspaper said today that it is the duty of the republicans to embarrass the government whenever possible. It is generally believed that the breach is widening between the government and the republican army, especially in view of President De Valera's warning that "all illegalities will be fearlessly punished."

At a big mass meeting on College Green tonight an irreconcilable republican leader urged his hearers to "see that no imperialist display is allowed in Dublin tomorrow." He gave the order to snatch every poppy worn and pull down every union jack carried in the procession.

No effort was made by police to interfere with the College Green gathering and there were no incidents beyond a few scuffles.

Fight De Valera Pension Plan.

The announcement that the De Valera government will introduce immediately legislation to cancel military pensions awarded by the Cosgrave government today caused angry feelings among the 3,000 men affected.

The United Ireland party announced that when it returned to power, it would "remedy all the injustices done persons victimized on political grounds by the present government."

The withdrawal of the pensions, opponents of the plan say, will ruin thousands of citizens and soldiers, besides destroying reliance in the good faith of the state.

N. Y. TAXI TAX ON EACH FARE HELD ILLEGAL

New York, Nov. 10.—[Special.]—New York's newly enacted ordinance requiring taxicab operators to remit to the city 5 cents for each fare collected was ruled illegal today in a decision handed down by Supreme Court Justice Albert Cohn.

Justice Cohn held that the ordinance, which was passed as a means of bringing in new revenue to the city's badly depleted coffers, was in direct violation of section 54 of the state vehicle and traffic law which says in part that "local authorities shall have no power to pass, enforce or maintain any ordinance, rule or regulation requiring from any owner of a motor vehicle or motor cycle, or from any operator or chauffeur to whom this chapter is applicable, any tax, fee, license or permit for the use of the public highways."

"There is no escape from the conclusion that the fee of 5 cents for each fare collected, although denominated a 'license fee,' is in reality a tax," Justice Cohn ruled. "The ordinance accordingly violates the prohibition against taxation by local authorities."

The decision was in response to motions submitted by the United Taxicab Board of Trade, Inc., Beacon Transportation Co., Inc., and Fannie Levine, a taxpayer, to temporarily restrain the city from enforcing the ordinance which required that taxicab operators turn in their first month's collections to the city today.

Eggs Hurled at Platform Where Gandhi Is Seated

BOMBAY, Nov. 10.—(AP)—The Evening News of India said today that eggs were hurled at a platform on which Mahatma Gandhi, Indian leader, was seated, during a public meeting at Nagpur. The incident was regarded as the first of its kind in Gandhi's public life.

AUSTRIA CLAMPS ON MARTIAL LAW TO CURB NAZIS

Death Penalty Restored by Dollfuss Decree.

BY JAY ALLEN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VIENNA, Austria, Nov. 10.—In the face of Nazi outrages the Dollfuss government tonight suddenly brandished the death penalty by declaring martial law throughout this little land.

From now on any one caught in any of a wide selection of offenses against the state, even against public safety, will be brought before a special tribunal and may be made to pay the supreme penalty which heretofore in Austria has been hanging.

The death penalty, abolished by the republican constitution, could only be established by a declaration of martial law. So martial law was declared, although Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss explained that the military authorities will not take over the enforcement of the law and that civilian courts will try all offenders.

Dollfuss Goes on Air.

Recourse to these drastic measures against the mounting Nazi peril was announced just before midnight over the government radio. Dollfuss made the following announcement:

"A large part of the Austrian population for a long time has been demanding reintroduction of the death penalty. Neighboring countries have it and so manage to protect themselves against abominable crimes for which public sentiment demands punishment. To reintroduce the death penalty to Austria by constitutional means is impossible. But a series of detestable crimes has hindered our economic reconstruction, disturbed peace and order, and upset the peaceful population. They can not be punished adequately by the existing statutes.

"So with the agreement of the minister of justice the chancellor has decided to fulfill the wishes of the huge majority of the people and give them the proper protection for peaceful reconstruction of our fatherland. Martial law, which, according to existing legislation, can be applied in cases of murder, arson, damage to property, violence, and incitation of violence, is declared in effect in all Austria for these crimes. No restriction of the liberties of the peaceful element of the population is intended."

Strengthen Military Forces.

Dollfuss followed up the announcement by strengthening the military forces by calling 1,500 militiamen from the pro-Fascist Heimwehr into active duty. They will help with elaborate precautions to prevent any possible violence on the 15th anniversary of the republic Sunday. Rumors have been current of a Nazi rampage planned for that day.

Socialists of Vienna tonight suddenly realized that martial law could be applied to them in case they decided to resist encroachments of their privileges by a general strike.

Break Up Socialist Rallies.

Outraged at the government refusal to allow public observances of the anniversary of the republic, they are going ahead with plans to celebrate anyway. Three hundred Socialist meetings in Vienna were broken up by police.

To top the day off, Dollfuss announced he was going to take over the financial affairs of the city of Vienna. Without warning, he ordered Vienna to cancel the recent increase in the motion picture luxury tax and to abolish or drastically reduce the recent increase in municipal gas and electric rates.

CITY EMPLOYES TO GET $1,800,000 BACK PAY TODAY

The city will start paying its employés today for the first half of August, Mayor Kelly announced yesterday. The payment, approximately $1,800,000 will reduce city pay arrears to two and a half months.

At a meeting to which he summoned all city department and bureau heads yesterday Mayor Kelly warned members of his cabinet that they must exercise stringent economy for the remainder of this year and in their plans for next year, if they wish to avoid reductions of the personnel of their departments in the 1934 budget.

He and Controller Upham issued a warning that 1934 appropriations must be cut $5,000,000 below those for the present year, because of the loss of revenue resulting from the 25 per cent cut in 1932 real estate assessments. If a $5,000,000 saving cannot be made through economy in supply purchases, it must be effected by laying off employés, Mayor Kelly said.

DRIVER ROBBED OF $300.

David Sazel, 1135 Independence boulevard, a driver for the Division Market company, 2631 Division street, was robbed of $300 by two armed bandits who halted the truck in front of 3260 Beach avenue yesterday.

Nazi Organizer Now Is Fugitive.

New York, Nov. 10.—[Special.]—Heinz Spanknoebel, organizer in this country of Nazi sympathizers and friends of the Hitler régime, was indicted by the federal grand jury today on a charge of failing to register with the state department while acting as an agent of the Presse Abtheil, a division of the ministry of propaganda of the German government.

This is a violation of a wartime statute, section 233 of title 22, United States code, which carries with it a maximum penalty on conviction of five years' imprisonment and a $5,000 fine. Spanknoebel has been a fugitive since the issuing of a warrant for his arrest three weeks ago today by United States Commissioner Francis A. O'Neill.

Hearing Takes Three Weeks.

The grand jury investigation, conducted by United States Attorney George Z. Medalie, continued over a period of three weeks, during which a score of witnesses, mostly persons close to the Friends of New Germany, were examined.

The investigation of Nazi activities was precipitated by the stories published in the German-American newspapers owned by Bernard F. and Victor H. Ridder telling of an attempt on the part of Spanknoebel to set himself up as a censor of all German language newspapers in this country.

These articles described a visit which Spanknoebel had made to the Ridders' offices, during which he is said to have produced credentials of the Presse Abtheil and to have announced that henceforth he would sit in judgment on any stories relating to the new Germany and the Hitler dictatorship.

Expelled from His Job.

He was expelled summarily from the Ridders' offices and the publication of the affair caused Mr. Medalie to begin his investigation.

At the time the warrant was issued for Spanknoebel he was living at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Ignatz T. Griebl, here in Manhattan. He immediately disappeared, a friend removing his baggage the following day, and despite the efforts of agents of the department of justice nothing has been seen of him since.

NAZIS ACCUSED OF MURDERING 50 IN PRISON CAMP

PARIS, Nov. 10.—Czechoslovakian sources, according to Impress [German refugees' news agency], report that in the prison camp at Dachau, near Munich, more than 50 prisoners have been killed. The statement is offered in refutation of Chancellor Hitler's allegation that the entire Nazi revolution claimed only 50 lives.

The statement relates the existence at Dachau of a special punishment consisting of incarceration in a dark cell and gradual day by day lessening of rations until the prisoner starves to death. Nobody ever emerged alive, the statement adds. One prisoner remained alive at the end of six weeks and was murdered, according to the allegation.

The murder of a communist deputy, named Dressel, in a provincial government is reported. The statement says he was handed a rope and knife and given 24 hours to kill himself or be killed, adding that later Dressel's body was exhibited to another deputy, named Beimler. He, too, was given a knife and rope, but the prisoner escaped.

rights. I will not have this nation treated as the world's bootblack.

"Either we get equal rights or the world will never see us at another conference.

Boasts of Power.

"I have more power than the German chancellor of years ago [referring to Bismarck]. It is not for my sake that I am appealing to you to support my policy by voting 'yes' in the plebiscite. I do not need your vote. I am in the saddle for another three and a half years.

"The German nation needs your votes. Your work needs them. If you do your duty Sunday, then, probably for the first time in history, the world will realize it can no longer hope for German internal dissensions. Then, too, it must make up its mind to deal with the entire German nation."

When the chancellor, in the course of his speech, referred to German refugees in foreign countries, shouts of "Down with the Jews!" echoed through the dynamo shop, but Hitler ignored them.

Today's spectacle was arranged by that master propagandist, Dr. Joseph Goebbels, minister of propaganda and public enlightenment. While the nation was waiting for Hitler to speak, he stepped to the microphone and said:

"A miracle has happened—Germany has awakened. She has found herself again and will realize her destiny in greater splendor than ever."

Hitler Concludes Campaign.

Then he introduced Hitler.

Hitler's address concluded his cyclonic campaign for the election, in which Germany is expected to vote "yes" to his foreign policy unanimously and elect a practically all-Nazi reichstag.

The spotlight will desert him for a brief spell tomorrow. It will descend upon the aged President von Hindenburg, who will make one of his rare radio appeals to the nation at 7 p. m.

The Nazi government intends to brand nonvoters as traitors. In order to distinguish voters from nonvoters, persons who cast their ballots will wear buttons with the legend, "Ja [Yes], 1933."

10 Socialist Leaders Seized.

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

MUNICH, Nov. 10.—The Augsburg police have taken ten prominent local members of the now dissolved Social Democratic party into "preventive custody."

The ten Socialists are not accused of having committed any offense. They have been arrested as a "counter-measure" because "illegal leaflets were recently distributed in Augsburg which seemed to emanate from a socialist source."

The police have published a warning that persons who damage election posters, distribute illegal literature or indulge in such "treasonable activities" will be arrested and confined in the concentration camp at Dachau. The police, it is added, "will make unhesitating use of their revolvers in case of resistance to arrest or attempts to escape."

COURT RELEASES YOUTH.

Samuel Muchia, 17 years old, 1023 Larrabee street, who was arrested several weeks ago with a youth who was later identified as a robber, was freed yesterday when he was arraigned before Judge John Gutknecht on a charge of disorderly conduct.

FRENCH OBSERVE 'PEACE DAY' WITH EYE ON GERMANY

Showdown Seen Near on Europe's Fate.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Nov. 10.—With eyes turned towards the Rhine, awaiting the results of the German plebiscite Sunday on Chancellor Hitler's policy of withdrawing from the league of nations and disarmament conference, France tonight was preparing for its most uneasy Armistice day since 1919.

Government and diplomatic circles are nervous over the inevitable European showdown which must be faced once the German plebiscite is past. Definite propositions will be submitted and France will have to take a decision on which the eventual fate of Europe depends.

Postpone Chamber Debate.

Under the circumstances, Premier Albert Sarraut and Foreign Minister Joseph Paul-Boncour tonight decided that the international situation is so delicate that the government could not reply to interpellations on foreign affairs in the chamber of deputies.

As a consequence, after the last of many orators had finished telling his apprehensions, the session of the chamber was cut short at 7 o'clock tonight and postponed until Tuesday, when the government will reply. It is expected that by then some definite indication of Germany's future policy will be available.

Intelligent Frenchmen fear they have lost the psychological advantage they had immediately after Germany's departure from Geneva. The recall of Norman H. Davis, United States ambassador at large, destroyed the last hope of maintaining a common front against Germany.

France Faces Onslaught.

Now the French realize they are going to have to face a fresh diplomatic onslaught in which Germany will have the complete backing of Italy and at least the partial support of Great Britain. This time, according to trial balloons which already have been sent up in Geneva, France will be asked to sacrifice not only its military superiority but its sway in the league of nations.

The Germans have intimated unofficially that they will only come back into the Geneva fold if the French consent to reorganization of the league which will wipe out the preponderance of power which France now enjoys and rejuvenate the clumsy rules of procedure which enable France to block any move towards treaty revision.

There is also a suggestion for calling somewhere in Switzerland outside of Geneva a conference of the four big powers and France's continental allies to try to break the arms deadlock.

Suggest France Seek Ally.

There is already a strong movement under way with which a section of the government sympathizes for scrapping the Geneva régime and returning to the pre-war balance of power—but without basing the country's security on an alliance with Britain. Some of Sarraut's close advisers are urging him to form an alliance with any one or two of the three big continental powers — Germany, Italy, and Russia—and cease worrying about the rest of the world.

While these are preoccupations of the government politicians, the chamber of deputies and the press are fretting the general public with war talk which supplies a sinister and ironic background for the traditional ceremonies which will take place all over the country tomorrow.

One of the most alarming notes was the nationalist offensive launched in the chamber today against the return of the Saar basin to Germany.

One deputy, Alfred Oberkirch, frankly argued against returning this German province to Germany as stipulated by the Versailles treaty. Referring to the terrorist campaign against the Socialist and communist minority now being carried on by the Nazis, Oberkirch declared it would be a "sinister comedy" to hold the scheduled plebiscite in 1935.

ENVOYS ACCUSED OF MAKING FALSE GERMAN REPORT

Claim Arms Situation Was Concealed in 1927.

BRUSSELS, Belgium, Nov. 10.—(AP)—The newspapers Soir and Nation Belge today published alleged confidential documents purporting to show that the conference of ambassadors in 1927 withheld the truth regarding the extent to which Germany had disarmed under the Versailles treaty.

The publication caused a sensation and the rumor of a possibility that Foreign Minister Paul Hymans might resign because of an insinuation that he had deceived parliament.

Says Report Was Altered.

According to the newspapers the inter-allied military commission had reported that the disarmament of Germany had not been wholly effected as stipulated by the treaty. Then, it was stated in the reported document, the conference of ambassadors altered the commission's report, which actually concluded:

"That Germany cannot be considered as having satisfied all clauses of paragraph five of the Versailles treaty referring to military, naval, and air clauses."

[The paragraph in question refers to limitation of Germany's armament in the categories mentioned. The conference of ambassadors was set up by the treaty of Versailles as a permanent institution in connection with carrying out of the terms of the treaty.]

Duce Frowns on Arms Talks.

ROME, Nov. 10.—(AP)—An official communique, commenting on the recent visit of Hermann Wilhelm Goering, German minister of aviation, said today that the international situation is not yet ripe for a renewal of disarmament conversations.

When Goering came to Rome he brought with him a letter from Chancellor Hitler whose contents, not disclosed, excited speculation. The communique said the letter did not contain a proposal for a renewal of disarmament conversations and did not ask Italy to take the initiative toward such a renewal.

Instead, according to the communique, Hitler merely reviewed the disarmament situation and Germany's motives for leaving the arms conference at Geneva.

Girl 2 Years Old Shot by Cousin Playing 'Gangsters'

Dolly Mandela, 2 years old, was in a critical condition in the county hospital last night as the result of playing "gangsters" with her cousin, Thomas Pitt, 8 years old, during the afternoon. The boy found a .22 caliber rifle in a closet in the home of Mrs. Rosalind Giodana, 2857 North Neenah avenue, where the Mandela and Pitt families live. He was "making Dolly think we were gangsters" and shot her in the body.

DEMAND U.S. HEAR CONSUMERS' SIDE OF MILK PRICES

Aldermen Send Telegram to George N. Peek.

BY PAUL POTTER.

While federal farm administration officials prepared yesterday to open hearings on the milk situation in the Chicago metropolitan area here next Wednesday, agencies representing the consumers took steps to gather facts on the costs of distributing milk and the possibilities of reducing the retail price without cutting prices paid to the farmers.

The session Wednesday, which was ordered by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, will be concerned only with hearing the defense of 77 independent milk dealers for alleged violations of the Chicago milk marketing agreement. The AAA charges that the local stores and dairies sold milk at less than the price fixed by the government.

Dispatches from Washington last night stated that Elmer D. Hays of the AAA would be sent here to conduct the hearing. Lisle A. Smith and John Blalock will appear as government counsel.

Send Telegram to Peek.

At the same time a telegram was sent by the city council subcommittee on milk, to George N. Peek, federal farm administrator, demanding that he call the public hearing for consumers, which he promised the committee and Mayor Kelly he would hold here. Ald. David L. Sutton, chairman of the subcommittee, said the promise had been made on Oct. 13, but that the AAA administrator has not replied to telegrams asking when the hearing would be held.

Ald. Sutton declared that if a favorable reply is not received the committee will circulate petitions among dairy farmers and city consumers addressed to President Roosevelt asking that he direct the AAA to set a date for the hearing.

Mayor Kelly also declared that he would insist that the hearing be called. He said he would be in Washington next Wednesday on official business and would "see the responsible authorities to demand that a date be set."

Meanwhile reports from Chicago dairies indicated yesterday that there has been no drop in the retail milk consumption since the price was increased to 11 cents a quart. The smaller dairies, however, and the milk drivers whose routes lie in neighborhoods where milk is retailed on a "cash and carry" basis for 9 cents a quart are reporting a loss of business.

May Tear Up Agreements.

Otto Black, agent for the Chicago Milk Dealers' association, at a milk hearing yesterday called by the Cook County Federation of Women's Clubs in the Republic building, said that the smaller dairies would not be content to continue losing business. He predicted that many dealers would "tear up the government code" and start store sales themselves, buying their milk direct from farmers.

Representatives of the larger dairies who attended the hearing said that little change in the volume of milk sales had been noted since the price increase of 1 cent a quart eight days ago. They said there might be a drop in the retail consumption after consumers receive their bills for the month of November, showing the extra cost.

Spokesmen for the Pure Milk association, the Milk Wagon Drivers' union, the Milk Council, independent dairies, and farmers who are not members of the Pure Milk association, were heard by the women's federation. At the close a plea was made by Mrs. Wilbur E. Fribley of the Chicago Consumers' council for allegiance to the NRA and AAA. Mrs. Henry W. Hardy, chairman of the meeting, declared the federation would make no recommendations to consumers.

Aldermen Hear Consumers.

Another milk hearing was held yesterday by the Sutton committee at the city hall, where consumers voiced disapproval of the increase in the price of milk and the existing system of deliveries. R. A. McDaniels, who said his family was on the public relief rolls, said he had been notified by the Chase park district that he could not purchase milk from an independent milk stand for 8 cents a quart, but must pay 9½ cents, the price allowed relief clients by the organized dairies.

The aldermen took under advisement a plan advanced by Winfield H. Caslow, a publisher, for reducing distribution costs of milk by locating milk stores in 1,600 districts of the city on a basis of population.

"The cash and carry system will throw hundreds of drivers out of work and it would be in direct conflict with the President's recovery program," testified Henry Webber, milk wagon driver.

Saving of Three Cents.

"Don't you believe that I, as a consumer, should be entitled to a saving of three cents a quart, if that is the cost of delivery, when I go to the store and pay cash for my milk?" Ald. Roger Kiley asked him. Webber agreed that he would.

"We intend to see that the facts about the milk situation are given a full airing in the interests of consumers," declared Ald. Joseph Ross.

Ald. Sutton said the council committee, backed by Mayor Kelly, is investigating a plan put into effect recently in Baltimore and other cities by the AAA. Instead of fixing farmer and consumer prices in a code, the AAA has set a minimum price in those cities that must be paid dairymen and a maximum price that can be charged consumers.

JAILS MOTHER 30 DAYS FOR RELIEF FRAUD

Admits Son Wed and Asked More Aid.

The sentencing of a woman to serve 30 days in the county jail yesterday marked the drive against persons receiving relief from the Illinois Emergency Relief commission under false pretenses. The sentence was imposed by Municipal Judge Alfred O. Erickson, sitting in the newly established relief court, upon Mrs. Evelyn Lewellyn, 51 years old, 5527 Lowe avenue.

Attorney James A. Peterson, representing the commission, told the court that Mrs. Lewellyn had reported her husband as unemployed and had been receiving aid amounting to $318.17 for a period from October, 1932, to June, 1933. She said the funds were needed for the support of herself and her five children, Duane, 24; Harold, 12; Jean, 8; Frances, 7; and Yvonne, 3 years old.

Investigation revealed, however, that the husband was employed by the Link Belt company. Company records showed that during May he received $154 and during that month Mrs. Lewellyn collected some $50 in cash and grocery orders from the relief commission.

Son Weds and Asks Relief.

How the relief racket grows was revealed in the examination of Mrs. Lewellyn by Attorney Peterson. The woman admitted that her eldest son, seeing the ease with which the family was able to get relief, courted a young woman, got married, and immediately applied to the relief commission for the support of himself and his wife.

"Why, this is outrageous," commented Judge Erickson. "I never heard anything like it. About thirty days in jail should teach you that the taxpayers' money is not to be squandered on persons who do not need relief."

When Mrs. Lewellyn pleaded that she was needed to care for her children, Judge Erickson telephoned the home and instructed the oldest son, now living with his bride in the home of the parents, to care for the children.

Issues 16 More Warrants.

The court also issued sixteen additional warrants in relief fraud cases on the request of Attorney Peterson, bringing the total number of warrants issued this week to twenty-seven.

Joseph L. Moss, head of the county department of public welfare, yesterday delayed issuing the report on relief commission expenditures during October. It was reported that the statement would show thousands more lopped off the relief rolls, but still greater expenses. The report for August showed such a condition, and was followed by much criticism of the relief organization's methods of distributing relief funds. Many wanted to know why a decrease in the number of "clients" should not show a corresponding decrease in the cost of relief.

Mr. Moss said that the report would be made public some time next week. It was said to have been the subject of discussion at a meeting of the relief commission officials yesterday.

POLL OFFICIALS OF JUNE ELECTION TO GET CHECKS

Michael J. O'Connor, deputy county controller, announced yesterday that judges and clerks who served in the June 5 election would be given their pay checks today and tomorrow in the office of County Treasurer McDonough. The Chicago polls officials, about 15,000 in number, must call for their checks, totaling $130,000. The treasurer's office will be open today from 1 to 10 p. m. and tomorrow from 9 a. m. to 1 p. m. to distribute their checks. Checks aggregating $19,000 will be mailed to country town officials.

MONEY WILL END FARMERS' STRIKE, WALLACE AVERS

Points to Improvement in Cotton States.

The way to stop farm strikes is to show farmers some money. The assertion was made last night by Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace, who stopped in Chicago on his way to Des Moines, Ia., where he is to explain the corn-hog plan of the government to farmers tonight.

He arrived from the capital by the United Air Lines and was driven downtown to catch a train. At the airport the secretary was asked if he expected to confer with Milo Reno, leader of the farm holiday groups, in Iowa.

"Reno," he replied, "is a picturesque character. But the way to relieve troubles on the farm is get some money into farmers' hands. There has been a noticeable improvement in southern conditions since government checks to coöperating cotton growers have started going out. I think there will be a similar improvement in the middle west in a month."

Sees Racketeering in Milk.

Commenting on the local controversy between code operators and independents in the milk marketing field, Secretary Wallace said that it "looks like there is racketeering in milk." A hearing on the matter is to begin in Chicago on Nov. 15.

Contracts which, it is expected, three million corn belt farmers will sign to obtain a share of the government's 350 million dollar production cut funds were drafted here yesterday. Present at the meeting called for this purpose in the Stevens hotel were administrators of th AAA program and directors of extension services from western states.

The signing farmers will pledge themselves to cut hog production 25 per cent and corn acreage 40 per cent in 1934. Speakers at the meeting said that the attempt to regulate these two products was a project greater in magnitude than the combined wheat and cotton programs recently inaugurated.

AAA to Offer One Contract.

One contract is to be offered both corn and hog farmers, it was announced by Claude R. Wickard, Carroll county farmer assisting the AAA in launching the nation-wide program. Payments of bonuses will be made to owners of the land on which corn acreage is curtailed and to the owner of the hogs whose pig output is reduced next year.

The checks will be sent out some time this winter for the first payments. Illinois farmers may get about 35 millions in cash benefits under the contract, it was estimated. On a good cornbelt farm the rental paid by the government for curtailing corn acreage will run as high as $15 an acre.

Taking advantage of lessons learned in the application of the crop reduction schemes of the AAA to cotton and wheat, the corn and hog administrators are giving extra inducements to farmers for reducing their output. The farmer who agrees to reduce his corn acreage one-fifth below the average for five years will be paid rental benefits up to 30 per cent, according to Wickard.

High Tariffs in Europe.

Dr. A. G. Black, in charge of the entire corn and hog program, warned American farmers that reduced production is imperative if normal prices for corn and hogs are to return. He said that Germany has increased hog production from twelve to twenty-three million head a year in the last twelve years. Denmark, France, and other European countries have imposed high tariffs on pork also, and have encouraged home production.

Dr. Black declared that the purpose of the government's present effort is to pay farmers "enough to tide them over" while they are making the necessary readjustment in their farm operations.

FARMER "BANK" FOR EACH COUNTY PLANNED BY U. S.

Madison, Wis., Nov. 10.—[Special.]—A coöperative "bank" in each county of Wisconsin for the purpose of providing farmers with all forms of refinance loans is the next step of the federal government through the land bank in St. Paul to distribute aid, Leo T. Crowley, chairman of the governor's advisory board, said today.

Although these "banks" will intrude on the farm loan business of national and state banks the plan will drive more currency into communities and relieve many true banks of frozen assets, Crowley said.

This program is to be nation-wide, Crowley said, but it will be tried out in Wisconsin first because the federal farm relief plan has advanced more rapidly here than i other states.

NO EMBARGO FOR FARM STRIKERS IN SOUTH DAKOTA

Governor Heeds Pleas of Producers.

Pierre, S. D., Nov. 10.—[Special.]—There will be no embargo on shipments of produce from South Dakota as requested by the farm holiday organization.

Gov. George Berry reached that decision today after hearing from governors of other northwest states and receiving many pleas from farmers that no such action be taken.

Many of the farmers of the state look to turkey marketing for ready cash receipts, and an embargo now, they stated, would cut them out of the Thanksgiving market.

Among those who told Gov. Berry he deemed an embargo at this time i advisable was Gov. Floyd B. Olson of Minnesota. The governors talked by telephone.

Mob Overpowers Sheriff.

Marshall, Minn., Nov. 10.—(AP)—Sheriff George H. Rankin was disarmed, his car pelted and fists, clubs, and stones flew here today in the first Minnesota violence of the midwest farm strike.

Police said 1,100 men invaded the city this afternoon and assembled at the Swift & Co. plant. They demanded that the manager close. He called the police and sheriff's office and the fire whistle, blown by prearrangement, summoned a fire truck.

The fire truck and sheriff arrived simultaneously and both became the target for clubs and stones. There was a short struggle. Firemen who apparently planned to connect a fire hose to play on the crowd, leaped from their machines as missiles shattered the windshields.

Sheriff Rankin, heading a force of ten policemen and deputy sheriffs, was singled out and dragged from his car. He quickly yielded his gun, badge, and keys. No shots were fired.

Meanwhile, striking delegations hurried to other creameries and poultry plants and persuaded them to close. Apparently satisfied, the visitors marched down the main streets and then dispersed.

Two Bridges Dynamited.

Missouri Valley, Ia., Nov. 10.—(AP)—Two railway bridges, one of the Illinois Central and one on the Chicago and North Western, were slightly damaged by dynamite blasts early today.

The bridges, parallel to each other, are located three miles south of Woodbine and eight miles east of Logan, Harrison county seat. Traffic was not delayed.

Railway officials attributed the attempt to wreck the bridge to farm strikers. Harrison county, near Council Bluffs, is considered the best organized Iowa unit of the National Farmers' Holiday association.

Slaying Suspect Held.

Sioux City, Ia., Nov. 10.—(AP)—Reopening of the picket war slaying of R. D. Markell, Elk Point, S. D., farmer, last year appeared probable today with the arrest of Ray Martin, 30, of Kingsley.

A pistol was taken from Martin. Sheriff Rippey said he planned to have a ballistics expert compare the bullets taken from Markell's body with those fired by Martin's pistol.

ROBBER CAUGHT IN BATTLE WITH A POLICEMAN

Harold Matson, 28 years old, 6236 South Park way, was captured last night after he and a companion had tied up two clerks and looted the showcases of a jewelry store at 752 East 63d street of jewelry and diamonds valued at $8,000. His companion escaped with the loot.

Entering the store, the two robbers held up the clerks, Leo Moss and Charles Feinberg, and bound and gagged them in a rear room. Just as they had finished emptying the showcases of valuables, William H. Nieder, manager of the store, returned from supper, accompanied by a customer.

Nelder, divining that something was wrong, pretended to faint and staggered toward the door. One of the robbers barred his way, but he knocked the man down and ran out to the nearby intersection of 63d street and Cottage Grove avenue, where he found Policeman Orville Christensen of the Woodlawn station directing traffic.

Christensen ran back to the store with his revolver drawn. One of the robbers fled. Christensen fired two shots at Matson without hitting him. Then Matson and the policeman grappled and they struggled until others helped overpower the robber. The other robber escaped after outdistancing Policeman William Marshall, who happened to be passing the store.

Freed from Jail Five Days Early to Attend the Fair

Peoria, Ill., Nov. 10.—(AP)—Included among the visitors at A Century of Progress Exposition in Chicago this week-end will be Peter Napoleon, Toluca still operator, who is serving a six months' jail term. Hearing the prisoner desired to attend the Exposition, Federal Judge J. Earl Major took pity on the man's plight—the prisoner was to be released five days after closing of the Exposition Sunday—and ordered him released today.

MICHIGAN FARM BUREAU CALLS NRA HARMFUL

Lansing, Mich., Nov. 10.—[Special.]—Protest that the effect of NRA on Michigan agriculture has been "oppressive rather than helpful" was voiced in a resolution passed by the Michigan state farm bureau at its 16th annual convention here today.

The delegates expressed their sympathy with the purposes of the recovery administration, but noted that "the new order has increased cost of all commodities except those produced on the farm."

The agricultural adjustment act was also criticized as of no value to this state. The act is providing substantial economic benefits to producers of certain basic commodities such as wheat, corn, and hogs, it was stated, but Michigan agriculture is too diversified to be notably assisted by price increases in a few basic items. Placing of Michigan farmers on a parity with those of other states as regards operation of this act was demanded.

SATURDAY NEWS OF NEW BOOKS

Era of Crash Background of Barnes Novel

"Within This Present" a Panorama of Times.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"Within This Present," by Margaret Ayer Barnes. [Houghton-Mifflin.] Published on Wednesday.

As Margaret Ayer Barnes' "Years of Grace" was a panoramic record of pillars of Chicago in a day when pillars were what held up the city's structure, "Within This Present" is a panoramic record of Chicago in days when the joint Samsons of the war and the depression plucked pillars away and tumbled the solid social structure into jackstraws.

Mrs. Barnes has chosen as the central group for "Within This Present" a banking family who in the generation of "Granny" [aged seventy-five as the book opens] came west to build a new city, and who in 1914, with the opening of the book, are keystones in the social and economic structure of Chicago.

Through 611 pages the reader is a member of that family, knit in the oddly "knit one, purl one" fashion that family life of that period of transition was knit . . . while families still took their joint responsibilities for granted, and their joint pleasures for required amusement, but after the charm which characterized the "years of grace" which the first book celebrated had given place to a general miasma of boredom in a surfeit of wealth, emotion and leisure. The family in "Within This Present" is a typical "nice" family in every accepted sense of the word and different from any other typical nice family in the middle west only in the fact that wealth made it possible for them to live on a more luxurious scale than most of the millions of their fellow Chicago-landsmen.

But what "this present" did to them was what happened on either a lesser or a greater scale to every one of those millions. The war came. Their sons went to it. Their daughters found themselves ecstatically married much in the same fashion that one finds one's self ecstatically riding the breakers on a gloriously rough day at the beach. Death snipped a young life as carelessly [and as extravagantly] as an exquisitely wrapped Christmas gift is torn open by too eager fingers. Fifteen years ago today life seemed suddenly—after the years which had preceded it—to be the dawning of a new day. Not only peace but plenty blessed a whole people. Every one found gold a water to call holy.

And then suddenly they were all like prospectors in Death Valley—gold in nuggets [small ones for the elevator boys in the Farmers' Loan & Trust company and in cartloads for the stockholders] were only so much extra weight in their gropings toward something to quench their spiritual thirst. And then, again as suddenly as the other swift changes of "this present," there came the economic pressure on elevator boy and stockholders alike and their courageous acceptance of what any one would and nobody could change.

It is because "Within This Present" tells the story of what "Only Yesterday" did to a group typical [within the limitations of being at the upper rather than the lower reaches of the social scale] that the novel will have an intimacy and a personal impingement on the lives of many readers that "Years of Grace" lacked. Not the same things, but the same SORT of things have happened to every reader "within this present."

As a panorama, Mrs. Barnes' fictional history of the last fifteen years is as important and artistic a record as the great tapestries of the middle ages were records of their day . . . everything is there, bankers, bootleggers, war marriages, divorces, progress, poverty, invention, prevention, gold, and the economic guillotine embroidered perspectively in the threads of one family.

"Within This Present" is a profounder book than "Years of Grace" if a less charming one. In it there is real social criticism impiled, if not expressed. In it there is no charm in the sense that charm was so obvious in the "Years of Grace" book, but there is in its place a serious interpretation of a period. They are both "background" rather than "foreground" novels. Not the human beings in them, but the social forces of their day are the really motivating characters in both of Mrs. Barnes' major novels.

The social force of "The Years of Grace" is the "sous mere" as the French call it—the "under sea," the ground swell of charm and grace in a leisurely peace. The social force of "Within This Present" is the cataclysmic storm, the tidal wave of the war, the inconclusive peace, the economic wreck. Those days were too violent to be concerned with charm and grace, and Mrs. Barnes has set them down in their own mood and tense just as she set down "Years of Grace" in the mood and tense of its period.

Shaw's Lecture.

Bernard Shaw wrote his publishers anent the publication as a small book of "The Future of Political Science in America" [Dodd Mead], the lecture which he delivered last spring in New York: "I have written the report of the lecture and made it quite presentable."

Novel of Days Since 1914

Margaret Ayer Barnes, whose first novel, "Years of Grace," won the Pulitzer prize for 1931, has just published another panorama of Chicago life (from 1914-1933), "Within This Present." It is fitting that it should be reviewed today, as the causes and effects of Armistice day fifteen years ago, are the motivation of Mrs. Barnes' novel.

'Over Here' Is Record of War Days at Home

The perfect book for today is the fifth volume of Mark Sullivan's monumental history of "Our Times," which he calls "Over Here," for the focal point, the climax, the resolving moment of the whole book is the moment, fifteen years ago today, when peace—although mangled—again walked the earth.

To any one who wants facts, obscure as well as main, about "our times" Mr. Sullivan's history [still uncompleted] is all of the treasure islands put together. To anyone whose memory is frayed at the edges on questions of dress, political issues, popular songs, slang, the books of that moment, international relationships . . . Mr. Sullivan offers the clean scissors effect. To anyone who wants just to be amused by the special brand of fools that mortals were in "our times," Mr. Sullivan's pages are filled with delight.

"Our Times" is a unique history in that it has been written by one of the great journalists of "our times" from the source material of the newspapers of the nation. Reflecting as they do not only national but sectional reactions to events, chronicling them from different viewpoints and recording everything at the moment as it happened, newspapers offer to a man of intelligence inimitable source material on our peculiarly articulate country.

Mr. Sullivan has used that material to write what is, to me, the absolutely indispensable popular history of our lifetime. His volumes will be used as source material by the historians of the future, so painstakingly has he done the endless, dog-tiring job of sorting and editing the news that was worth preserving for a swift general survey of the time. The amount of sheer labor that has gone into these volumes is appalling. But it is by no means love's labor lost, for since he has done his thorough research the quality of the background in all books about America from 1900 to 1914, and especially in novels, has vastly improved. There is no excuse now [when all one need do is look it up in Mark Sullivan] to make mistakes. A profuse index in each volume makes the confirmation of memory merely a matter of a moment's looking up.

I would as soon think of being without "Our Times" as I would of trying to work without a dictionary or an encyclopedia.

But even if it weren't indispensable for reference, I wouldn't miss a volume of "Our Times" if I had to eat hominy grits three times a day to afford them. They delight me completely. To read aloud, the only trouble with them is that the illustrations, cartoons, photographs, etc., which adorn almost every page cannot be adequately described, but must be looked at. Next Friday you may share with me this enthusiasm for Vol. V.

Churchill Pens Book on First Marlborough

Answers Critics of Noted Ancestor.

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON. — [Special Correspondence.]—Messrs. Harrap, the publishers of Winston Churchill's life of his great ancestor, the first duke of Marlborough [perhaps the greatest of all British generals], gave a luncheon party to celebrate the appearance of the first volume.

Mr. Churchill spoke, and spoke well; and he also said in the course of his speech a number of things [about Macaulay and other critics of Marlborough] which aroused acute interest in the book. A good start.

This is the second time within a fortnight that an author has made a widely quoted speech [the first author was Mr. Wells, whose remarks at a Foyle literary luncheon created a furore]; so that authors may be said at this moment to be shining brightly as public figures.

As for Mr. Churchill's book, it is safe to say that it will be very much enjoyed for its eloquence, and that it will be very nearly as popular as Macaulay's History of England. Mr. Churchill has his great political reputation to assist him, and he is the master of a style which all can recognize as being in the best historical manner, and [much more important] which all can read.

Without a luncheon party to launch it, another new publication may well prove to have an historical value not inferior to the "Life of Marlborough." This work deals with more modern times, and is called "Fifty Years of Europe" [Cassell]. Let nobody be discouraged by this title, for the book is a genuine survey of pre-war diplomacy in Britain and on the continent. Nobody could have written it as well as J. A. Spender. He is a journalist of the highest class, who for the whole of its great career as an evening paper edited the Westminster Gazette.

That paper was read in all the courts and chancelleries of Europe, as Mr. Spender discovered when he visited Germany before the war, and found the German emperor word perfect in at least one of his leading articles.

Mr. Spender knew well all the older statesmen; with some of the English leaders, as Asquith and Grey, he was upon terms of close friendship. He had access to all the documents in the British foreign office bearing upon his theme, has traveled widely [throughout the United States as well as through Europe and the British empire], and is respected by even his political opponents. The ideal man to write such a book, as honest as he is able.

Here's a War Tale That Combines Both Fact and Sentiment

[Captain, 149th Field Artillery, A. E. F.]

"MEN OF THE RAINBOW" is the history of a battery of field artillery in the great war, written by a soldier in that outfit. The book is especially interesting to Chicagoans because it was a Chicago battery—B battery of the 149th F. A., commanded by one of Chicago's well known men, Capt. Joseph Medill Patterson. In itself the book is interesting because it is a plain, straightforward record of soldiers in battle and at rest in war.

It is in such books that students of the reactions of soldiers to war will find their best material. Official records give facts, but they omit feelings. Fiction written by practicing novelists tends to make more of feeling than it does of fact, when anything as dramatic as the most dramatic war in history is concerned. "Men of the Rainbow" preserves a balance of the facts as we all lived them and the feelings that those facts engendered in the average soldier.

The spirit of this book is truer to the spirit of the average fighting man than the spirit of such books as "Three Soldiers." For one of Dos Passos' soldiers in an outfit there were a hundred in Leslie Langille's. In our outfit I do not remember any men who got sentimentally pacifistic while they were doing what they had enlisted to do. When we were in battle we were too busy to be thinking about anything. Langille puts into words that lack of conscious emotion.

"Men of the Rainbow" is not a work of art. It is just plain fact. It is written exactly as if the author were talking. It sounds a good deal like a Rainbow reunion, where the catchword is "Remember when we . . ."

How Bernhardt Stirred World Told by Geller

BY EDITH WEIGLE.

"SARAH BERNHARDT, Divine Eccentric," by G. G. Geller, translated by E. S. G. Potter [Stokes], tells anew of the stormy, temperament ridden life of the little red-headed Jewess who cast a spell of enchantment over theater audiences the world around. Sarah of "the golden voice" is pictured from her early years in a French convent, where she astonished nuns and pupils alike with her mercurial disposition to her last days and her final defeat to the one adversary she could not vanquish, death.

Strange woman of mystery, thin, almost emaciated, yet possessed of a thrilling, hypnotic quality and a spellbinding voice that made her the idol of the world of her day, even her birth was a matter of conjecture for it is not known definitely who her father was. Neither did she disclose who was the father of her own son, Maurice.

In this biography one learns of her favorite avocation, sculpture; of her hobby, acquiring various and sundry animals: monkeys, lion cubs, cheetahs, even a crocodile; of her endless controversies with and dislike of the press; of the wild stories about her that were always in circulation; of her extravagant way of living; of her successes and failures, her triumphs and despairs behind the footlights; of her encounters with Victor Hugo, Rostand, the prince of Wales, later King Edward, and other crowned heads of Europe; of her love and loyalty to her sisters, her mother, her son, and those few who were really close to her.

The Man in the Making

by ARTHUR BRYANT

A thrilling definitive biography of one of the most unique personalities of modern times—the man whose amazing diary still remains after 250 years the most authentic history of his time.

In a brilliant literary style, Mr. Bryant pictures the strange quality of Pepys—his licentious habits as husband and neighbor; his earnest, efficient, honest diligence as a public servant. The author had at his disposal an immense amount of hitherto unused material and has filled in many gaps to be found even in supposedly complete versions of The Diary.

Antoinette Donnelly Tells How Noted Beauties Keep Charm

Millburn Hunt Will Race for Prize Today

Point-to-Point Contest to Start at 2 o'Clock.

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE major concern of Lake Forest's hunting set this Armistice day is a point-to-point race starting at 2 o'clock from the Millburn Hunt club. Riding in pairs, a couple of dozen of society's best equestrians will trek down a prize that is the gift of Austin H. Niblack, the master of the hounds.

The prize or objective will be kept a deep, dark secret until after the luncheon the contestants are to have at 12:30 at the Hunt club. Then Mr. Niblack will simply tell them to take off for a certain barn, some farmer's windmill, or perhaps the edge of a creek. The couples will be started three minutes apart and each will have to figure out the best route to take over brush and stubble to reach the prize in the shortest possible time.

Last year it was Mrs. Kimball Salisbury, without doubt one of the best horsewomen in these environs, and her partner, Laurance H. Armour, who reached the Mitchells' big barn in the shortest time and took the prize.

Last Sunday the hunter trials at the Millburn club were opened to the public, but today's event is exclusively for the hunting set. . . . the Armours, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph H. Bowen, the Howard Linns, the John Andrews Kings, the Salisburys, and all the rest . . . with a dinner dance given afterwards at the club by Mr. and Mrs. John E. Hughes.

Mr. Hughes Will Hunt in Africa.

Mr. Hughes is certain to be fairly pestered with questions this evening about Africa and big game, for he is planning to leave almost immediately after Christmas on such an expedition. The beginning of this next week he is going down to New York to talk over his plans with an eastern friend who is contemplating making the trip with him.

He will go from here to London, then to Nairobi by plane and boat and thence into the jungles. After weeks

Two Scenes from a Busy Evening with Society

Century Club Has Last Fling at Fair Gayety

Permit Autos of Guests to Enter Grounds.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

WITH a flair of gayety unsurpassed by the début party a brief five months back, society put the padlock and chain on its World's Fair rendezvous, the Century club, at an early hour this morning. Hundreds of fashionables who came for dinner at 8 o'clock prolonged their party until the wee small hours regretting to say farewell to the club at which they had lunched and dined during A Century of Progress season.

There were only three differences between this scene and the opening last June. A cold, piercing wind blew off Lake Michigan instead of warm, balmy breezes. Guests muffled themselves in ermines and velvets rather than organdies and pastel crêpes. And motors . . . for the first time in Fair history . . . were admitted to the Exposition grounds by way of the 16th street entrance.

"Even with this entrance permission it was worse than crossing the Italian border," commented more than one guest as he stepped from his auto in front of the Century club entrance. Invitations were asked first of all, then several proofs of identity, and finally a guide on the running board of every third car pointed out the way over highways and byways carefully guarding against excessive speed on the part of any motorist.

The party started with hors d'oeuvres and all the rest of the prepprandials in the Century clubrooms on the second floor of the Casino. There was a bowl of steaming hot punch . . . in keeping with the weather . . . in the background a piano turning out the latest in melody. Then the festivity moved to the Casino below by way of a stair, unknown before even to most of the Century club members.

The Cramers were guests last evening in one of the largest parties. Their hostess was Mrs. Walter P. Paepcke, stunning in black velvet and ermine with a huge orchid bouquet on her shoulder. Mrs. Paepcke had as her other guests Prince Potenziani, Italy's royal commissioner to the Fair; his daughter, Donna Myriam Potenziana; his aid, Prince Graziani; the Harold Strotzes, Mrs. William Nitze, who is Mrs. Paepcke's mother; Grant Smith, chief of protocol for A Century of Progress; Miss Helen Bell, Miss Francise Clow, and John Cromelin.

Close by this party was seated the most official group of guests. Arthur Meeker, who has served as president of the Century club, and Mrs. Meeker were host and hostess at either end of a long table to Mr. and Mrs. Rufus C. Dawes, the Lennox R. Lohrs, Mr. and Mrs. Willoughby Walling, the Charles B. Goodspeeds, Miss Alice Roullier, and the William Meekers of New York. Mrs. Arthur Meeker never looked lovelier than she did in a simple black gown with a short plaited cape of rose faille covering her shoulders. Mrs. Dawes was fashionably gowned in black.

Both Mrs. Goodspeed, dressed in

Palm Springs, Cal., Nov. 10.—(AP)—Forced to cancel more than half of her winter concert tour due to an attack of bronchitis, Lily Pons, singer, was recuperating today in a desert inn here.

Society Turns Out to Dance, Helps Cradle

For the benefit of the Cradle in Evanston almost 500 socialites dined and danced and had a jolly time last night at the Drake hotel at the eleventh annual dinner dance given by the Cradle society. Soft lights, beautiful flowers, excellent music, an entertaining show, and good food were the attractions and they were sufficient for every one had a good time and was sorry when the party ended.

Some of the prettiest girls in society sold gardenias and cigarets and no matter what other flowers a woman was wearing on her shoulder her escort didn't get past the "gimme" girls without buying his lady and himself gardenias.

Mrs. Augustus W. Eddy, one of Mrs. Howard W. Fenton's co-chairmen in charge of the party, was wearing lavender orchids when she entered but in a moment she had a corsage of gardenias on the other shoulder. Her gown was a stunning creation of white with a faint silver thread running through it.

Mrs. Fenton was lovely in black velvet, reminiscent of the alluring style of 1865, and her flowers also were lavender orchids. Her charming young daughter, Miss Honoré White, also wore orchids pinned to the shoulder strap of her exquisite silver lamé gown, the same gown she wore last year when she made her formal bow to society at a dance at the Casino.

Pretty Miss Jean Hyman, who is being presented to society today, was smart last night in a gown of gold color moire with several gardenias on one shoulder. Miss Lydia Swift, one of the best looking of last year's debs, was stunning in heavy white lace with wide bands of white fox on the short sleeves.

Diadem and coronet combs that sparkled like diamonds were worn by many of the younger women. Wreaths of flowers also are in great favor this season, judging by last night. Miss Betty Brawley was one of those who chose to wear flowers in her hair and a wreath of gardenias held her blonde hair in place.

Good Morning!

This is a thriller, all right; A scare story woven around a young chemist who discovers the secret of invisibility, uses his knowledge to work havoc, and—but this sort of picture must not have its plot unraveled in advance.

Through much of the action, Claude Rains, that fine young Theater Guild player, is only a voice. It was for that sonorous, expressive voice, as much as for his histrionic ability, that this personable chap was chosen for the title rôle. He has excellent support, and smart direction and marvelous trick photography combine to raise "The Invisible Man" well above the standard of the average horror cinema. I think you will be impressed with the settings, scenery and unusual situations.

The locale is England.

This is no film for either nervous child or adult. It has certain episodes that make your hair stand r-i-g-h-t s-t-r-a-i-g-h-t up—and I don't mean maybe!

See you tomorrow.

Good Exhibit Opens Season at Arts Club

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

The Arts club opened its first exhibition of this season yesterday afternoon with a showing of modern paintings lent by George Gershwin (of "Rhapsody in Blue" fame) and paintings by Roger Fry, the eminent English art critic.

The paintings by Mr. Fry hang in the smaller gallery and are characterized by an atmosphere of early French modernism, warm, pleasant, scholarly. They reach back into a period ten years ago, when all roofs were red and rivers mirrors; the architecture built itself up in blocks and the luminous squares were romantically colorful; the skies were blue, fleeced with soft clouds; trees, a bit cottony, reached up friendly lanes.

It was a charming period and its luminous grace is not missing from these several paintings. The still life "Dahlias," in the same tempo, is very lovely.

The more modern work in the George Gershwin collection breaks the pensive mood evoked by Mr. Fry. Yet so familiar is much of this painting, too, that no thrills are forthcoming even after a careful perusal of the walls. You may read, written simply, the story of the various kinds of picture which, as each first discovered itself, was apt to draw groans or cheers from the public.

Familiarity tempers all things and today there is nothing in this modern collection that can arouse a blush, a shudder or even a spontaneous outburst of applause, with the exception of the amazingly clever "Absinthe Drinker" by Picasso, the gem of the exhibit.

Mr. Gershwin has bought wisely over a number of years. He has a representative group of pictures. Derain is there with a lovely still life, lovely, that is, in color; Henri Rousseau offers the quaint and prim "Ile de la Cité"; Utrillo is represented with two landscapes, the "Suburbs," gay and intimate; Max Weber is amusing with "Woman at Table"; Dufy, turning to water color, offers a spontaneous combustion of marine material; Modigliani is effective with "Caryatid"; Chagall plays a graceful note in "Butcher Shop," a difficult place usually for humor to frolic; Kandinsky is decidedly in the manner of the American Indian with his "Arrangement."

Mr. Gershwin proves himself a painter of parts with his "Negro Child." All in all, the Arts club has an excellent show, well worth seeing.

Crown Jewels Valued at Half a Million Put on Display Here

A half million dollars' worth of crown jewels which were given to Empress Maria Louisa in 1811 by Napoleon Bonaparte were placed on exhibition yesterday at the Drake hotel. The collection is the property of Taubert & Hoeffer, manufacturing jewelers of New York City.

Known as the "Napoleon Jewels," these famous pieces have been in the constant possession of royalty, passing in turn from the empress to an Austrian archduke and descending to Archduchess Immaculata of Hapsburg-Holstein, from whom they were purchased by Taubert & Hoeffer. They were exhibited publicly for the first time at the Barcelono exposition in Spain in 1929.

The collection consists of a crown, a necklace, a corsage brooch, two bracelets, two brooches, a pair of earrings, and a belt buckle. All are mounted in gold, enhanced with black and white enamel, and richly jeweled with rubies, emeralds, sapphires, and pearls.

In addition to the crown jewels is a 94 carat emerald, a 28 carat square cut canary diamond, and a 59 carat star sapphire—all set in beautiful platinum and diamond ensembles.

Front Views and Profiles

By June Provines

IT was after one of the more violent scrimmages between Maj. McLaughlin's Blackhawks and the New York Americans at the Stadium Thursday night. Red Dutton, the defense man for the Americans, and Art Coulter, the Hawks' defense man, had slashed high sticks near the Hawks' cage. The crowd roared with pleasure as they fought, and glaring angrily at one another, were stopped by an order to leave the ice. Your scribe, sitting in the box just above where they sat on the penalty bench, leaned forward to hear what two such angry men would say to one another, forced to such close proximity.

"How's the wife?" Dutton asked Coulter.

THIS story of Dr. Mortimer Adler's, told at a gathering the other evening, has nothing to do with either the philosophy of law or diagrammatics. It concerns three Jewish lads who went into a drug store to buy some candy.

With some difficulty and with great exertion, the druggist climbed a rickety ladder, pulled out a jar from the top shelf, measured out the candy, put back the jar and climbed down. As he handed the sack to the boy another one of the three said:

"I vant for ten cents some pappermints."

The druggist glared at the lad, climbed the ladder a second time, measured out the candy, and before closing the jar asked the third boy if he wanted ten cents worth of peppermints, too.

"No," said the boy.

As the druggist descended the ladder and handed the candy to the second boy, the third boy spoke.

"I vant for five cents some pappermints," he said.

THERE were many people disappointed, probably, when the World's Fair collection of pictures at the Art institute was taken down from its walls, but perhaps none more so than the woman who came in Wednesday morning to see Whistler's "Mother" and found it already had been packed. She had been in Europe last spring and tried to see the painting in the Louvre, only to be told it was in America. As soon as she could get back to America she made a special trip out to Chicago to see it, to be too late by a day.

Players—Boys—Disappointed—Kreisler—Breakfast.

WHEN Fritz Kreisler comes to town to play tomorrow he probably will be asked whether the story is true that he has discovered a new violinist whom he is assisting toward a career. The story, as written to Carleton Smith by a friend, is that the great violinist was in Dublin when he heard a girl playing on the street corner. He was so charmed by the quality of her playing that he had her come to his hotel and play for him and the impresario of the Dublin theater. Afterwards he made plans for the supervision of her education. . . . The girl's name is said to be Lillian Mack.

"YOU'RE sitting beside the stuffed shirt," Mrs. Clarence Hough said hurriedly when we arrived at the Drama league breakfast for Ina Claire and the company of "Biography" yesterday, and we thought it sounded a little rude. However, it turned out to be Jay Fassett, who plays the rôle of the stuffed-shirtish, aspirant to the senate in the play. And he told amusing stories, which maybe we'll pass along if we can remember them. Miss Claire arrived early, wearing a Schiaparelli black wool and an amazing but very chic black velvet hat, and Earle Larimore arrived late, looking a little sleepy. There were other "Biography" people there and Jane Wheatley and Gavin Muir of the "Dangerous Corner" cast. The only nontheatrical guests were Dr. Louis K. Anspacher and Carveth Wells, both more dramatic looking than any of the others. Everybody ate grapefruit and scrambled eggs and little sausages, and Mrs. Hough managed the introductions of the guests without a single cliché.

It was all very gay. Carveth Wells made Miss Claire's speech, and sandwiched some startling statements about Russia in with humorous narrative. Actors don't like to make speeches, which Mr. Larimore pointed out in his response to his introduction. He told of his little niece whose mother looked over her thank-you notes written after Christmas to the relatives.

"But you didn't write a note to Aunt Minnie, who gave you that lovely pin cushion," she admonished. "Go write it right away."

The child pouted, then went to the desk and wrote laboriously for a time. She brought the note back to her mother for inspection.

"Dear Aunt Minnie," it read. "Thank you for the pin cushion you gave me for Christmas. I have always wanted a pin cushion, but not very much."

Mr. Larimore concluded his short talk similarly.

"I have always wanted to make a speech, but not very much," he said.

THIRD AND LAST

By NORVAL RICHARDSON

SYNOPSIS.

Sheila, known as "Bun" O'Reilly, an American, makes a comfortable living abroad by helping fellow countrymen out of difficulties. Fred Crawford, a Paris newspaper man, is her friend and counselor. Bun agrees to help James B. Finlay, an elderly, wealthy American, find his young wife, Helene. He wants no publicity. He had met Helene after the war in Bucharest. He had installed her family, the Bobianofis, in a villa on the Riviera at Grasse. Her brother, Feretz, he had brought to America. No trace can be found of Helene and her parents since the last time she returned to visit them. Bun's suspicions are aroused by Finlay's niece, Mrs. Craymer. A recent newspaper picture showing Helene standing with a tall woman in a group at Biarritz is the only clue Bun has to go on. That same night Finlay is murdered. The money Finlay had given Bun as advance payment is stolen from her apartment. Finlay's son, Robert, arrives from America. He proves to be an imposter. Bun meets the real Robert Finlay in Cannes. She is attracted to him, but believes he's in love with Helene. She continues the quest with him. The tall woman with Helene in the group picture is identified as the Countess Vernadon, who has a villa in Grasse. Bun and Robert call on her at her dreary villa. She denies knowing Helene. As they are leaving they see a woman fall from a window. They send a doctor out from the town. Next day Mrs. Craymer, who had arrived in Cannes, is found dead. Fred Crawford joins Bun. Robert leaves for Bucharest after receiving a note he thinks is from Helene. Bun and Crawford call on the doctor who had been sent to the villa of Countess Vernadon. He takes Bun with him to see the young woman who had fallen from the window.

INSTALLMENT XXXVI.

IN THE PRESENCE OF DEATH.

Crawford had the driver stop within sight of the villa, got out, and told the man to wait where he was. Then he went on cautiously toward the gate. The doctor's car had already disappeared within the driveway. The gate had been left open behind it. Crawford slipped in, avoided the driveway, and approached the house beneath the grove of eucalyptus trees. Light was streaming from the third story windows, apparently the only rooms lighted. He concentrated his attention upon these and waited. Once he saw a figure stand at one of the windows—Bun's, he realized with satisfaction—then turn back towards the room. Was it a signal? If so it must mean that everything was all right. He squatted down on the grass, shielded a match with his hat, and lighted a cigaret.

Half an hour passed. He had lighted six cigarets, one from the other. From time to time he saw figures moving about within the lighted rooms but no voices reached him. At last, restless, he got up, stretched himself, and moved about cautiously. Another half hour dragged by. Then he went nearer the front door. The doctor's car was there, empty, somehow a comforting note that spoke of all being well. He noticed with a start of surprise that the front door was not tightly closed. A thin line of light was filtering out from it. He drew closer. Why not enter the house? After all, he'd been something of a fool to let Bun risk so much alone. She had been there quite long enough to find out everything she wanted to know. He pushed the door quietly open and stared into the hall. It was empty and ominously still, illuminated by one glaring bulb. He listened intently. Still no sound, either of voices or movements. Then, as if a door had been opened on a floor above, he heard footsteps moving along—slowly, draggingly.

He picked her up and carried her down to the door.

With quick determination he started forward and ran swiftly up the stairs.

Before Crawford was halfway up the steps Bun appeared on the landing. For a few moments his relief was forgotten in amazement. She looked so utterly unlike herself. She was deadly white and clinging to the rail of the steps as she came uncertainly down toward him. When she reached him she fell forward into his arms without speaking.

He picked her up and carried her down to the door.

"What is it, Bun? What's the matter? You aren't hurt?"

She drew back from him, made a foolish little gesture of brushing back her hair, then grasped his arm as if to steady herself.

"I've just been in the presence of death, Fred," she murmured in a bewildered way.

"Come out of this glaring light. It's been too much for you."

She followed him docilely, still clinging to his arm.

"No—not too much, only so pitifully sad!" Suddenly, as if again wholly aware of the surroundings, she straightened up and started ahead of him. "Fred, we haven't a moment to lose. We may be too late as it is. We mustn't be, Fred, we mustn't! Don't fail me this time. Where is your taxi?"

"Up the road a bit. But what are you talking about?"

"Let's hurry to it. Let's run. I'll tell you when we're in the car."

There was a frantic effort on her part to hurry. She ran ahead to the gate and out into the road; then, seeing the dark bulk of the car, she hurried towards it. She was in the car before Crawford had reached it.

"Where to?" he asked, slamming the door.

"To Cannes—and as quickly as we can go." She leaned forward and spoke to the chauffeur. "Don't stop for anything. Every minute counts."

Crawford said nothing for a little while. He realized that she had passed through some sort of an emotional crisis and was not yet ready for words. He drew a flask from his pocket and held it out to her. She took several sips and sank back with a sigh. Then her hand felt for Crawford's. His closed firmly over hers. Thus they sat until the lights of Grasse had come into view and been left behind.

Suddenly, with a shudder, she drew her hand from his and put it across her eyes. Crawford, watching her, saw that she was weeping quietly.

"Bun—for God's sake! What is it? Why are you crying?"

"She was so pitiful—so helpless!"

"Who?"

"So emaciated, so pathetic! But I'm glad I was with her those last moments. Think of dying alone with only a harsh servant—abandoned!" She sat up with a quick gesture of brushing away her tears. "I said I was not a quitter. I'm less one now than ever before. I'll never be happy until we run down those fiends. They actually killed her—a slow, torturing death. And to think I might have saved her! It's all terrifying. I was there. I heard her call. I saw her jump from the window. And I did nothing—nothing! If we'd only gone back and forced our way into the house that night!"

"Was she able to talk to you?"

"O, yes. What the doctor thought was delirium was all plain enough to me. He didn't understand English and he knew nothing of what had happened. As soon as I entered the room she held out her hand to me and began speaking English. In some way she seemed to sense that I knew about her."

"You. But you know nothing! You never heard anything about her before!"

"Yes, Fred, I had. She was Helene Finlay."

"Good God! Old Finlay's wife!"

"I recognized her at once from the photograph he had given me. Her first question was if I had come from him. I told her that, in a way, I had. But he was not with you here that night! That was Bob. I recognized his voice. They would not let me go to him. They locked the door. They held me back when I tried to rush to the window and call to him. I broke away from them at last. When I saw there was no other way to reach him I jumped out.' Then she asked me where my husband was. It was desperately difficult to know what to do. What would you have done, Fred?"

"It was no time to keep the truth from her. I'd have told her."

"I did—as gently as I could. It was terrible to see her grief. It was more than that—it was despair. And she kept on sobbing out: 'I thought they were only threatening me to make me sign the will! They said they would do nothing if I signed it—that it was the only way I could save their lives! At last I signed it. Ask the bank agent in Grasse. He knows. He witnessed it.' After that I had some peace, the first in three months. I felt I had saved my husband—all of them. But now——' The crisis of emotion weakened her so that she could not speak for a long time. When she had been silent for several minutes she began asking more questions. 'Is Bob over here?' I told her he was. 'Is he here? Am I going to see him. But no—don't let him know you've found me. It is much better this way. I am going to die—O, I know it. It does not matter. Perhaps I shall be happy—that way."

Joan Crawford, Franchot Tone Start for East

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

After a trip to Phoenix, Ariz., variously described as a deer hunting expedition or a trip to the altar, Gary Cooper and Sandra Shaw, film players, returned here today. They were accompanied by John Gilbert and his wife, Virginia Bruce. Both Cooper and Miss Shaw repeated denials that they were about to wed.

When Cary Grant took his sudden urge to fly to London last night he flew right out of a tentative starring part in "The Handsome Brute" at Paramount. Grant had been talking about a vacation tour about California but when his sweetheart, Virginia Cherrill, negotiated to go to England for a film appearance, Cary then decided to go back to his old home. He was born in England and his real name is Arthur Leach. So if any Arthur Leach and Virginia C. Alder [Virginia is ex-Mrs. Alder] make any way stops to get married you will know who the newlyweds are.

Russ Colombo and Sally Blane, on the other hand, are thinking of not waiting till Christmas for their ceremony.

Both House Peters and Roscoe Karns, movie actors and neighbors in Beverly Hills, tonight said all was forgiven and forgotten. But things were hectic for some hours this afternoon. Peters spent part of the afternoon before Justice Arthur Erb on a disturbance of the peace complaint. It was asserted he had used violent and abusive words towards Karns' gardener. Peters has figured in two previous neighborhood court wrangles, having been placed under a peace bond by W. H. Simons and Maj. William Krost in 1929 and differences with other neighbors brought a charge of disturbing the peace in 1930.

Louise Fazenda is going back to her old studio—Warner's—where she was under contract so long as comedienne during closing years of the silents and early years of the talkies. She's to play the Kansas wife in Al Jolson's "Wonder Bar."

The four picture contract which Radio RKO wrote with Frances Dee starts the ex-University of Chicago girl at $1,000 a week, and winds up at $1,800 a week.

MINUTE MYSTERY

By H. A. RIPLEY

[Copyright: 1933: By The Chicago Tribune.]

CLASS DAY.

"All of you fellow- know something of firearms and bullet identification and ballistics," Fordney said to his class in criminology. "I wonder how much you have absorbed of the latter science?

"Frank R. Schleifer of Brooklyn, N. Y., has asked me to solve rather an interesting hypothetical question, but I'm going to ask Prof. E. N. Coade of De Paul university to give it to you."

"Here it is," smiled the physics professor.

"John Jones, standing on the observation platform of a train, furtively pulled from his hip pocket a .38 caliber revolver and waited. A train, on the next and parallel track, rapidly approached, coming in the same direction. Knowing the habits of his enemy Brown, he believed he would also be on the observation platform of the other train. Jones, one of the finest marksmen in the country, was worried by only one thing. Would Brown be alone!

"Eventually the two trains were abreast, both traveling at 60 miles an hour, making their combined speed 120 miles an hour.

"In that second when the two observation platforms were directly opposite, Jones took perfect aim at Brown's head [who was alone on the platform] and fired immediately. The bullet," explained Coade, "after leaving the revolver barrel traveled at the rate of 60 miles an hour.

"What Schleifer asked was this: Taking into consideration that the combined speed of the trains was 120 miles an hour, did Jones hit Brown's head, provided his aim was accurate?"

Miss Jean Hyman Today's Debutante.

There is no member of the family who is anticipating Miss Jean Hyman's debut today more than Mrs. Herbert G. B. Alexander, Miss Hyman's maternal grandmother. After her lovely blue eyed, dark haired granddaughter has made her formal bow to society this afternoon in the paneled drawing room of the Fortnightly club Mrs. Alexander is entertaining for her and a coterie of her sister debutantes and post-debs at a dinner dance in the Joseph Urban room of the Congress hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Hyman will receive with their daughter between 4 and 7 o'clock against a background of autumn flowers.

Tradition will play an important part in the candlelight wedding this afternoon of Miss Helen Walcott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Howe Walcott of Winnetka, and Roderick McKenzie, son of Mr. and Mrs. William D. McKenzie of Hubbard Woods. For her marriage Miss Walcott is wearing the satin gown that was her mother's and the lovely duchess lace that was her great-grandmother's.

The service is to be read by Dr. Ashley Gerhard at 4 o'clock in the tiny chapel of Christ church in Winnetka, which is at Maple and Oak streets in the north shore suburb, several blocks from the church itself. Only the immediate families and a few intimate friends are to hear the young couple repeat their wedding vows.

Miss Julie Walcott will be her sister's only attendant. Mr. McKenzie is to have Robert Godfrey for his best man.

Reception to Close Federal Building.

Late tomorrow night or early Sunday morning Harry S. New, United States commissioner to A Century of Progress, is packing his bags and leaving for a fortnight of hunting at his favorite retreat, the Turtle Lake club near Hilman, Mich. Mr. New was a charter member when the club was organized forty years ago.

Mr. New will wind up his duties as commissioner to the Fair at the formal reception to be held from 4 to 6 tomorrow afternoon in the Government building on Northerly isle. After the reception the building will be officially closed in a ceremony full of color and pomp. There will be a dress parade of the troops stationed at Camp Grohistler, retreat, and then the hauling down of the colors. Speeches will be lacking.

Hockey Team Plays at Madison Today.

With all of the debut parties, balls, and dinners that are crowding this week-end calendar, a group of popular north shore young women are finding their interest far from ballroom or bridge table. We refer to the members of the All-North Shore hockey team who are traveling up to Madison this morning to play an exhibition game with Madison this afternoon and then returning to Chicago tonight to play the Chicago Field Hockey team tomorrow afternoon in Jackson park.

British Societies Will Hold Dance.

All of the British societies in Chicago will be represented in the receiving line tonight at the Armistice day dance the English colonial and great war veterans are to hold at the Drake hotel. The consul general in Chicago, Dr. Lewis Bernays, and Mrs. Bernays will head the line followed by Robert Teasdale, president of the British and Colonial Veterans' associations; Mrs John W. Astley, who is the president of the Daughters of the British Empire; George H. Fenn, president of the British Empire association; Rob-

Black, who is the chairman of Chicago's Scotland day; K. A. Auty, the president of the Cricket association; Miss Anna Callander of the women's auxiliaries of the Veterans' associations; Mrs. Gray Brown of the British-American League of Women; Mrs. J. Butler Jenkinson of the Daughters of St. George; H. D. Mitchell of the Sons of St. George, and Mrs. Harry M. Miller, who will represent the British Old People's home.

Patrick C. Hills Guests in City.

A very welcome trio of visitors came to town yesterday, Mr. and Mrs. Patrick C. Hill and their year old daughter, Rue, but unfortunately their visit is to be a very short one, for they are leaving on Monday for their home in Fort Worth. They are on their way back from having spent the summer at the old Winterbotham place at Charlotte, Vt.

Mr. and Mrs. Hill spent last night with her cousin, John R. Winterbotham, and tiny Rue was the guest of the Potter Palmers, but today they all are going out to Lake Forest to be with other cousins, Mrs. Shreve Badger [Theodora Winterbotham] and Mrs. Stuart Otis [Alice Carpenter]. Mrs. Hill, who was the former Genevieve Carpenter, and her husband dined last night with another cousin, Mrs. Alfred P. Shaw [Rue Winterbotham].

Miss Marie Louise Gardner, the debutante daughter of the Henry A. Gardners of Winnetka, is to be entertained tomorrow evening at a supper and hockey party to be given by the Robert Rolosons of Evanston.

Throng Hears Carveth Wells Talk on Russia

It was a fortunate thing for the Red Cross roll call that Carveth Wells' lecture yesterday morning at the Woman's Athletic club attracted the largest crowd that has assembled in the club for many a day, possibly ever, for Mrs. William J. Chalmers and Mrs. Patrick A. Valentine were taking the Red Cross roll call at a desk in the first floor hall and the only reason they missed any of the 500 women was because they couldn't work fast enough to enlist them all.

They caught some whom they missed on the way into the club on the way out, however, so all in all they did a splendid job and obtained about 300 members for the Red Cross. Mrs. Chalmers is a charter member of the Chicago chapter of the Red Cross and also of the Woman's Athletic club.

Glancing over the huge crowd that filled to overflowing the ballroom where Mr. Wells talked about "Russia Today" it seemed as if every one whose name ever makes social news was there, young and old. And we're sure there wasn't one who didn't snuggle closer into her fur coat when she left the club and breathe a little prayer of thankfulness that she was an American citizen instead of a Russian one after hearing and seeing Mr. Wells' impressions of Russia.

Four Hundred Stay for Luncheon.

Only four-fifths of those who heard the interesting and enlightening lecture stayed for luncheon, for no more than 400 could be served. A few of those who enjoyed the lecture and luncheon were Mrs. Andrew B. MacCaughey, the president; Mrs. William N. Pelouze, Mrs. Benjamin H. Marshall and her daughter, Mrs. Richard Simmons; Mrs. Orville Taylor, Mrs. Eames MacVeagh, Mrs. Townsend McKeever, looking rather pale and thin after a three weeks' stay in the hospital; Mrs. Hayden B. Harris, Mrs. Sidney S. Gorham Jr., Mrs. Andrew Sheriff, Miss Mildred Lawrence, Mrs. Arthur A. Small, Mrs. Henry Faurot Jr., Mrs. Charles F. Glore.

Miss Betty Scriven, Mrs. William F. Petersen, Mrs. Hester Crawford, Mrs Horace W. Armstrong, Mrs. Charles H. Ackert, Mrs. Ira Couch, Mrs. Alvin E. Bastien and her debutante daughter, Miss Barbara Bastien; Miss Barbara Eldridge, Miss Lillian Dudley, Mrs. John L. Fortune, Mrs. Frank J. Loesch, Mrs. Freeman Hinckley, Mrs. Barnard A. Eckhart, Mrs. Howell B Erminger, Mrs. Edwin F. Weary, Mrs. William K. Kenly, Mrs. George Jaeger, Mrs. Arthur Goes, Mrs. Averill Tilden, Mrs. Arch Shaw, and Mrs. Stanley Zaring.

Ideas Differ at Art Show.

"Isn't it a wonderful exhibition?" asked a Highland Park matron who is a painter herself, and at the same time her husband commented, "I have an 8 year old at home who could do better," at the tea at the Arts club that opened an exhibition of George Gershwin's collection of modern paintings yesterday.

These two points of view expressed perfectly the widely divergent ideas about the collection that the hundreds who attended the tea had, but all the men didn't agree with Mr. X——, nor did all the women agree with Mrs. X——, for many of the men at the tea appreciate modern art and many of the women don't.

That it was an interesting exhibition and a delightful tea party every one agreed, however. Tea and coffee were served from two small round tables in the large gallery instead of from one long table, as has been done before.

The center of interest after she arrived was Mrs. Patrick C. Hill, whose mother, the late Rue Winterbotham Carpenter, was so closely identified with the Arts club as its president for years before her death.

Prince Potenziani Farewell Party Guest.

Many of those who were there had been first at the tea across the street in the Tavern club that the Italy America society gave as a farewell for Prince Potenziani and his daughter, Donna Myriam Potenziani. Among those at this party were Mrs. Chauncey McCormick, whose husband is the new president of the society; Mrs. Potter Palmer, Mrs. Herbert Bradley, Mrs. Welch Dickinson and her house guest, Dr. Louis K. Anspacher; Mrs. Jefferson Jackson, Mrs. Edward A. Leight, Giuseppe Castruccio, the Italian consul general; Miss Clara Lake, Mr. and Mrs. John M. Handley, and Robert Hall McCormick.

A few of those glimpsed in the crowd at the Arts club were Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed, the president; Mrs. Howard Linn, Mrs. Sangston Hettler, Mrs. Wilhelm L. Baum, Mrs. Walker Szukalska, Mrs. Jacob Baur, Mrs. Walter Paepcke, Mrs. Charles H. Chadwick, Miss Alice Roullier, Mrs. Louis K. Boysen, the John Alden Carpenters, Miss Harriet Monroe, and the Malcolm Hendersons.

Barn Dance Will Aid Infant Welfare.

The Kenilworth Center of the Infant Welfare society is giving a barn dance at the Kenilworth club tonight. The proceeds will be used at the Seward Park settlement station. Mrs. Edmund Burke is chairman of the committee on arrangements.

Overseas League.

The Women's Overseas Service league will celebrate the 15th anniversary of Armistice day with a reunion luncheon at 1 o'clock this noon at the Woman's City club. Prizes are to be awarded the member who comes in the best uniform and the one who brings the best souvenir of days of the war.

BY MARY MEADE.

Today we're to have a royal dish of hash, not the usual meat and potato variety, but a grand conglomeration of the weeks' leftovers in facts, questions, and helpful tips from writers-in. So on with the hash!

First of all, I wonder if you've hit upon the latest "blessed event" in the food industry—or rather, there have been several such coming to light just recently. The "little stranger" arrived on the market not so long ago and turned out to be fruit cake mixtures requiring but the addition of a small quantity of milk or fruit juices, and sometimes an egg, to turn them into what I've discovered to be quite remarkably good fruit cakes.

One mix I know comes neatly ensconced in a covered tin box with rounded corners and wax paper lining. The container of another is to be greased and floured before turning in the batter. We turn out the dry ingredient and cutup fruits, add the liquids with a few energetic whacks, turn the batter back into the original tin, and bake according to directions on the container. Take out the loaf from its pan to cook, then slip it back into its tin and keep tightly covered for a few days before cutting. Simple, isn't it? And it keeps admirably several weeks.

Next a question. This one is from Mrs. H. R. L. on the subject of that stunt we stage when we clarify fat, adding raw potato to remove the impurities. Mrs. L. would like to know just how the potato moves it's wonders to perform. So here is the explanation: Raw potato contains a large percentage of water. The heat of the fat causes the water to be driven off in the form of steam. As it passes out of the fat [causing the fat to bubble] it carries with it any foreign odors or volatile flavors which may have been taken up by the fat during the frying of food. Also the potato absorbs some of the odors and collects foreign particles. For this reason we always discard these used slices of potato.

So now an inspiration to serve along with the Sunday roast. It's a cranberry apple! Simply fill the cavity left by the removal of the applecore with cranberry sauce, and bake as usual. Canned cranberry sauce is on the market if you haven't time to cook up your own.

Then if you're in too big a hustle some time to prepare a frosting for the newly baked cake, try one of these substitutes: For a chocolate topping, break pieces of sweet chocolate and let them melt on the top of the hot cake, spreading them smooth with a spatula. Or spread the cooled cake with your pet jelly and sprinkle generously with cocoanut. Lastly, if it's a plain butter cake or a sponge cake, you may glorify it by cutting it in sections and serving up with a sauce made by heating a cupful of maple sirup till rather thickened and adding ¼ cup of toasted nut meats. Pour the whole affair over the sections of still hot cake. It's a new but nifty sort of a cottage pudding.

And another passing thought. Are you neglecting hazel nuts in menu making? They're a bit hard to crack, but they're most easy to eat. Besides inveigling them into the meal in the usual way we have with nuts, an especially pleasant confectionery thrill comes from stuffing dates with fondant made glad with chopped up hazel nuts in it.

Then, speaking of funny combinations which "taste like more," have you ever thought of scalloping parsnips and pineapple together? Don't laugh till you've tried it. Partially cook 6 parsnips, slice them and place in a baking dish with alternate layers of pineapple slices cut in halves. Boil the pineapple juice with a cup of white table sirup and pour over the layers. Bake in a moderate oven for half an hour before serving. Broiled bacon is a good "also ran."

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., Nov. 10.—[Special.]—Mrs. Roosevelt flew to Richmond, Va., this morning, accompanied by her secretary, Mrs. Malvina Thompson Scheider, to attend a luncheon and child welfare meeting, and returned here by train this afternoon. The governor of Virginia and Mrs. Pollard were their luncheon hosts.

The President and Mrs. Roosevelt received the British Admiral Drax and the British Ambassador Sir Ronald Lindsay at the tea hour, in the red room where they enjoyed an informal cup of tea.

Mrs. Woodin, wife of the secretary of the treasury, and their daughter, Mrs. Woodin Minor, have returned from their trip to Arizona to visit William H. Woodin Jr., and his family. Mrs. Woodin has sent out invitations for a luncheon for Mrs. Roosevelt next Wednesday.

"But that's all over now. Let me tell you what happened. When I'm hungry, I want things I like, but they tried to make me eat things I didn't like. Naturally I fussed. 'Alice' of Films Shows Typical English Beauty

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

HOLLYWOOD—[Special.]—Charlotte Henry, the "Alice in Wonderland" girl, is a perfect type of English beauty, with her clean cut features, blonde hair and pink and white skin. One of her charms is her utter naturalness of appearance, for, while she is extremely well groomed, her make-up so nearly approaches the natural that it gives the effect of no make-up at all.

Her lovely hands, small, with tapering fingers, are kept white and soft through the use of a peroxide cream. The fingernails are carefully manicured, but with no liquid polish. The natural beauty of the nails is enhanced through buffing, and the delicate moons and nail tips show their white contrast to the soft natural pinkness of the middle nail.

The typically English complexion is treated to plenty of cold water. "Cold water is my personal substitute for London fogs and rains," says Charlotte. "It keeps my natural color good, because frequent dashes of cold water stimulate the circulation. It keeps the pores closed, and refines the texture of the skin. I use cleansing cream, of course, but no other cosmetic for my complexion."

A little powder, no rouge, and a touch of light lipstick that is then almost entirely rubbed off, and "Alice" is ready for the street.

Her rule for make-up, is to avoid the least semblance of artificiality. "Alice" thinks that an excellent rule for all young girls. With plenty of long walks, sensible indulgence in sports, and a reasonable attention to diet, she has gotten at the root of the beauty business for the young girl.

NEW YORK SOCIETY

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Fitzsimons, Mr. and Mrs. Amos Tuck French, Mrs. Howard T. Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Francis O. French, and Mr. and Mrs. Donald O. MacRae went to Philadelphia yesterday for the wedding at Ein Aelwyd, Cynwyd, of Mrs. Harriet Holder Rittenhouse to Stuyvesant Le Roy French.

New Galoshes Marvels for Comfort, Style

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Time was when a pair of goloshes were formidable weights that certainly impeded progress . . . when dainty maidens wearing them galumphed down the snowy streets with all the lumbering grace of a tractor and made esthetic spectators especially of the male persuasion shudder with dislike. These prehistoric models with sections of clanking hardware clamps are now extinct, difficult as to hear and find as a linen duster.

Now the finicky females who want foot protection without a single ounce of extra weight cheer gladly for the new rubber affairs . . . they are as thin as an onion skin, as smart, as sleek and as trim as a pair of opera pumps and, what's more, they look like the newest and swankiest of fashionable leathers.

You can now buy high rubber goloshes fashioned with a zipper that keeps the things snug and smooth around your foot from pavement to high ankle . . . with a neat little flap that conceals the end of the zipper. They can be turned over or worn high.

You will find them in black and brown; don't ask for eel gray or any other color, as experts have spent hours proving that black and brown are the very best colors this flattering rubber stuff will take. Look for the sharkskin and lizard combinations, high boots that look exactly like leather of the same reptile skin . . . or try the stunning shiny brown alligator models that would probably fool even a smart "gator."

For the gal who insists upon the minimum of foot covering some understanding soul has created an oxford that will make your eyes bulge . . . they look even more like a street oxford on the foot than off . . . these, too, come either in black or brown and the toes and instep are lined with cravenette. High heels, moderate and low heeled models in both oxfords and the higher goloshes will cover the particular shoe heels you wish to wear.

Oregon Gardens Give Inspiration for Rose Pattern

Century Club Has Last Fling at Fair Gayety

Permit Autos of Guests to Enter Grounds.

black crêpe dotted in gold, and Mrs. Robert McCormick Adams were exponents of the latest fashion which calls for an ornamented coiffure. Mrs. Adams' coronet was a simple gold band effective with a deep purple gown. Guests of the Adamses last evening included the James Forgans, the Clay Judsons, and the Dudley Cateses.

Joseph T. Ryerson, who was host to another of the largest "fairwell flair" parties, is one of those most interested in continuing the Century club next year or providing a duplicate for it in town. In the Mr. and Mrs. Ryersons' party last night were Mrs. James Ward Thorne, Eugene Thayer, Barrett Wendell, and Edward H. Bennett . . . "two girls and four beaux," as Mr. Ryerson expressed it.

Mrs. James Hamilton Lewis was here from Washington to be the guest of Mrs. Jacob Baur and Mrs. Freeman Hinckley.

The Madlener twins, Otto and William, took turns dancing with Miss Beatrice Kirk, attractive in a white lace gown, and Miss Jane Schuttler, who wore black crêpe. Miss Eleanor Holden, swathed in purple crêpe, silver cloth, and ermine, was one of a party that included Scott Linn and Mrs. O'Donnell Healy.

The two McVoy sisters, Miss Jean McVoy, who made her debut last winter, and Mrs. Sidney S. Gorham Jr., were with young Mr. Gorham, the Willett Gorhams, the Edward R. Adamses, and Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Jeffers. A tiny white jacket pinned close under her chin was stunning on Miss Margaret Carr, who was escorted by her fiancé, Marshall Sampsell.

Among the 700 and more guests there was no one who received a warmer welcome than that accorded Mrs. Patrick C. Hill [the former Genevieve Carpenter], who just arrived in the city yesterday with Mr. Hill and their year old daughter. Striking in red velvet with a single strand of pearls about her throat, Mrs. Hill and her husband were the guests of the Alfred Shaws and John R. Winterbotham.

Fussy Mothers Lessen Chances of Child Stars

BY DORIS BLAKE.

HOLLYWOOD. — [Special.] — We asked one, who must remain anonymous, about children in pictures. For years this woman has been in direct daily contact with a number of them, and her opinion on the subject would readily explain her desire for anonymity.

"If I had one of my own," she answered vehemently, "I'd yank him out so fast he wouldn't know what happened to him!"

It isn't the children, but the parents that bring down the wrath of this child executive. The mothers! Although the fathers sometimes are problems beyond understanding. She tells of one father who had his small child dancing on a night club table at two in the morning, hopeful of attracting a studio executive's attention.

Mothers, wanting to shine in the reflected glory of their children, are a species to contend with in other walks, to be sure, but in this movie game they become nuisances, and often menaces, to the later usefulness of their children.

My informant has seen them come and go, brought in nice, normal little youngsters to develop into abominable little brats under the limelight pressure and foolish mother direction.

There are exceptions, to be sure, children who have escaped under wise parental guidance the penalties attached to their fame. Davy Lee's mother is acclaimed as one ever on the watch to keep the boy away from purring, adulating crowds, living modestly, saving the money the boy earns. Jackie Searles' mother is another given credit for maneuvering her boy out of the ruinous limelight and retaining for him a natural boy outlook on life. Incidentally, my informant tells me that John Barrymore watched this Searles boy for an hour one day, charmed with his dramatic talent, paying him the compliment of "being the cleverest actor in the business."

Of another young star she tells a different story. No attempt here to retain the youngster's naturalness, and believe it requires a strong parental hand to offset the foolish adulation bestowed on these young heads, with the result that he is growing to be the most thoroughly disliked person on the lot.

"And rarely have I seen it to fail," my informant adds, "that homes are broken up over these youngsters who achieve movie recognition.

"Mothers lose all perspective once they become invested with a movie child charge, or are determined to get their children into studio work. Women, who under other circumstances are normal, become 'ugly primitive' in their jealousies, trickery, scheming and hatred of the other woman's child."

40,000 Will See Old Rivalry Renewed.

BY WILFRID SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Notre Dame, Ind., Nov. 10.—Purdue, not Notre Dame, is on the spot tomorrow when the two Indiana teams renew their rivalry after a lapse of ten years.

Strange as this may seem, the undefeated Boilermakers, who last Saturday defeated Carnegie Tech, which eleven started the once famous Irish on their unprecedented run of three consecutive lickings, must win tomorrow if its claims to national prominence are to be accepted at face value.

Notre Dame has been beaten. It has been licked by Carnegie, Pittsburgh, and Navy. But Notre Dame to Purdue alumni and students still is the team which they most desire to take to the cleaners. For one victory over the Irish, Purdue would trade a couple of agricultural buildings in West Lafayette and riparian rights on the Wabash river. Notre Dame affects Purdue that way.

Turn Back the Pages.

Back in the days before any one had thought of Four Horsemen and Seven Mules, before the Rockne Ramblers had spread the doctrine of a backfield shift from coast to coast until the rule makers went into a huddle and came out with the one second restriction on the attack, the boys from Notre Dame were always certain of winning one game each season. That game was the Purdue game.

Defeat followed defeat until Purdue finally decided that a dose of Notre Dame virility might be the antidote for the ailment. So Purdue took Notre Dame's Jim Phelan as head coach, and with him came Notre Dame's Noble Kizer. But by that time Notre Dame, like some of Purdue's conference brethren, had decided the Boilermakers were small potatoes. They couldn't land on the Notre Dame schedule.

They Must Win.

In 1929 Purdue won its first Big Ten championship. In 1931 Purdue, although losing one game, tied with Michigan and Northwestern for the same honor. Up popped the Purdue alumni asking for another chance to meet the Irish, who in a second handed fashion had taught them how to play football. The request was granted and tomorrow nearly 40,000 are expected to see the battle between t' e two universities.

But Purdue is on the spot. And the chances are at least 5 to 4 that Purdue will not get off that spot. Two months ago, when success loomed for the Irish, Purdue might have gone into tomorrow's battle as the underdog, which, after all, is a splendid position, win or lose. But last Saturday Navy, which never before had whipped a Notre Dame team, won, 7 to 0. Rip Miller, a Notre Dame man, was Navy's coach. Now it's up to Noble Kizer and Mel Elward, Notre Dame men, to do as much.

Anderson Wants Victory.

Some have visioned tomorrow's game as a fight to see whether Hunk Anderson will remain as head coach at Notre Dame. This isn't so. Anderson, discussed as much in defeat as was Rockne in success, is shooting for a victory, not to retain his job, but to give his boys a taste of how it feels to come out on top.

For a coach who has been publicly decapitated in many newspapers, Hunk Anderson today seemed carefree. Perhaps he figures nothing worse can happen. But we imagine that Hunk's conscience is clear. He must reason that he's done his best, and if his team hasn't won, it is no fault of either the players or himself. No one apparently has thought that Notre Dame actually may be inferior in talent and that is lost to better men.

Purdue probably will be handicapped. Its best back field strength either will not be available or, if used, will not function 100 per cent. But Purdue, which barely saved a tie in the Minnesota game, which had no more success with Carnegie in the first half than did Notre Dame, has been accorded victory in advance. That victory may not be realized.

Notre Dame Hopeful.

Notre Dame is not despondent. The players have a surprising confidence and the student body, which tonight gave its representatives an old fashioned vote of confidence in a mass pep meeting, believe the long road of defeat has come to an end.

Despite yesterday's snowstorm, an excellent playing field is guaranteed for tomorrow's game. A crew of workmen cleaned the stadium seats today and removed the snow from the huge

10 TO RUN TODAY IN LATONIA CUP, CLOSING FEATURE

Latonia, Ky., Nov. 10.—(AP)—A field of ten was named today for the Latonia Cup, $2,000 added feature of Latonia's closing day program tomorrow.

Indications were that the feature would be run under depressing weather conditions. Rain was forecast, following the coldest day thus far recorded for the first ten days of November.

Founded in 1884, the race, at 2¼ miles for three years olds and upwards, was worth $13,650 to Chacolet ten years ago, since then it has steadily declined until La Feria's purse was only $1,450 last year.

Of the field, A. G. Tarn's Excellency was the favorite of the railbirds. A recent winner, he has been training here ten days for this contest.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Chicago's Maroons and Indiana's Hoosiers, who have shared the tenancy of the Western conference football cellar throughout the season, will come together on Stagg field at 2 o'clock this afternoon with a worthy and common purpose—that of breaking the lease on the lodgings in question. It will undoubtedly be the last opportunity of the two to do anything about the matter, for their remaining Big Ten foes, Illinois for Chicago and Purdue for Indiana, already appear a trifle too potent for them to handle.

There are those who may wish to quibble about terming the Maroons and Hoosiers basement dwellers in the conference, seeing as how each has lost two and tied one, while Wisconsin has absorbed three lickings and registered one tie. The fact remains, however, that all three are still in the triple zero league when it comes to a percentage reckoning.

The Maroons are frank to admit a cousinly interest in the Hoosiers, for Indiana has supplied the necessary touch of fat for many a lean Chicago season. In 22 meetings, including the abbreviated post-season charity game of 1931, the Maroons have won 19 games, losing only three.

Indiana Wins One.

Strangely enough, the lads from Bloomington have been able to win only one of the last four, and that in 1931. Last year they were the choice, but the Maroons upset them in a wild battle, 13 to 7. Three of the heroes of that encounter will appear again tomorrow, Capt. Pete Zimmer and Vinson Sahlin of the Maroons, and Fitzhugh Lyons, the long armed Indiana end, who scored for his team after having taken a 50 yard pass.

Both teams rate a comparison in the matter of potential strength, for their adherents, particularly those of the Maroons, were doing much chortling before the season commenced, running around shouting about what they were going to do to those parties who had lambasted them in the past. Thus far, their threats have been confined to gnashing their teeth and shaking their fists, largely because the suspected power, admittedly there, failed to function. The Maroons have not scored a touchdown against conference opposition.

There's Mystery, Too.

An angle of mystery was introduced into the game last night when it was discovered that Coach E. C. Hayes of Indiana and his assistant, Butch Nowack, had left Ed Anglemeyer, acting captain of the Hoosiers and a line star for three years, behind in Bloomington. Both coaches said Anglemeyer had not been brought to Chicago because of a sprained shoulder, although he took part in a strenuous scrimmage Thursday.

Other injured Hoosiers have made trips with the team this year, even though they never wore a uniform. Anglemeyer himself couldn't account for the action, although he said that Nowack had not spoken to him for two weeks. Several members of the team threatened to strike on learning of Anglemeyer's omission, but all made the trip here last night. Athletic officials branded reports of trouble between the coaches and the captain as absurd.

Coach Shaughnessy of Chicago, with a view to getting the said power in motion, will make a few changes in his starting lineup. The line, which has been intact since the opening of the season, will have three new faces in John Baker and Bill Langley at the ends and Ray Pokela at left guard.

How Can Navy Explain if It Loses Today?

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 10.—The Annapolis football team, which is helping the propaganda to make the country navy conscious, will play Columbia tomorrow the comparative seclusion of Baker field, which is one of those intimate football parks dating back to the quaint old theory that football was strictly a sport between schools and no part of the circus business.

In this case, however, the midshipmen cannot expect to promote the prestige of the naval service much. In fact, they will attract very little attention unless they somehow contrive to lose. For, although the Navy never has beaten Columbia, the circumstances just now are such that a victory would be routine, whereas a defeat for Annapolis would be regarded as a flop.

There Would Be No Excuse.

Last week the Navy beat Notre Dame, another school which had always licked Annapolis, but the more a football team does the more it is required to do. A team which licked Notre Dame could not have a very good excuse for losing to the current Columbia team and it seems that in the event of such a loss the Notre Dame boys would have grounds for a suit against the Navy for holding them up to public ridicule. That would be adding insult to injury, but it is not likely that the Navy will subject Notre Dame to this further humiliation.

This is not intended to insult the Columbia team, either, but it is necessary, in such pieces as this, to describe the quality of various football teams in general terms. The Columbia team, like the majority of teams every fall, just isn't there. It is a typical student football team with one star named Cliff Montgomery, who can be smothered under individual attention

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 10.—Except for those 30 defiant Iowa football players who tonight are sleeping in nearby Ypsilanti there isn't any one in all of Michigan courageous enough to say the Hawkeyes will beat the Wolverines in the University of Michigan stadium here tomorrow afternoon.

After the experts had blinked out through the whirling snow late this afternoon at the two teams while they were rehearsing on the frozen surface of Ferry field they scratched their heads, went into deep exercise of the intellect, and came to the conclusion the final score will be Michigan, 14; Iowa, 0.

May Tangle Title Race.

The prophecy was unanimous with but one exception. An expert from Detroit declared the final score will be 13 to 0. Should the skilled toes of the Wolverines boot out two points after the two touchdowns he is wide open to an investigation which possibly will terminate after his credentials have been ripped off the lapel of his coonskin coat.

Anyway the Wolverines and the Hawkeys are at their peak for this battle which will send the Michigan team dashing on toward the Western conference championship enjoying a commanding lead or throw the title race into the maddest tangle the Big Ten has ever known.

Expect 35,000 Spectators.

Such a possibility has aroused the followers of the Wolverines to such a state that 35,000 of them will brave a predicted snowstorm and be on hand to sing "The Yellow and the Blue" with much emotion and enthusiasm.

The thing that is worrying the Michigan old grads, who tonight are again pounding their steins on the tables in Joe Parker's place [Joe has passed away, but his buffet lingers on], is the report that some of the stars of the team a few nights ago drew a very fine rule about the code of training, and proceeded to visit a night club in Detroit and make merry for a few hours.

Fay, the quarter back, and Heston, the Michigan half back, son of the immortal Willie Heston, are the names that have been linked with the break in training rules.

Rumors Are Denied.

Yet, the members of the Michigan coaching staff deny the rumors, and when Coach Kipke announced his probable starting lineup against Iowa he included the names of Fay and Heston in his battle front.

Kipke was just back from an early morning duck hunt with a full bag of mallards. He laughed off the rumor of a violation by his players of the training rules by saying, "Perhaps I shouldn't have gone duck hunting this morning."

The practice of the Wolverines has been carried on this week with much zip. The regulars have fairly torn the daylights out of the reserves and the frosh. While quite confident of a Michigan triumph the old grads are worried.

Grads Fear an Upset.

The old grads are not quite sure, even as good as Michigan appears to be, that the Wolverines can turn back the Hawkeyes, which have averaged 21 points in all of this year's games and have gained on an average of 281 yards in each contest.

That the speed of Crayne and Laws in the Iowa back field may possibly bring the most astounding football upset of the year is causing most of the worry.

GAME WITHOUT TITLE APPEAL AROUSES FANS

Warmer Weather Is Promised.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Forty years of Wildcat-Illini football rivalry will have its 1933 manifestation this afternoon at Dyche stadium before 40,000 customers, mostly Northwestern homecomers. Those who will form the largest Evanston crowd in three years hope to see the thermometer register 40 degrees, and the weather man, bless his heart, indicates the temperature will be just that or a bit higher.

The polite thing to do is to ignore the bearing the game will have on the Big Ten championship, although both teams still have a mathematical chance to be champions, after a manner of speaking. Today's contest, however, needs no Western conference percentage tables to bolster interest. Those 40 years have provided all the stimulus necessary to make the contest one of the red hot football functions of the semester.

Illini on Recovery Trail.

The fact that Illinois appears to be on the road back to the gridiron heights after a somewhat lengthy detour hasn't hurt the Purple box office hopes any. And then there's the recent Illini showing against Michigan. After a week of pondering, partisans from our proud state university have come to look upon last week's clash with the Wolverines as a moral victory for the Illini.

They calculate that an impressive victory over the Wildcats today will convince the world that the Illini are better than the Wolverines, even if the Wolverines did nose out the Illini, 7 to 6, a week ago. You know how those things can be worked out with the tongue well placed in the cheek.

Then, too, there's the matter of four consecutive victories the Wildcats have scored over the Illini since 1928. This is a sequence of events which no Illini wants to see protracted, and there seems no day like today to the Champaign way of thinking.

Hope to Cure Fumbling.

The Wildcats are not downhearted either. There is always the hope that sometime this season a safety man will not fumble a punt and that the backs in rushing enterprises also will be able to keep the football from popping out of grasp. In their last two games the Purple lads have been especially reminiscent of those ridiculous fellows who seek to seize the greased pig at county fairs.

Coach Dick Hanley has noticed this, it is said, and has spent much time this week instructing Northwestern players that the ball must be possessed for progressive functioning.

Both teams have camparatively light but hard charging lines. It is a matter of record that the Illini forwards actually outplayed the more experienced and heavier Michigan linemen a week ago. Northwestern supporters contended that in the game with Minnesota the lighter Wildcat line outplayed the Gopher forwards.

Expect Forward Passing.

Dopesters are expecting to view much forward passing by the able Jack Beynon. One of the jobs the Wildcats have cut out for themselves is to see that Lindberg, Frink and Schustek are embarrassed in their plans to catch the passes that Master Beynon throws.

Illinois' running game has caused no fits of ecstacy this year. Whatever has been said in praise of Northwestern has been centered on the efficiency of the defense, which has allowed only three touchdowns, two of the three being on fumbles by backs. For this reason passes and punts, the latter with the hope of the customary Northwestern fumbles, are expected to be the dish which Coach Bob Zuppke will ask his boys to serve this afternoon.

Olson is expected to give the Wildcats a big edge in kicking, an edge which will be cut down if Northwestern's safety men continue to be unsafe.

Duvall for Line Smashing.

Northwestern will count on Cruice and Sullivan for its ball carrying and Duvall for its line smashes. Olson will do some passing and Augustson will, too. Practically every one has forgotten by now that this pair had no fewer than six of their passes intercepted by Ohio State two weeks ago.

Arrangements have been made to admit persons under 17 years of age to the north bleachers for the bargain price of 55 cents.

HUNTERS PATROL FIELDS AT DAWN FOR PHEASANTS

Thousands in Chicagoland Greet Open Season.

BY BOB BECKER.

Thousands of Chicagoland hunters were up before sunrise yesterday morning to celebrate the opening of the Illinois season on pheasants and rabbits. Although the outpouring of gunners from Chicago and the suburbs was not as great as during the years when the opening date falls on a Saturday or Sunday, nearly every unpatrolled field, marsh and abandoned subdivision west and northwest of the city was occupied by one or more shooters who had hurried to get into position for the sunrise barrage against the cottontails and ringnecks.

Pheasant hunters have until sundown Wednesday to continue their hunt for the birds. But the rabbit shooters may carry on their sport for many more weeks.

More Hunters than Shooting Land.

Inasmuch as the number of hunters who want shooting privileges close to the city limits far exceeds the amount of good shooting land available, and because many hunters had only a few hours in which to hunt, we found that a majority of the gunners followed the usual procedure of getting up in the wee small hours of the morning, rushing into the county in an automobile, breakfasting in a restaurant near their chosen shooting territory and then hurrying into the fields before daylight in order to establish nominal possession of a desirable field or marsh known to have pheasants and rabbits.

Between 4 and 5 a. m. the main highways leading out of the city were carrying a fairly steady stream of cars filled with hunters. Even before it was light enough to see distinctly much less line up a bird over the sights, some of the eager hunters were moving across the fields hoping for a shot at a big cock pheasant.

Anticipate Busy Week End.

So heavy was the concentration of shooters in some sections within 40 miles of the loop that it was possible to count as high as ten parked cars belonging to opening day hunters on a mile of paved highway. Following our brief but lucky offensive against a bunch of fast running Lake county pheasants, we cruised over some of the highways northwest of the city to see how many hunters could be counted per acre and also to check on the enforcement of the law against trespassing.

Judging from reports which we picked up along the road, hunters didn't find the crop of pheasants that they expected. Just about the usual number of arrests for invading posted land and for killing hen pheasants were made and both hunters, wardens and deputies anticipate a busy week end in view of the fact that it comes in the middle of the open season.

Ross May Risk Title Against Peter Jackson

It was indicated yesterday that Barney Ross will defend his junior welterweight championship against Young Peter Jackson at Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 21. An offer of $12,500 is expected to induce Ross to sign.

Prior to winning the lightweight and junior welterweight titles from Tony Canzoneri at the Chicago Stadium last June 23, Ross made a trip to California for bouts. He was offered a match with Jackson at that time, but because promoters refused to guarantee Barney $3,000 it was refused.

Of course, the Los Angeles contest is contingent upon whether the champion will successfully defend the crown against Sammy Fuller of Boston at the Stadium next Friday. Ross also is scheduled to meet Billy Petrolle in a nontitle encounter at New York on Dec. 6.

A new list of Central A. A. U. officials was released yesterday at a meeting of the boxing committee. The officials include Dave Barry, Wilfrid Smith, Al Krause, Sheldon Clark, Gen. John V. Clinnin, Fred Gardner, Amos Alonzo Stagg Jr., and Frank P. Schreiber. The committee sanctioned shows at Highwood, Ill., Tuesday, and at Blue Island Friday. It was announced that delegates from this district will complete arrangements at a meeting Monday prior to leaving for Pittsburgh, Pa., Saturday for the annual National A. A. U. convention, which will convene Nov. 19.

King Levinsky is due today from Winnipeg, Man., where he boxed a four round exhibition bout Wednesday . . . Jimmy Cummings, 1933 Golden Gloves middleweight runnerup, will make his professional debut Nov. 20 at Marigold Garden. His opponent may be Matt Dour.

Fred Hawkette beat Paddy Waltier [4].
Hank Bucker beat Jack O'Brien [4].

The annual Christmas basket fund amateur boxing show, sponsored by the 19th Ward Democratic club, will be held at the Midway arena Tuesday. Eight bouts will be presented. John Duffy is general chairman. F. 41.

WISCONSIN HOST TO WEST VIRGINIA ELEVEN TODAY

Badgers Hope Foe Isn't as Good as Their Frosh.

Madison, Wis., Nov. 10.—[Special.]—The Wisconsin Badgers today, after a week of practice almost devoid of defensive work, found themselves suddenly apprehensive of the deceptive running attack of the West Virginia team which they will meet tomorrow.

The Badger offensive was timed and polished throughout the week, but not until late in yesterday's practice were Wisconsin varsity team members given defensive dummy scrimmage against the freshmen, who used the Mountaineers' offensive plays.

In this light workout it became apparent that the freshmen knew more about West Virginia plays and their execution than the varsity did about stopping them. One ray of hope is that the West Virginia team is less capable and knows less about its own formations than the Badger freshmen, who, it is generally admitted, have a powerful team. Belief that the varsity has developed a faster offensive is another phase of consolation. Tomorrow's starting lineup:

Morale Is High.

The Navy's morale is high this year for the first time since the break with the Army in 1927. The squad is small in numbers, there being only about two full teams of players who can be regarded as really varsity, but the young men have a remarkable capacity for punishment and last week they evinced a gay impudence toward a more numerous lot of bigger men.

The midshipmen were given a mighty shoving-around most of the afternoon in Baltimore, and if touchdowns were scored on the 25 yard line they would have lost the contest about 49 to 14. But, inside their 25 yard line they were much stronger than they were beyond it, and once Notre Dame got a first down only four yards from the goal the same Navy team which had been about as stout as a cloud of smoke elsewhere on the field became one of those stone walls and held for four downs. The boys were smart defenders against the forward pass, too, intercepting one and knocking down another close to their goal, and this fact suggests an afternoon of trouble and frustration for Mr. Montgomery of Columbia.

Navy Faces Princeton.

The next really hard contest for the Navy prior to the big game with the Army will be the one with the happy coincidences of Princeton one week hence. It was just by the rarest and most fortunate coincidence that a pack of remarkably fine young freshman football players happened to enter Princeton at the time that Fritz Crisler went there to restore the glory of the old school. Not many coaches enjoy such coincidences, but Mr. Crisler's luck and Princeton's were just dandy in this case, and the roster of the Princeton squad this year reveals 28 sophomores of varsity quality as against only 27 juniors and seniors. The sophomores are the life of the team, and, of course, everybody will congratulate Mr. Crisler on his excellent fortune.

REPORT BUSH OUT NEXT SEASON AS REDS' MANAGER

Cincinnati, O., Nov. 10.—(AP)—The Enquirer says it has learned from an authoritative but undisclosed source that Donie Bush will not pilot the Cincinnati Reds in 1934.

The disclosure, says the newspaper, was made as Larry MacPhail, new president-designate of the club, prepared for an extensive tour to line up new talent for the team which finished in the National league cellar the last three seasons.

Without criticism of the management by Bush, who came here last spring after guiding the Minneapolis Millers to the American association pennant, adds the story, MacPhail has decided he wants a playing manager if he can obtain the right man.

MacPhail is understood to be favorably considering Jimmy Wilson, catcher of the Phillies, for the managership. Wilson, however, has not applied for the position.

Shore Comes to Terms with Boston Hockey Team

EDMONTON, Alta., Nov. 10.—(AP)—Eddie Shore, holdout defense player of the Boston Bruins of the National Hockey league, today announced he had come to a salary agreement and that his suspension by the league had been lifted. In his absence the Boston club took a 6 to 1 licking from Toronto in its opening game last night.

Philadelphia Sports Bill Gets Approval of Mayor

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 10.—(AP)—Major J. Hampton Moore today signed the Sunday sports bill which will permit professional football to be played here next Sunday by the Philadelphia Eagles and the Chicago Bears.

Ohio State Faces Strong Penn Eleven

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 10. — [Special.]—Ohio State's football team, victorious in its last two western conference games, will invade Franklin field for the first time tomorrow when it meets the University of Pennsylvania in an intersectional contest.

With a line that averages over 200 pounds from end to end, the best punter in the Big Ten and a set of speedy backs, Ohio is regarded a 2 to 1 favorite to repeat its triumph of last year over the Red and Blue.

Beaten Only Once.

Only Michigan, leading team in the conference, has succeeded in defeating the Columbus team. Pennsylvania has achieved only one major triumph this season, defeating Lafayette last Saturday. Navy and Dartmouth whipped the Red and Blue in early season contests.

Pennsylvania will place a stronger team on the field than it has had available since the first half of the Dartmouth game. The return of the injured guard, Cy Newcomb, and the improvements in the play of George Kerr, end, has greatly strengthened the Red and Blue. Bob McCaffrey, veteran guard, will not be available, a recurrence of an injury keeping him out.

Chamberlin to Start.

Judy Chamberlin, as a result of his all around play against Lafayette, will start at full back position in place of John Lima. Otherwise the Pennsylvania starting array will be similar to that which won a week ago. Lineup:

SPEEDY STANFORD TEAM TO BATTLE TROJANS TODAY

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 10.—(AP)—Southern California's vaunted defense, successful in the last twenty-seven starts, will be given the test of Stanford's speed at the Coliseum here tomorrow.

Speed such as the Trojans have not faced this season was expected to be hurled at them by Coach Tiny Thornhill's Indians, but in the face of this fact, Southern California's team was a two to one favorite.

Arnold Eddy, graduate manager, said more than 50,000 tickets have been sold and forecast a crowd of between 75,000 and 80,000 would see the struggle.

2 Sectional Title Contests Top Prep Card

Harrison Tech and Schurz, a pair of teams who are not strangers in title competition, step out today in quest of sectional championships in the Chicago Public High School league. Harrison Tech meets McKinley at Mills stadium, Lake street and Kilpatrick avenue, for the west section crown, while Schurz opposes Lake View at Logan Square park, Kedzie and Elston avenues, for the north division title.

Both are former league champions. Schurz captured the championship in 1929, while Harrison won in 1931. Despite a defeat Harrison will be tied for the west section title. It is undefeated in league competition, winning three consecutive games. Schurz gained the lead in the north section last week after a turbulent round of games which saw every team in the section defeated.

Will Enter Semi-Finals.

If Schurz and Harrison triumph, they will join Lindblom and Morgan Park in the semi-final round. Lindblom clinched the central section title last week, while Morgan Park took its second successive south section championship. Lindblom and Morgan Park already have agreed to play their semi-final game at White City next Saturday.

Lindblom, however, still has one sectional game to pay. It meets Tilden Tech at White City this afternoon. It won the title when it defeated Bowen, 12 to 0, last Saturday, while Englewood was playing a scoreless tie with Hyde Park. The eight games today will mark the end of sectional competition.

Oak Park, Evanston May Tie.

The Suburban league also will conclude its schedule today with two games. Oak Park and Evanston, if victorious, will share the championship. Oak Park faces Proviso at Maywood and Evanston meets New Trier of Winnetka on the Evanston field.

St. Ignatius, co-holder of first place in the west division of the Chicago Catholic High School league, meets St. Mel at St. Philip field, Van Buren and Albany streets, in the only league game scheduled for this afternoon. Five contests will be played tomorrow.

De Paul Faces St. Thomas in Home Final

De Paul university's undefeated football team will strive for its seventh successive victory in its final home game of the season, battling the St. Thomas eleven of St. Paul, Minn., this afternoon at Wrigley field.

Two Ends on Hospital List.

All ten of these youths have established excellent football records at De Paul and are expected to be given a colorful sendoff by the school rooters today.

The other three men who are to play their final home game are John Pionke, who may appear at both end and tackle; Ed Walters, tackle, and Bert Lannon, center.

De Paul is entering the contest with only two ends, Krause and Delaney. Joe Sullivan and Fred Brainard, two other regular ends, are on the hospital list.

St. Thomas Loses Only One Game.

St. Thomas brings an impressive record, having lost only one game. St. Thomas leads the Minnesota conference.

To accomplish this, however, St. Thomas must penetrate a particularly rugged defense. De Paul has been scored on only once this season.

Probable lineup:

DE PAUL.		ST. THOMAS.
Krause	L. E.	Rigney
Barskis	L. T.	Neihart
Schuster	L. G.	Little
Gorsky	C.	Lackner
Sexton	R. G.	Liev

Flood	Q. B.	Haider
O'Brien	L. H.	Walsh

4 CONVICTS SEEK TO JOIN KANSAS U. FOOTBALL TEAM

Lawrence, Kas., Nov. 10.—(AP)—Four convicts in the Kansas penitentiary have forwarded a plan which they assert will cause an upturn in the football fortunes of the University of Kansas with themselves as the heroes to be rewarded with paroles which would be revoked automatically in case they failed to make good with the Jayhawk team of 1934.

Their desire to help the ailing Kansas football prestige was expressed in a letter to Senator Delaney, who had urged a $100,000 legislative appropriation with which to build a Jayhawk team that can produce something besides goose eggs.

"We are making the following proposition, to-wit: There are four of us confined in the state prison who believe we are competent football men; our plan is for you to obtain our release on parole to K. U. with the understanding that if we lose a single game we are to be returned to finish our sentences."

The signers described themselves as a 190 pound half back, a 223 pound full back, a 220 pound and a 165 pound quarter back, with college football experience.

Burr Chamberlin, Former Yale Star, Ex-Coach, Is Dead

New York, Nov. 10.—[Special.]—Burr Clark Chamberlin, one of Yale's football immortals, an All-America tackle in 1897 and 1898, died today at his home in Bronxville after a long illness. He was 56 years old.

The immediate cause of death was a disease of the heart. He had been ill for a long time and confined to his bed for several weeks. He was a stock broker connected with Goodbody & Co.

Two daughters, Nancy, 11, and Mary, 10, survive him. Mrs. Chamberlin died three years ago. The funeral will be held Sunday, with burial in Dalton, Mass., where he was born.

After graduating from Andover, Chamberlin went to Yale in 1895, entering Sheffield Scientific college, and played on the football teams of 1896, 1897, and 1898. He was captain in his final year.

After his graduation, Chamberlin coached for one year at Leland Stanford university and then Yale called him back to be head coach for a year. He was head coach at the University of Virginia, in charge of the football squads, in 1901 and 1902.

From Virginia he went to West Point for a year as coach, then to Annapolis for three years more coaching, and after that he went into business. From 1923 to 1927 he went back to Yale each fall to help train the football squads. He had been a member of the Yale football committee from 1910 to 1913.

canvas blanket which protects the gridiron. The ground is not frozen and there will be adequate footing for Andy Pilney, Nick Lukats, Jim Carter, and Doxie Moore.

That this is the game on Purdue's schedule is attested by the movement of 6,000 from Lafayette to South Bend. Among the list of notables for whom reservations have been made are Gov. Paul McNutt of Indiana, Gene Ade, Harry H. Woodring, assistant secretary of war; Senator Frederick Van Nuys, Thomas J. Courtney, state's attorney of Cook county; Harry M. Miller, brother of Mayor Ray Miller of Cleveland, and president of the Notre Dame National Alumni association, and Ambrose O'Donnell, special aid to Postmaster General James A. Farley.

Notre Dame spent its final practice today in review of its offensive tactics. Reyman Bonar, junior quarter back, will start with the veterans, Nick Lukats, Steve Banas, and Ray Branchevau, as his back field. Tom Gorman, first team center, has recovered from his injuries in the Navy game to the extent that he will be in the lineup at the initial kickoff. Joe Pivarnik, a senior, probably will start at right guard in place of Rocco Schiralli, Gary, Ind., junior.

FRANCES MEANY GETS DIVORCE FROM SCOFIELD

Bridgeport, Conn., Nov. 10.—(AP)—Frances Meany Scofield, one of the Meany sisters, swimming stars, was granted a divorce today from Edmond H. Scofield of Port Chester, N. Y.

Mrs. Scofield, sister of Helen Meany, former Olympic women's diving champion, and star in her own name, charged that her husband showed unwarranted jealousy and suspicion, causing him to treat her cruelly.

Former Loyola Star to Play in Red Lineup

Mike Palm, newly appointed coach of the Cincinnati Reds, will bring a home town boy with him tomorrow afternoon when the Reds invade Wrigley field for a National Professional Football league game with the Chicago Cardinals. He is Jim Mooney, one time Loyola academy player who later starred at Georgetown university. Mooney will get into the game as an end, but probably will have plenty of opportunity to do his share of the punting, his forte in high school and college.

JIM MOONEY.

When Mooney isn't kicking the Reds' punting will be attended to by Jim Bausch, former Kansas star and Olympic decathlon champion. Bausch will be playing against his old team, for the Cards released him earlier in the season, but he turned up with the Reds and is making a hit with Cincinnati fans. Lloyd Burdick, one time Bear, and Cookie Tackwell are the stars of the visiting line.

It's the Second Meeting.

The game will be the second meetings between the two, the Cards having won the first on a drop kick by Joe Lillard. Mike Koken, former Notre Dame luminary, will be at left half for the Cards, replacing Cliff Hansen, out for the season with injuries.

It will be ladies' day and several thousand women fans are expected to take advantage of the offer. Between halves two boys' teams will play.

PICK TRIO FOR WORLD POCKET BILLIARD MEET

Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 10.—(AP)—George Kelly and William Mosconi, both of Philadelphia, and Charles Seaback, Astoria, N. Y., will represent the United States in the world pocket billiard tourney at Chicago next month, it was decided today following a game in the national championship tourney.

Kelly defeated Eddie Sauers, Oakland, Cal., 125 to 85 in twenty-four innings. By his victory Kelly went into a tie with Seaback and Mosconi, each with six victories and one loss. The defeat was Sauers' fourth, against five triumphs. Two games are scheduled Saturday and one Monday to determine the position of the three leaders.

In a game that lasted nearly three hours Harry Wood, Duluth, Minn., won, 125 to 124, from Arthur Schliesman, Minneapolis, in fifty innings.

Hawks Return to Duty; Face Ranger Sextet Tomorrow

The Blackhawks, while gratified to escape from their season opener Thursnight with a 2 to 2 tie with the New York Americans, weren't at all chesty when they reported at the Stadium yesterday for a workout in preparation for tomorrow night's battle with the world champion New York Rangers. There were those who reminded them of something they already knew—that they weren't so hot, taken by and large.

It is doubtful if a mediocre game ever created quite so much comment among hockey followers. There were many who expressed disappointment to find the Hawks back at their old practice of skating about in a group instead of spreading out a bit, as the successful teams do. This probably was the result of finding early in the game that there were few passes of more than five feet which were accurate and that the few accurate ones were fumbled by the potential receivers, observers explained.

While the team seemed in excellent physical condition, there were few other evidences that their month's practice in Champaign had done them any good. There was hope, however, that the absence of team play would not be prolonged and steps were taken to develop some sort of planned offensive before tomorrow night's contest.

Expectations that changes in the rules would tend to speed up the game, especially in regard to whistle tooting by the referees, failed to materialize. There were a lot of big red dots painted in the ice and every time a referee skated over a dot he was supposed to blow his whistle. At least that's the way it seemed.

There were three penalties for violation of the anti-defense rule, which was enforced in its new form more rigorously than heretofore. The new wrinkle obviously was unpopular with the customers. The Americans made their first goal when Thompson was serving time for violation of the rule after a protest which brought Capt. Gardiner out of his nets to center ice to find out what the ruling was all about.

Tampering with the rules is the result of the installation of a new managing director by the National league, Frank Patrick. Mr. Patrick is the originator of many of the innovations in hockey, and naturally, in his new job, has felt called upon to make more and better innovations to get his administration under way. The managing director has many more important functions, however, and it is said that things will be adjusted to the liking of the customers later on.

NORMAL BATTLES WESLEYAN TODAY IN TITLE GAME

Seeks First Victory Over Foe in 25 Years.

Bloomington, Ill., Nov. 10. — [Special.]—Twenty-five years have passed since a State Normal football team defeated an Illinois Wesleyan eleven, but Normal fans are confident that the 1933 team will end the years of famine tomorrow when the two colleges meet with the Little Nineteen championship the probable prize of victory.

Normal, leader of the Little Nineteen race for four weeks, risks a record of five straight victories, no defeats and no ties. Wesleyan possesses two league triumphs, no defeats and one tie.

Rivalry Started in 1887.

The rivalry of Wesleyan and Normal, which began in 1887, is the second oldest in the Little Nineteen conference, only the Monmouth-Knox feud antedating it. With the conference championship at stake, 5,000 fans are expected to witness the 42d renewal of the Normal-Wesleyan rivalry. Wesleyan followers gaze proudly on a record of 23 victories, eleven defeats, and seven ties in their 41 previous battles with Normal.

DE KALB, 25; WHEATON, 0.

De Kalb, Ill., Nov. 10.—[Special.]—The aerial attack of the De Kalb Teachers was too much for Wheaton college team to combat today and De Kalb triumphed, 25 to 0. De Kalb completed 18 passes out of 32 for a total gain of 280 yards. Wheaton completed two passes for a gain of 15 yards. De Kalb's running game was excellent, but its aerial attack stood out.

Nori and Mustapha were outstanding as passers and ball carriers for De Kalb. Erb of De Kalb scored the first touchdown in the first quarter on a pass from Nori that netted a gain of 34 yards. Nori ran 13 yards around end for the second score in the third quarter. Balas plunged one yard for the third touchdown after a pass, Mustapha to Skoglund, had brought the ball 14 yards in the last period. The fourth came on a long pass from Mustapha to Walters, which was good for 36 yards.

AUGUSTANA MEETS MACOMB.

Rock Island, Ill., Nov. 10.—[Special.]—Twelve years ago Karl Sundeen first attracted attention as a freshman football player at Moline High school. Tomorrow, as a senior and star tackle, he closes his home career at Augustana in a game with Western Illinois State Teachers college of Macomb.

MONMOUTH FACES BRADLEY.

Monmouth, Ill., Nov. 10.—[Special.]—When Bradley college plays Monmouth here tomorrow in the last home game of the season for the Scots, it will be the first time the Peoria college eleven ever appeared on the Monmouth gridiron. Two previous battles were played in Peoria, Bradley winning, 6 to 0, in 1923 and 20 to 14 last year.

Eleven seniors will be playing their final home game for the Scots, including such stars as Bobby Woll, 129 pound back; Ed Brown, back; Gordon Winbigler and Cactus McConnell, tackles; H. Pressly, guard, and Marion Harper, end.

CAPE GIRARDEAU WINS, 12-9.

Carbondale, Ill., Nov. 10.—[Special.]—Cape Girardeau Teachers college overcame a 7 to 6 lead in the third quarter today to defeat the Southern Illinois Teachers football team, 12 to 9. HEAR WOODWARD IN SUIT AGAINST BROWNE ESTATE

Former Clients Sue for $29,000 Fee.

Ottawa, Ill., Nov. 10.—[Special.]—Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward of Chicago, testified here today in the trial of a suit for $29,000 brought by the relatives of James Murray, convicted Rondout mail bandit against the estate of the late Lee O'Neil Browne.

Mrs. Jennie Murray, Murray's wife, and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Murray, are seeking a rebate on a $25,000 legal fee and $4,000 expense account they advanced Browne.

Say Fee Was Unearned.

They maintain the fee was unearned because Browne failed to obtain the release of Murray from the federal prison at Atlanta, Ga. They claim Browne had not completed his work when he met death in 1926.

Judge Woodward, who was practicing law in Ottawa when Browne was engaged for the Murray case, testified today that he made several trips to Chicago, and two trips to Washington with Browne, in the interest of the case.

Saw Pepper and Hughes.

On their first trip to Washington, he said, they made an unsuccessful effort to interest Senator George Wharton Pepper of Pennsylvania in the case. Judge Woodward also testified that he went to New York to consult Charles Evans Hughes in regard to the case. He conferred with Hughes for an hour, but Hughes declined to become counsel for Murray.

On cross-examination Judge Woodward said Browne paid him $3,000 for his services.

EUROPEANS FIGHT U.S. PROPOSAL FOR NEWS PROBE

MADRID, Nov. 10.—(AP)—Unexpected internal dissension today upset proceedings of the international press conference, which is being held here under the auspices of the league of nations.

Excitement stirred the conference when several delegates sponsored a maneuver to kill a resolution proposed by Robert Pell of New York, the American delegate. They met in secret session, called Pell's proposal "dangerously worded" and charged it would "result in the revelation of many international journalistic secrets."

Pell's resolution provided for the establishment of a commission to study the financial and technical methods of news gathering and distribution, chiefly designed to check the dissemination of false information. Pell and other supporters of the resolution, however, learned of the secret meeting in time to rescue the resolution for presentation before the plenary session tomorrow.

G. L. Ames Is Found Dead; Note Indicates Suicide

The body of George L. Ames, 55 years old, 6811 Emerald avenue, former sales manager for the U. S. Music Roll company, 333 North Michigan avenue, was found yesterday in an alley near 92d street and Stony Island avenue. Ames had been dead for more than a day. He apparently had taken his own life. A note giving directions for disposal of his body and two bottles which had contained sleeping tablets were found in his clothing. His wife, Bertha, reported to police on Monday that he had disappeared after saying that he was going for a walk. He lost $400,000 in the 1929 stock market crash, she said, and since then had been despondent and in ill health.

JESSE MELLETT, FOE OF KLAN IN INDIANA, IS DEAD

Anderson, Ind., Nov. 10.—[Special.]—Jesse H. Mellett, 51, three times Democratic mayor of Anderson, died at his home here this afternoon after a long illness. His first term as mayor began in 1910 and he was reëlected. While serving the second term he resigned and entered business.

He was elected again in 1929 on an anti-prohibition-anti-Ku Klux Klan ticket. He was a brother of Don Mellett, Canton, O., newspaper editor, slain in an anti-vice crusade.

Mayor Mellett was stricken in the state board of accounts office two years ago and the city council named Harry Baldwin, Mellett's appointee as city controller, to succeed him as mayor.

Mellett, on partly recovering from his illness, asserted he did not sign a purported resignation as mayor and the contention over the office still is in court.

Mellett is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Margaret Cole, who had been named city controller by Baldwin, and five brothers, all newspaper men.

HOG SELLERS TO KEEP UP STRIKE; 22,000 RETAINED

Flout Packers' Bids; Invoke Farmers.

Twenty-two thousand unsold hogs were carried over by commission men at the Chicago stockyards yesterday at the end of the second day of the first "sellers' strike" in the history of Chicago live stock trading.

For two days the commission men have stoutly refused to sell top grade hogs for the farmers at less than $4.50 per hundred pounds, and the packers have as stoutly resisted paying more than $4.35 per hundredweight.

Late yesterday indications were that the "strike" would carry through today and that the commission men would hold something more than 25,000 unsold hogs over the week-end.

Carrying charges on these hogs became a problem yesterday. Under ordinary circumstances the farmer who ships the hogs must pay the cost of feeding them until they can be sold. This time, however, the situation is different. The hogs could be sold, but the commission men refuse to sell them at the prices bid by the packers.

U. S. Officials Lend Support.

The disclosure that Washington authorities, who are seeking to boost the hog raisers' income, has lent support to the commission men was made last night by a director of the Chicago live stock exchange, the commission men's organization.

"There has been no official action taken by Washington," he said, "but members of our organization have received telegrams from Washington officials endorsing our stand. We are entirely in harmony with Washington.

"This whole fight is a blow at the practice that packers have been following in recent years of buying hogs direct from the farm instead of through the markets here and in other principal stockyards cities.

"The prices established in the Chicago market are the gauge for prices throughout the hog belt, but the direct buying by packers from the farm undermines this price setup. It is a club that the packers hold over the market to keep prices down. For two years the packers haven't paid what hogs are worth."

Packers Answer Criticism.

Packers met this criticism by saying that they would be glad to see hog prices go up, not only because the rise would help the farmer but because it would increase the value of their inventories and thus be a source of profit to the packing companies.

"The situation is this," said one packer. "The commission men are quoting prices that are entirely out of line with prices in all other markets. The differentials have become so marked that the big eastern buyers have deserted the Chicago market and have gone into the eastern markets with their purchases.

"At the prices demanded by the commission men we would lose money because we couldn't get the cut out value out of the pork. The meat consuming public won't pay the prices that would be necessitated by the higher prices demanded for live hogs."

Differ on Fair Prices.

The deadlock in the market developed Thursday forenoon, when Chicago packers attempted to break the market in face of a fairly brisk wholesale trade for fresh pork. Sellers demanded a showdown and the unique situation that developed has attracted nation-wide attention.

Some of the markets at smaller points have followed suit in bucking the packers, but generally lower quotations prevailed yesterday at the outside markets. Sellers here insisted that conditions do not warrant the break.

Commission men are urging farmers to join in the fight to raise the price of hogs. Farmers are being asked to withhold hog shipments to all markets and processing points, and are being urged particularly to keep supplies of "directs" out of the packers' hands for a few days, until the outcome of the fight can be determined.

Small Packers Face Shortage.

Several of the smaller packing houses that have only a very limited supply of direct shipments in their hands have been short of hogs for two days. As the deadlock is mainly in the top classes, these smaller houses have been scouring the stockyards for anything they can buy at $4.35 and below in the hope of keeping their killing gangs going.

Larger packing houses had in more than 17,000 head direct from farmers in the country. With this supply shut off for a day or two it would force big packing houses to raise their bids, the sellers contend.

One carload filled an urgent eastern order at $4.50, but none of the local houses would raise their bids of $4.35, which was 20 to 25 cents lower than the average market of last Wednesday. Packers call attention to the fact that trading in fresh pork slowed down some yesterday, but sellers insist that pork is selling no lower than it was earlier in the week, when packers were paying $4.50 and $4.55.

Move Pork to Avoid Tax.

Packing houses have been moving pork out of storage for several weeks to escape some of the processing tax on hogs which was levied last Monday. Figures show that the out-of-storage movement at the seven leading markets has been at the rate of more than 1,600,000 pounds per day.

The movement of hogs to practically all of the markets in the country yesterday was about normal, indicating that the grip of strikers has been temporarily broken.

There was little activity in the cattle alleys yesterday. Only 2,000 head arrived at Chicago and these were mostly common to medium grades that sold at about steady prices. Top sales of steers reached $5.85, the bulk selling at $4.50 to $5.40.

Lamb prices were pounded down mostly 25 cents in a draggy trade yesterday. The market in two days has dropped 50 to 75 cents.

In the preceding week loadings of 636,674 cars were up 3 per cent from 1932. Loadings dropped 28,889 cars from the level of the preceding week.

The increase over 1932 was the twenty-sixth successive weekly gain. There was a decrease between like weeks in each of the five preceding years.

Miscellaneous Total Over 1932.

Miscellaneous freight loading for the week ended Nov. 4 totaled 225,173 cars, a decrease of 8,366 cars below the preceding week, but 15,666 cars above the corresponding week in 1932. It was, however, a decrease of 39,277 cars under the corresponding week in 1931.

Loadings of less than carload lot freight totaled 171,503 cars, an increase of 81 cars above the preceding week, but a decrease of 5,300 cars below the corresponding week last year, and 41,162 cars below the same week two years ago.

ENGLAND FACING BETTER TIMES, M'KINLAY SAYS

England seems headed for better times, declared John McKinlay, president of Marshall Field & Co., yesterday. Mr. McKinlay returns from a month abroad, accompanied by his wife.

"Just about everybody in England, from the man on the street to the high officials of government, believes that the economic condition of his country is definitely improving," he said. "Every English business man with whom I had contact was definitely optimistic. Unemployment has been decreased, and there is evidence at every hand that England is headed for better times.

"Generally speaking, English business men look upon President Roosevelt's program with an open mind. While they fully realize the experimental character of the NRA, they are slow to make predictions about the outcome, and are, of course, hopeful for its success.

"I am much gratified by the reports of business which I received upon my arrival. I believe that there is a definite upward trend."

Cold Weather Spurs Buying, Reviews Find

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 10.—"Reports of trade progress were largely more encouraging this week, as some of the somberness of the business atmosphere of the last thirty days has been cleared by the belated arrival of cold weather," says Dun & Bradstreet.

"This gave such a vigorous movement to stocks that some retailers recorded the largest sales totals for any week since August, and dispatches from cities which previously had been tempered by modifying clauses regarding the slowness of consumer demand in assuming seasonal proportions, have become less numerous. In fact, the recession in distributive totals has not been pronounced in the majority of lines, as the disappointment expressed has sprung from the tardy development of normal fall expansion, in view of the high hopes which had been based on the vertical uptrend of consumer buying during the summer months.

Expect Buying to Rise.

"With the good start made during the current week there are encouraging indications that most of the deferred fall buying will be crowded into the period prior to Thanksgiving. With the expanded demand of the Christmas shopping season following almost immediately, sales for the year may total somewhat above those of 1932, despite the reduced levels along which merchandise moved during the first quarter.

"Evidence is piling up to show that the Christmas buying season will be the best in three years for many retailers, as there are many more millions of persons to spend than last Christmas, some for the first time in two years, while many more will have the advantage of the pay increases granted under the provisions of the NRA.

Retail Sales Advance.

"Under the invigorating influence of colder weather and the larger buying incident to the election day holiday, retail sales surged strongly forward in most sections of the country. The unmistakable evidence of the amplification of public buying power is expected to increase sales sufficiently during the current month and December to bring the total volume for the year well in excess of that of 1932.

"The comparative stability of prices is proving a reassuring base on which buyers are relying in planning their future operations, particularly in view of governmental plans which will strengthen further the existing structure."

The decrease in the business activity barometer, compiled by Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., is the smallest set down in the last three weeks, a drop of 0.9 per cent, contrasting with one of 3.3 per cent a week earlier.

COURTNEY RAIDS "PUT AND CALL" GRAIN CONCERN

The Pioneer Grain Service, 100 North La Salle street, was raided by State's Attorney Courtney yesterday, according to E. J. O'Connor of the office of the state's attorney, who took possession of all records. This followed a raid on United Market Service, 10 North Clark street, on the preceding day.

Arthur Tuber and William Tuber of the United Market Service and Harry Tuber and William Engber, a nephew of the three Tubers, of the Pioneer Grain Service are being held in custody.

Both firms were operating without licenses to conduct a brokerage business, according to O'Connor. He said that they dealt in puts and calls on commodities and usually charged anywhere from 100 to 500 per cent of prevailing rates. The office of the state's attorney is checking over the books to determine whether or not the firm was guilty of "bucketing."

U. S. STEEL SHIPMENTS DECREASE 2,264 TONS DURING LAST MONTH

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 10.—Total shipments of finished steel products in October by the United States Steel corporation were 572,897 tons, as compared with 575,161 tons in the preceding month and a 1933 high of 701,322 tons reported for July. The drop for the month was 2,264 tons.

Report of total shipments takes the place for the first time of the unfilled tonnage figures released on the tenth of each month since 1911 and taken as an index of the future business of the steel industry.

Requirements of the steel code under the NRA automatically killed the unfilled tonnage figures as an index of forward business as orders for steel now can not be accepted for delivery beyond calendar quarters.

January, 285,138; February, 275,929; March, 256,793; April, 335,321; May, 455,302; June, 603,937; July, 701,322; August, 668,155; September, 575,161; October, 572,897.

CHICAGO TRADERS FREED ON CHARGE OF MANIPULATION

Washington, D. C., Nov. 10.—(AP)—Complaints pending since 1929 against three Chicago wheat traders were dismissed today by the grain futures commission with the assertion that it saw no evidence that the statute regulating activities had been violated.

Immediately, however, J. W. T. Duvel, chief of the grain futures administration, described the alleged practices as "vicious" and called upon the Chicago Board of Trade to eliminate them.

Secretaries Wallace and Roper and Attorney General Cummings are the members of the commission. The complaints accused William B. Massey, John S. Reddy, and Philip J. Reddy of violating the grain futures act by "manipulation, dissemination of false and misleading market reports, and failure to keep records."

The commission said that "while practices of the character here involved may be detrimental to customers and may even amount to fraud, we nevertheless find difficulty in adopting the view that these constituted manipulations of the market price of grain within the meaning of the grain futures act."

HOME LOAN BANK TO MOVE TO CITY FROM EVANSTON

The Federal Home Loan bank of Evanston, which has for its territory the states of Illinois and Wisconsin, is to be moved into Chicago some time during December. Its lease on banking quarters at 2544 West Railroad avenue, Evanston, expires on Dec. 31, 1933.

A committee composed of Henry G. Zander Sr., chairman of the board of directors of the Home Loan bank; A. R. Gardner, executive vice president, and Arthur G. Erdmann, president, has been looking at prospective sites in the loop for several days.

As soon as official notification is received from Washington that such a move can be made, and whatever site is selected has met with approval, plans will at once be made to leave Evanston.

Silver Market Quieter; Bar Metal Off 1/8 Cent

New York, Nov. 10.—(AP)—The silver market was quieter today and the quotation for bar metal was shaded 1/8 cent to 42¾ cents an ounce. Futures trading was less active. Dealers report that outside speculation in silver has been increasing rapidly. A large number of orders, they say, has been coming from Shanghai.

Quick Return to Gold Urged by Professor

BY ROBERT J. RAY.

[Associate Professor of Economics and International Trade, Northwestern University.]

The policy of remaining off gold and devaluating the dollar in terms of a gold currency (say the French franc) in order to rectify the disparity of prices and slightly increase general prices in the United States is essentially vicious, exceedingly dangerous and, at its mildest, is prolonging the depression. It may wreck the economic activities of the country. That distinctly psychological factor "fear" is being maximized by the monetary policy now in operation.

Already the market for United States government bonds is being undermined. If this fear is intensified the next step in financial degradation will be a rush to sell government bonds; and that in turn will be followed by an issue of United States treasury notes to meet current governmental expenses, which will have to be repeated once it is started. When this stage is reached the country will be well launched in financial carousal comparable to that of Germany in 1922 and 1923. The Germans will tell you that they suffered more during those years than during the most severe years of the war.

Not Too Late to Change.

It is not too late to change our policy with ease. The monetary situation of our country is still well in hand. But we need to give serious thought to the imperative need of a right about face in monetary policy.

The essential need is not an increase in general prices in a short period of time, but only a slight increase in general prices over a considerable period—just enough to allow a substantial increase in agricultural prices, sufficient to eliminate the disparity between prices for agricultural products and the prices for manufactured goods which agriculturists must buy. This cannot be done in a year; but in the meantime the American people can well afford to allow their government to subsidize agriculture as a means of temporary relief.

Stabilization First Need.

The first steps toward the attainment of confidence that will allow normal business expansion and the use of the abundant credit facilities now possessed by our banks are the stabilization of foreign exchange rates, and the announcement of an intention of returning to the gold dollar. The announcement of this intention is advisable even though foreign exchange rates may have to be stabilized two or more times, at different levels, before the country gets back onto a fully established gold basis.

The public should realize that the French [gold] franc has jumped from 3.92 cents to more than 6 cents, not because of an increase in general prices in the United States, but because our international credit operations have been impaired, and mainly because of the flight of liquid funds from the United States resulting from the fear of future monetary degradation in this country.

Various Flights from Dollar.

Americans who have bought securities on the London market and have then bought drafts on London banks in payment, only to turn around immediately sell their securities in London and deposit their funds abroad are among those possessed with such fear. Americans who have sent merchandise abroad during the last year and have deposited abroad the funds received for this merchandise, instead of bringing those funds to banks in the United States, are another class so motivated. Some of these people have even preferred to leave their funds in the United Kingdom, a country not on gold, because of their belief that the British intend to avoid inflation of any magnitude.

There are several ways of getting funds out of a country in large volume over a period of months; and some of these are of such a nature that it is utterly futile to try to prevent these operations. But it is ridiculous for a country possessing the high percentage of gold reserve now in our federal reserve system and the very large unused credit facilities now available at our banks to even think of prohibiting such flights of capital.

An announcement of intention to return to gold would stop this movement and would make it possible to establish temporary stabilization at approximately five cents for the French franc. Business men would then be ready to commit themselves, and a broad market for United States government bonds would be maintained.

DOLLAR RALLIES; U. S. PUTS BRAKE ON GOLD BOOST

Metal Price Nearer London Market.

New York, Nov. 10.—(AP)—Washington today fixed the price at which the RFC buys newly mined gold to bring it slightly under the world price, for the first time since the dollar control program was started.

This effectively checked the headlong decline of the dollar, although not until it had reached a new low since 1914 in relation to the British pound sterling. The pound today touched $5.16¾ in terms of dollars in London, but after the end of the financial day there it slid back to $5.10½ in New York, where it was 1½ cents under yesterday's final level.

Wall street regarded the Washington action as indicating a desire to prevent such a rapid decline in the dollar as might lead to an orgy of bull speculation like that of last July. The RFC gold price was pushed up only 5 cents today to $33.20 an ounce, although the price in the London free market, reckoned on the opening quotation of the dollar there of $5.13 to the pound, was $33.26 an ounce.

Rates Adjusted to Gold Price.

The gold currencies as well as the pound finally subsided moderately in terms of the dollar, but adjusted themselves closely to the gold value of the dollar indicated by the RFC price. The gold price indicated a depreciation of approximately 37¾ per cent from the old gold parity, while the dollar, in terms of the French franc, was at a discount from parity of about 37½ per cent at the close.

The French franc ruled at 6.31 cents in terms of the dollar in Paris, but later in New York it subsided to 6.27 cents, which was .04½ of a cent under yesterday's final level here. Other gold currencies acted similarly. The Dutch guilder closed at 64.65 cents, off .43 of a cent. Belgian belgas and Swiss francs were off .15 and .23 of a cent, respectively. German marks, the Scandinavians, and far eastern funds eased.

The Canadian dollar continued to stick close to the American dollar, finishing the day at 1-16 of a cent premium, against a discount of 1-16 of a cent yesterday.

U. S. Checks Gold Operations.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 10.—(AP)—The administration gently applied the brakes to its gold operations today. Government bonds sagging with the dollar, caused officials here considerable uneasiness. In addition word was spreading of a growing irritation on the part of Great Britain and retaliatory action to defend the pound was regarded as far from an impossibility.

With these factors in view, the administration's action in setting the domestic gold price below that the world price was interpreted in some official quarters as indicating an easing off of the gold activities with the expectation of steadying both the dollar and government securities.

However, domestic markets turned in a direction the opposite of that toward which the administration wants to send them. Commodities were down. The Moody index of 15 staples, prepared daily for the Associated Press, dropped from 128.3 to 128.

Dollar Rallies in London.

LONDON, Nov. 10.—(AP)—What commentators called "the dance of the dollar" was a fast moving tango today as the American currency fell to another new post-war low and rallied on later covering purchases. This was the first day since the pronounced slump set in that no net loss was recorded in the day's dealings in dollars.

American selling pressure dominated the market during most of the exchange session. The late rally was attributed to bear covering on the belief there would be a possibility of stabilization if the decline continued.

Some traders said they were not so much influenced by American gold purchases as by general anxiety over the dollar's future. For the £520,000 in gold bars available the price was one shilling three pence less than that fixed on the weaker franc and only a seven pence premium was offered. The comparatively low premium gave rise to the belief that the purchase was not for an American account.

The French franc, too, was under pressure much of the day, but late dealings also helped it. Other gold currencies followed a similar trend. Improvements appeared at times, but were short lived.

Dollar Falls in Paris.

PARIS, Nov. 10.—(AP)—The American dollar dropped today as a result of inflation talk, operators said, rather than President Roosevelt's gold policy. Financial authorities said the French seek to avoid a monetary war involving the dollar as long as possible and that they were witnessing a huge flight of capital from America.

"Retaliation would not be considered in responsible quarters," a high official said, "until the situation becomes more acute. We prefer to sit tight and await the return of sound finance. Reprisals would further confuse the situation."

September's profit reduced the loss for the first nine months of the year to $3,885,831, compared with a deficit of $15,452,211 for the corresponding period of 1932.

The Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific had net loss of $870,359 for September as compared with a loss of $324,210 in the same month last year. For the nine months the loss was $8,074,331 against $7,204,094 a year ago.

Figure Cost of 'New Deal' 11 to 15 Billion

New York, Nov. 10.—(AP)—The national industrial conference board, an economic research organization supported by large corporations, announced today that statistics gathered by the board indicated the maximum potential cost of the "new deal," including contingent liabilities of the government might amount to $11,735,000,000, exclusive of loans made by the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

15 Billion Loss Possible.

"The total cost of the new deal would amount to $15,135,000,000," the board stated, "if, in addition to direct expenditures of the government on public works, farm relief, and unemployment relief all the various loans that the government is making through the Reconstruction Finance corporation, the farm credit administration, and other governmental agencies proved to be bad loans or frozen assets and were taken over by the government.

"It is impossible at the present time to estimate what proportion of the loans made by the government to railroads, banks and trust companies, farmers, home owners, states, municipalities, and various business enterprises will be repaid. The probabilities of repayment will improve with the improvement in the general condition of business and in the condition of the particular branches of business to which most of the loans are extended."

List of Liabilities.

Emergency Administration of Public Works, $3,150,000,000.

Farm Credit Administration, $2,485,000,000.

Home Owners' Loan corporation, $2,200,000,000.

Federal Emergency Relief Administration, $500,000,000.

Emergency Conservation Works Administration, $250,000,000.

Tennessee Valley Authority, $50,000,000.

Federal Deposit Insurance corporation, $2,000,000,000.

Grand total, $15,135,000,000.

LACK OF CREDIT HIT PARAMOUNT, HERTZ TESTIFIES

New York, Nov. 10.—(AP)—John Hertz of Chicago testified in a referee in bankruptcy's hearing today that refusal of banks to extend additional credit was a contributing factor in the collapse of Paramount-Publix corporation.

He formerly was chairman of the corporation's financial committee, and told Referee Henry K. Davis that securities of a newly formed subsidiary were given bankers as a collateral to a loan floated in March, 1932, almost a year before the motion picture corporation collapsed.

It was charged at a previous hearing that the transaction was a transfer of assets to bankers and constituted a preference.

Hertz explained that the creation of the subsidiary company, together with three others, was for the purpose of decentralizing Paramount's various activities. In addition, he said, it was deemed advisable to have a separate corporation with the "ability to operate in the production of films outside the restrictions of a receivership."

He made repeated contacts with bankers, he testified, and eventually induced a group to which Paramount already owed about $10,000,000 to make a new loan of $13,375,000. The original indebtedness was repaid, he said, and securities of the subsidiary were given as collateral for the new loan.

Hertz said a decline in the foreign money exchange also was a contributing factor to Paramount's fall.

SHIPPERS SEEK STAY ON HIGHER SWITCHING RATE

Judges A. B. Anderson, James H. Wilkerson and John P. Barnes of the United States district court, acting as a three judge court, will hear a motion on Monday in which Chicago district shippers will seek a stay on the interstate commerce commission's order advancing switching rates on Nov. 20. The stay is asked pending an appeal to the United States supreme court of the decision recently made by the three judges which upheld the validity of the interstate commerce commission's order.

The Illinois commerce commission, the public service commission of Indiana, the Chicago Board of Trade and Chicago district shippers are endeavoring to prevent the increased rates from going into effect. They estimate that the increased rates would cost Chicago district shippers $1,500,000 to $5,000,000 annually.

NATIONAL LIFE BIDDERS GIVEN TIME EXTENSION

The deadline for submission of bids for reorganization of reinsurance of the business of the National Life Insurance Company of the U. S. A. was extended from Nov. 14 to Nov. 28 yesterday by Superior Court Judge William J. Lindsay.

The action was taken at the request of Receiver Patrick J. Lucey, who told the court that several firms interested in making bids had requested more time to inquire into the company affairs. The Nov. 28 deadline may be extended at the discretion of the court.

FIRST NATIONAL BANK TO OFFER SENIOR STOCK

Limit on Issue Fixed at $15,000,000.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Directors of the First National Bank of Chicago yesterday indorsed a plan to sell preferred stock, the amount not to exceed $15,000,000.

MELVIN TRAYLOR.

This step was in line with the demands of President Roosevelt and Chairman Jesse H. Jones of the RFC for increased capital structures for banks throughout the country to help finance the nation in the industrial recovery program.

However, Melvin A. Traylor, president of the bank, emphasized in an announcement after the directors' meeting that the indorsement of a preferred stock issue did not necessarily mean that the stock would be sold to the RFC. To whom and under what conditions it would be sold, he said, was a question for the future.

Mr. Traylor added that the issuance of preferred stock "does not contemplate any adjustment of the bank's present capital structure." This capital structure consists of $25,000,000 capital and $15,000,000 surplus.

Sale Plan Undetermined.

"Whether the stockholders will be asked to waive their preëmptive right to subscribe to any issue of preferred stock which may be offered by the bank is undetermined," Mr. Traylor said. "The executive committee with the officers of the bank are to make recommendations to the board on these and other points of detail at a subsequent meeting."

The question of preferred stock issuance will be submitted to the stockholders later, probably at the next annual meeting in January, the bank announced.

Directors also adopted a resolution expressing in a general way their approval of the government's program for increasing the capital structure of banks of the country through the issuance of preferred stock or capital debentures.

Second Bank Here to Act.

The First National thus became the second Chicago bank to accede to the administration's demand for increased capital structure. On Oct. 16 directors of the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company voted to sell $50,000,000 of preferred stock to the RFC and to reduce the bank's outstanding common stock from $75,000,000 to $25,000,000, the $50,000,000 writedown to be set up as special reserves against depreciated assets.

The First National bank has a capital structure of about $43,841,000, consisting of $25,000,000 of paid in capital stock, $15,000,000 surplus, and $3,841,000 undivided profits. The proposed addition to this structure of $15,000,000 of preferred stock would bring it to $58,841,000, making a ratio of deposits to capital of about 10 to 1. Total deposits of the bank on Sept. 20 were $583,948,000.

NEW YORK BANKS AGREE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 10.—Member banks of the New York Clearing House association, meeting at the clearing house today, agreed upon the form of capital notes which they will sell to the RFC to increase their capital in accordance with the request of President Roosevelt, agreed to by the banks several weeks ago.

The question of how national banks will conform to the President's request was left unsettled as it has not yet been decided whether they can issue capital notes under the law or must issue preferred stock.

After the meeting it was indicated that the state-chartered banks would propably sell about $100,000,000 of capital notes. Since the Manufacturers Trust company has already indicated its intention of selling $25,000,000, this leaves about $75,000,000 to be sold by the other state-chartered institutions. It is expected that another $100,000,000 will be sold by the national banks when they decide on their procedure in the matter, making a total of about $200,000,000 of RFC bank capital for New York out of an estimated total of $1,000,000,000 for the entire country.

OCTOBER OUTPUT OF AUTOS 415% ABOVE YEAR AGO

New York, Nov. 10.—(AP)—The National Automobile Chamber of Commerce today estimated October production of cars and trucks by its members at 99,169 units, an increase of 415 per cent over the 19,254 units made in October, 1932, but a decrease of 33 per cent from September's output of 147,800.

For the first ten months of this year production was 1,402,398 units, a rise of 63 per cent over the total of 889,449 in the same period of 1932. All important automobile makers except Ford are members of the chamber.

New York, Nov. 10.—Heavy selling of United States government bonds was again the feature of the generally weak bond market on the stock exchange today. Although dealings in government long term issues were heavier than on the previous day, amounting to $7,765,800, against $7,421,500, the declines were not as severe as on Thursday.

Four of the government issues touched new lows for the year, with the new 4¼-3¾s descending to a new low since issuance at 98 8-32, and closing at 98 28-32.

Close Near Best Level.

In general, the market was weakest at the opening and reached its highest levels at or near the close. A feature of the day was the sale of a block of $1,000,000 of the 4¼-3¾s at the closing price for the issue.

The bond market as a whole was slightly less active than on Thursday on sales of $19,602,800. Domestic corporation bonds closed lower, with losses ranging from fractions to 6 points. Railroad bonds were the hardest hit, and utilities and industrials suffered losses in the order named. Bonds legal for investment by savings banks and trust funds in this state receded, as well as the more speculative issues. The more active issues showed the smallest declines.

Foreign Issues Lower.

With the leading foreign exchanges a little lower on the day against the dollar, foreign bonds moved irregularly lower. French government and municipal loans were unchanged to 3½ points down, with many of the Scandinavian issues unchanged to more than 7 points off. Dutch East Indies were 1½ up to ⅞ off. The active United Kingdom 5½s moved up ¼ and many of the German issues pointed higher. Latin American loans were generally lower.

Domestic bonds on the curb exchange lost ground, while the foreign loans which lagged on the previous day moved higher.

Jewel Tea.

Investors' Guide: Please give me information on Jewel Tea.—M. B.

Answer: Jewel Tea company distributes grocery products direct to consumers. It operates in about 6,000 communities, mostly east of the Mississippi river. Motor trucks contact customers about once every two weeks. Coffee represents about 47 per cent of dollar sales, tea 5 per cent, other groceries 25 per cent, and miscellaneous items, such as soap, toilet articles, etc., 23 per cent.

In March, 1932, the company entered the retail store field by acquisition of 77 grocery stores.

Sales for the four weeks to Oct. 7, 1933, were 0.1 per cent above those for the corresponding 1932 period, the first increase this year. For the 40 weeks to Oct. 7 sales, excluding retail stores, totaled $7,659,000, down 9.3 per cent from $8,446,000 for the corresponding 1932 period.

Net income for the first 28 weeks of 1933 amounted to $306,000, or $1.09 per common share, against $559,000, or $2.00 a share, for the corresponding 1932 period.

Sales in 1932 totaled $11,091,000, against $13,743,000 for 1931 and $15,522,000 in 1930. Net income in 1932 was $1,054,000, or $3.98 per share, against net of $1,364,000, or $4.87 per share, for 1931. Per share earnings in 1930 were $6.09, and in 1929, $6.04.

On June 30, 1933, cash assets of more than $2,000,000 compared with total current liabilities of $947,000.

There is no funded debt. Capitalization consists of 280,000 shares of no par stock. The stock pays 75 cents a quarter.

Earnings have successfully withstood competition from chain stores. The drop in profits during the last two years reflects reduced purchasing power and declining commodity prices. There is a possibility of further horizontal growth through development of new motor routes. Entrance into the chain store field, although opening up a new field for expansion, brings a host of new problems. Competition is strong.

Bavarian Brewery.

Investors' Guide: I am seeking information on Bavarian Prewery of Covington, Ky. When will they place their stock on the market and how soon will they market their product? —B. C. H.

Answer: We have the following from Nelson, Browning & Co., Cincinnati, O.:

". . . . [Bavarian Brewing company] is not in active operation, the stock is not listed and arrangements have just been completed for the return of the money to those who subscribed for stock. The total issue was not sold, and consequently it becomes necessary to assume this action."

HIDE FUTURES.

Hide future market was somewhat unsettled in New York Friday, with the close 5 points lower to 25 points higher. Sales aggregated 3,160,000 pounds, the heaviest in some weeks. Closing bids: December, 9.65 @9.75c; March, 10.60@10.70c; June, 11.05c, and September, 11.55c.

STOCKS RECEDE WITH HALT IN DOLLAR'S SLUMP

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 10.—Signs of steadiness in the "dancing dollar" had a discouraging effect on speculation for the rise on the stock exchange today. After fluctuating uncertainly for most of the session, the list turned definitely downward in the late dealings and the closing table showed losses of 1 to 2 points or more in nearly all departments.

Gold mining issues were about the only outstanding exception to the relapse, being helped by the dollar's firmness. Homestake recovered 16 points of the loss it suffered in yesterday's trading and Alaska Juneau, Dome, and McIntyre got back some of their lost ground. Silver mining stocks, however, took it on the chin with the rest.

Activity was at a low stage, the volume for the five hours coming to only about 1,378,000 shares.

Monetary Plans Confuse Traders.

Traders appeared badly confused over the bewildering developments in the administration's monetary policy that are taking place from day to day, and a large proportion of them showed a disposition to maintain sideline positions until they can visualize the situation clearly enough to warrant further speculative enterprise.

The RFC's action in fixing its price on newly mined gold below the world dollar quotation for the first time since it began to juggle prices was seen as an effort to quiet the foreign exchange markets and forestall such erratic fluctuations in the dollar as occurred yesterday. A reaction in wheat contributed somewhat to the late selling.

In spite of the market's upset brokers reported speculative sentiment still preponderatingly bullish and a general feeling that the advance thus interrupted would be resumed in short order.

Groups Move Together.

The wavelets of buying and selling which followed each other during the major part of the day were impartial in their effects and most groups bobbed up and down together. Oil shares were liked as well as any group and for a time it looked as though they might be in course of grooming for a prominent rôle in a resumed advance. But they sold off with other departments toward the finish.

Some of the assorted speculative stocks were unusually inactive. No sale of Coca Cola or International Business Machine for instance took place during the entire session. Other shares usually prominent in the day's doings were turned over only in nominal volume.

Among the standard industrials United States Steel was indifferent to its first report on tonnage shipped. The price was slightly higher in the early dealings, but ruled a point or so lower during the afternoon.

Rails were no worse than irregular up to the last hour selling wave and so were the utilities. Liquor shares came in for slightly more than their share of profit taking.

ASK CONSUMERS TO PAY RETAIL 2 PER CENT TAX

The retail division of the Illinois Chamber of Commerce soon will undertake a state-wide campaign to persuade consumers that the 2 per cent occupational tax should be added on the sales slip as an additional expense to consumers rather than be absorbed by the retailers as the state department of finance urges.

Merchants will seek the coöperation of various consumer organizations, women's clubs, and the Illinois League of Women Voters.

"Our organization firmly believes that the method of adding the 2 per cent charge as an additional expense is the only orderly and satisfactory method of handling this tax from the standpoint of both merchant and consumer," says J. C. Spiess, chairman of the retail division. "By adding the tax to all sales—as an added expense—merchants are giving consumers the opportunity of paying exactly 2 per cent in the form of the tax.

"On the other hand, in dealing with merchants who absorb the tax within the price consumers may be paying a much higher percentage than 2 per cent. This is not necessarily the fault of the merchant. It will cost him more to absorb the tax, for obvious reasons. Absorption—keeping the tax hidden—is also a weapon that can be used by unscrupulous merchants in charging far more than 2 per cent—maybe 3, 5, or even 10 per cent—because of the tax."

Round and Odd Lot Trade Segregation Is Postponed

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 10.—Segregation of the round lot and odd lot brokerage business under rules approved by the stock exchange Oct. 10, which was to have become effective next Wednesday, has been deferred until Jan. 1, it was learned today. The governing committee of the exchange is said to have approved the postponement, to give certain brokers who have been acting as round lot specialists and as odd lot brokers, additional time in which to adjust their affairs in accordance with the new rules.

GRAINS DECLINE; SELLING DUE TO DOUBLE HOLIDAY

Traders Even Up for Two Day Closing.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Evening up on the part of operators who bought grain earlier in the week, due to the double holiday ahead of the trade, resulted in moderate recessions in both grain and commodity markets yesterday. Aggressive buying was not so much in evidence as on Thursday and persistent scattered selling appeared on all the minor upturns.

At no time were grain prices above the top level of the previous day and the close was at net losses of 1½ to 2 cents on wheat; ⅞ cent on corn; ⅞ cent to 1⅛ cents on oats; 1⅜ to 1⅞ cents on rye and 1⅜ to 2¼ cents on barley.

Guard Against Holiday Action.

Weakness which developed in sterling exchange and in silver attracted some attention in the grain trade, but in the main the selling was said to have been induced by a desire to even up on the market. As New York exchanges are open on Saturday, operators feared there might be unexpected developments.

May wheat which sold up to 95¼ cents on Thursday was down to 92½ cents at the low yesterday and closed at 93¾ to 93⅞ cents. May corn finished at 54¾ to 54⅞ cents; oats, 38⅝ cents; rye, 67⅛ cents and barley, 53½ cents.

Profit taking in grains yesterday was reported by a majority of traders as a precautionary measure rather than an indication of any change in sentiment which was bullish. The steady advance in the price of gold and the weakness in government bonds were accepted as increasing the desirability of owning commodities that are sharing in the advance through the government's monetary operations.

Wheat Out of Step with Gold.

Wheat prices, however, have not fully reflected the advance in gold since the RFC started to set the price. The metal has advanced about 11.3 per cent since the latest operations started, while wheat at the close Thursday was up only 7.6 per cent for the same period.

Winnipeg wheat declined with American markets and closed 1¾ to 2 cents lower, while Liverpool was unchanged to ⅛ cent lower. Export sales of 750,000 bushels of Manitobas were reported.

The latest government proposal to keep corn on the farm by lending the producer 45 cents on the grain in cribs fell flat as a market influence, and Chicago handlers bought 180,000 bushels to arrive from the country during the day. Shipping demand was only fair. Cash interests were buyers of December and sellers of May corn around 6¼ cents difference to change over hedges into the distant future.
